If you [believe this evidence] [find that this evidence (describe what must be found for evidence to be relevant)], then you may consider this evidence for the purpose(s) of (describe permissible purpose). Except as it bears upon (specify permissible purpose), [this evidence] [(describe evidence)] may not be used by you in your determination of any fact in this case.

1. Use the parenthetical sentence only when it is desired to specifically point out to the jury the use to which the evidence may not be put.
