

270.58 TURNING AT INTERSECTIONS. INFRACTION.

The defendant has been charged with unlawfully turning at an intersection.

For you to find the defendant responsible for this infraction, the State must prove four things beyond a reasonable doubt:

First, that the defendant was the driver of a vehicle.

Second, that this vehicle was traveling on a highway.

Third, that the defendant [attempted to make] (or) [made] a left turn from that highway at its intersection with another street.

And Fourth, that the defendant

- a. [did not approach the intersection in the extreme left-hand lane lawfully available to traffic moving in the direction of the defendant's vehicle.] (or)
- b. [after entering the intersection did not make the left turn so as to leave the intersection in a lane lawfully available to traffic moving in such direction upon the roadway being entered.]

If you find from the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that on or about the alleged date the defendant was the driver of a vehicle that was traveling on a highway, and that the defendant [attempted to make] [made] a left turn from that highway at its intersection with another street, and that the defendant [did not approach the intersection in the extreme left-hand lane lawfully available to traffic moving in the direction of the defendant's vehicle] (or) [after entering the intersection did not make the left turn so as to leave the intersection in a lane lawfully available to traffic moving in such direction upon the roadway being entered], it would be your duty to return a verdict of responsible. If you do not so find or have a reasonable doubt as to one or more of these things, it would be your duty to return a verdict of not responsible.
