This bulletin summarizes criminal procedure for North Carolina magistrates. Coverage includes criminal process and pleadings, initial appearance, pretrial release, fugitives, and search warrants. It replaces Administration of Justice Bulletin 2007/06 and serves as the new criminal procedure text for the School of Government's Basic School for Magistrates.

Criminal Process and Pleadings

Types of Criminal Process and Pleadings

You will issue and encounter five different types of criminal process and pleadings in your daily work: citation, criminal summons, warrant for arrest, order for arrest (OFA), and magistrate's order. Other types of pleadings, including statement of charges, information, and indictment, will not be a part of your daily work, and thus they are not discussed in this bulletin.

The purpose of criminal process is to require a person to come to court. Official Commentary to Article 17 of the North Carolina General Statutes (hereinafter G.S.), Chapter 15A. When a warrant for arrest or OFA is issued, this is accomplished by taking the person into custody. When a citation or criminal summons is used, it is accomplished by ordering the person to appear in court. Most forms of criminal process also can serve as the criminal pleading (the OFA, discussed later, is the only type of criminal process that cannot serve as a pleading). Criminal pleadings have three main functions: to give the court jurisdiction to enter judgment on the offense charged, to give the defendant notice of the charges, and to allow the defendant to raise a double jeopardy defense. 238 N.C. 325.

Issuing Criminal Process and Pleadings

Required Determinations

Before issuing criminal process and pleadings, you must determine

- that probable cause exists,
- which crime(s) to charge,
- what charging language to use, and
- which type of process or pleading to issue.

This bulletin focuses on all but the second of these inquiries. New magistrates will learn more about which crime(s) to charge in their Basic School sessions on the elements of the crimes. The School of Government publication JESSICA SMITH, NORTH CAROLINA CRIMES: A GUIDEBOOK ON THE ELEMENTS OF CRIME (School of Government, UNC Chapel Hill, 6th ed. 2007) (hereinafter NORTH CAROLINA CRIMES), describes the more commonly charged North Carolina crimes.

Independent Determination

You are an independent judicial official, not an agent of law enforcement. Thus, when you determine whether to issue criminal process and pleadings, your determinations must be neutral and independent.

Requirements of Criminal Pleadings

Because the requirements for a sufficient pleading are more stringent than those for simply taking a person into custody, criminal pleadings always should be drafted to satisfy the special pleading requirements discussed below.

Probable Cause

Generally

Criminal process and pleadings require a finding of probable cause. With a citation, a law enforcement officer determines whether probable cause exists. For all of the other forms of criminal process and pleadings discussed in this bulletin, a judicial official determines whether probable cause exists.

Meaning of Probable Cause

To issue any of the forms of criminal process or pleadings discussed in this section, you must determine that there is probable cause to believe that a crime has been committed and that the person who has been arrested or who will be arrested or summoned committed that crime. Probable cause means a fair probability; the standard is not proof beyond a reasonable doubt. ROBERT FARB, ARREST, SEARCH, AND INVESTIGATION IN NORTH CAROLINA 26 (3d ed. 2003) (hereinafter ARREST, SEARCH, AND INVESTIGATION). Thus the probable cause determination is whether there is a fair probability that: (1) a crime was committed, and (2) the person arrested or to be arrested or summoned committed the crime. In order to find probable cause that an offense was committed, you must find probable cause for each element of the offense.

The Probable Cause Determination

Forms of evidence. The information establishing probable cause must be shown by one or more of the following:

- Affidavit
- Oral testimony under oath or affirmation (e.g., by a law enforcement officer or a complaining witness) before you
- Oral testimony under oath or affirmation presented by a law enforcement officer to you by means of an audio and video transmission in which both parties can see and hear each other. The procedure and equipment must be approved by the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC), based on a submission to the AOC by the senior resident superior court judge and the chief district court judge. G.S. 15A-303(c); -304(d); -511(c). A 2009 law, S.L. 2009-270, provides for a pilot program that would allow videoconferencing for these determinations under specified conditions for individuals in the custody of the Department of Correction (DOC) or a local confinement facility. However, due to a lack of funding, the pilot program has not yet been initiated. In any event, videoconferencing already is permitted for probable cause determinations pursuant to the statutory provisions cited above.

Rules of evidence not applicable. When making a probable cause determination, you are not bound by the rules of evidence. Thus hearsay that might be inadmissible at trial may be considered, N.C. R. EVID. 1101(b), provided it is reliable.

Factors that should not be considered. When making the probable cause determination, you should not be influenced by the fact that the defendant already is in custody. Nor should you consider, as a general rule, application of the exclusionary rule (such as the legality of an arrest or search). Finally, you should not consider defenses, such as self-defense, unless all of the evidence presented clearly establishes that the defense applies.

Relevant factors. When making the probable cause determination, factors that may indicate guilt include

- eyewitness observations and other reports, including scientific evidence;
- furtive movements or attempts to hide evidence;
- resistance to officers;
- evasive and untruthful answers to questions; and
- flight by the defendant.

Credibility. ASSESSING CREDIBILITY. As a general rule, when assessing credibility, a witness's story is more likely to be true if he or she has no motive to lie, provides a detailed statement, and is consistent.

CITIZEN WITNESSES. Citizen witnesses are regular people who witness crime. For example, a person who saw robbers flee from a crime scene is a citizen witness. Absent some reason to doubt the credibility of a citizen witness, such as a dispute between the witness and the alleged perpetrator, you may presume that he or she is truthful.

ANONYMOUS TIPSTERS. An anonymous tip is a lead from someone whose identity is unknown. Such a tip cannot, standing alone, constitute probable cause. However, it can contribute to probable cause, if there is adequate corroboration by officers.

Sometimes people make face-to-face reports to officers, but the officer fails to obtain the person's name. In these situations, case law suggests that because the person has put his or her identity at risk, he or she should be treated more like a citizen witness than an anonymous tipster. 362 N.C. 614.

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMANTS. A confidential informant is one whose identity is known to officers but not revealed to you when the statement of probable cause is provided. So that information from a confidential informant will establish probable cause, an officer typically will provide you with facts indicating (1) the basis for the informant's information (e.g., that the informant personally observed the defendant doing the illegal act) and (2) the informant's credibility or the reliability of the information. ARREST, SEARCH, AND INVESTIGATION at 137–38. The second showing typically is made by facts indicating the officer's track record with the informant or that the officer corroborated the informant's information. ARREST, SEARCH, AND INVESTIGATION at 138.

Charging Language

Generally

Once you have identified the relevant criminal offense and that there is probable cause to charge, you must prepare the appropriate criminal process or pleading. Except for an OFA, all criminal process and pleadings issued by a magistrate—criminal summons, warrant for arrest, and magistrate's order—must include charging language.

Finding Charging Language

You can find the appropriate charging language in one of two places. When issuing criminal process through the AOC Magistrate System or NCAWARE, the charging language will appear automatically when the offense is entered on the criminal form in the computer. For magistrates who are not yet on either the AOC Magistrate System or NCAWARE and for times when the computer system is not operating, charging language can be found in the School of Government publication, ROBERT FARB, ARREST WARRANT AND INDICTMENT FORMS (5th ed. 2005) (hereinafter WARRANT AND INDICTMENT FORMS). That book indicates whether there is an AOC form for the crime; forms may be obtained through the clerk's office or on the AOC website, www.nccourts.org/Forms/FormSearch.asp. WARRANT AND INDICTMENT FORMS does not include all North Carolina offenses that might be charged. If the facts presented do not fit into the charging language for the included offenses, do not force the form language to fit. Instead, modify the form language to fit the facts or draft new language. For offenses that WARRANT AND INDICTMENT FORMS does not cover, you will need to draft charging language based on the relevant statute. See pages 13–14 for general guidelines on drafting charging language. For a quick listing of most of the criminal offenses in North Carolina, you can consult the contents at the beginning of Chapter 14 in NORTH CAROLINA CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE (LexisNexis 2009) (the “red book” provided annually to all magistrates by the AOC; the books are shipped to the clerk’s office; check there if you have not received your book) or the table of contents in NORTH CAROLINA CRIMES, which the AOC provides to all magistrates.

Citation

Statute and Forms

G.S. 15A-302; AOC-CR-500 (standard citation form used by Highway Patrol, included in Appendix A); AOC-CR-501 (standard citation form used by all other law enforcement agencies); AOC-CR-502 (alcohol beverage control offenses); AOC-CR-503 (wildlife and forestry offenses); and AOC-CR-504 (railroad offenses). For all citation forms, one copy goes to each of the following: the clerk, the defendant, the Department of Motor Vehicles in traffic cases, the officer’s agency, and the officer.

Defined

A citation is a directive that a person appear in court to answer a charge. G.S. 15A-302(a).

Who May Issue

A citation is issued by a law enforcement officer or other person authorized by statute who has probable cause to believe that a person has committed a misdemeanor or infraction. G.S. 15A-302(a), (b). Magistrates do not have the authority to issue citations.

Used Only for Misdemeanors and Infractions

A citation may be used for any misdemeanor or infraction, though it is used most often for traffic cases. G.S. 15A-302(b). Legally, the citation is not limited to on-the-scene situations, and it may be issued any time a citizen provides a law enforcement officer with probable cause to believe that a defendant committed a misdemeanor or infraction. For example, an officer could use a citation to charge a person with shoplifting instead of arresting the person.

Contents

The citation must

- identify the crime charged, including the date, and where material, the property and other persons involved;
- list the name and address of the person cited, or provide other identification if that cannot be determined;
- identify the officer issuing the citation; and
- direct the person to whom the citation is issued to appear in a designated court, at a designated time and date.

G.S. 15A-302(c).

If a defendant refuses to sign a citation, it is still effective. G.S. 15A-302(d). When this happens, the officer may write “defendant refused to sign” in the space for the defendant’s signature.

If there are two charges, the officer should use the lower portion of the citation to write out the second charge (the officer should not charge two offenses on the top half of the form). If there are more than two charges, the officer should use a separate citation for every two charges. This procedure is required because each charge against a defendant must be pleaded in a separate count, G.S. 15A-924(a)(2), and the AOC uniform citation form is drafted for only two counts per form.

Failure to Appear

Because a citation is not issued by a judicial official, it is not criminal contempt under Section 5A-11(a)(3) of the North Carolina General Statutes (hereinafter G.S.) if the defendant fails to appear in court. If the defendant fails to appear in court on a citation for a misdemeanor, an OFA may be issued. G.S. 15A-302(f); -305(b)(3). If the defendant fails to appear in court on a citation for an infraction, a criminal summons may be issued. G.S. 15A-1116(b). An arrest warrant cannot be used for a failure to appear (FTA) on an infraction. If the defendant fails to appear in court when charged with an infraction in a criminal summons, then an order to show cause for contempt may be issued [but not an OFA—unless it is issued with the order to show cause under G.S. 5A-16(b)].

Processing a Citation

If an officer brings a citation to you without having arrested the person charged, there is nothing for you to do other than forward it to the clerk’s office. If the person charged has been arrested, you may want to convert the citation into a magistrate’s order as a part of the initial appearance, as discussed on page 17.

Issuing a Summons or Warrant

The fact that a citation has been issued for a misdemeanor does not prevent the later issuance of a summons or warrant for that offense. G.S. 15A-302(f). For example, suppose an officer cites a defendant for a misdemeanor and later wants to arrest the defendant. The citation cannot be used to take the defendant into custody. If the defendant is not already in the officer’s custody, an arrest warrant is needed. If the officer appears before you for an arrest warrant, the officer must swear to the facts and you should proceed under the procedures set forth below for issuing an arrest warrant. If the officer has issued a citation and has the defendant in custody, the proper process is a magistrate’s order, discussed below.

Criminal Summons

Statute and Forms

G.S. 15A-303; AOC-CR-113 (standard misdemeanor criminal summons; included in Appendix A); AOC-CR-114 (abandonment and nonsupport of spouse and nonsupport of children); AOC-CR-115 (misdemeanor worthless check); AOC-CR-140 (communicating threats); AOC-CR-144 (failure to return rental property); AOC-CR-145 (misdemeanor assault); AOC-CR-147 (injury to personal or real property); AOC-CR-916M (employment security law violation). For all criminal summons forms, one copy goes to the officer to be filed with the clerk after execution, one copy is for the clerk, and one copy is for the defendant.

Defined

A criminal summons consists of a statement of the crime or infraction charged and an order directing that the accused appear and answer the charges; it does not order a law enforcement officer to take the defendant into custody. G.S. 15A-303(a). It is based on a showing of probable cause supported by oath or affirmation. G.S. 15A-303(a).

Who May Issue

A criminal summons is issued by any person authorized to issue a warrant for arrest. G.S. 15A-303(f). Those individuals include a justice, judge, clerk, or magistrate. G.S. 15A-304(f).

Used for Any Crime or Infraction

A criminal summons legally may be used for any felony, misdemeanor, or infraction. G.S. 15A-303(a). However, because of how it is drafted, the AOC criminal summons form may not be used to charge a felony.

Contents

A criminal summons must contain a statement of the crime or infraction charged. Using the appropriate charging language, see page 6, and following the guidelines for criminal pleadings, see pages 13–14, will ensure that the summons contains a proper statement. The summons must order the defendant to appear in a designated court at a designated time and date to answer to the charges. G.S. 15A-303(d). Except for cause noted in the criminal summons by the issuing official, an appearance date may not be set more than one month following the date the summons is issued. G.S. 15A-303(d). The summons must advise the defendant that he or she may be held in contempt of court for failure to appear as directed. G.S. 15A-303(d).

Warrant for Arrest May Issue

G.S. 15A-303(e)(1) provides that the issuance of a criminal summons does not bar the later issuance of a warrant for arrest.

Failure to Appear

A defendant who fails to appear as ordered in a criminal summons may be held in contempt of court. G.S. 15A-303(e)(3). Additionally, an OFA may be issued if the offense charged is a crime (misdemeanor or felony). G.S. 15A-303(e)(2).

Warrant for ArrestStatute and Forms

Defined

A warrant for arrest consists of a statement of the crime charged and an order directing that the accused be arrested and held to answer the charges. Thus, unlike the citation and criminal summons, which merely direct an individual to appear in court to answer charges, the warrant for arrest directs law enforcement officers to arrest the accused. The warrant must be based on a showing of probable cause on oath or affirmation. G.S. 15A-304(a).

Who May Issue

A warrant for arrest may be issued by a justice, judge, clerk, or magistrate. G.S. 15A-304(f).

Used for Any Crime

A warrant for arrest may be used for any crime, whether a misdemeanor or felony. It may not be used for an infraction.

Contents

A warrant for arrest must contain a statement of the crime charged. G.S. 15A-304(c). Using the appropriate charging language, see page 6, and following the guidelines for criminal pleadings, see pages 13–14, will ensure that the warrant contains a proper statement. The warrant must direct that a law enforcement officer take the defendant into custody and bring the defendant, without unnecessary delay, before a judicial official. G.S. 15A-304(e).

When Issued: Warrant versus Summons

G.S. 15A-304(b) provides that a warrant may be used instead of or after a summons has been issued when the person needs to be taken into custody. If the person already has been taken into custody under a warrantless arrest, the proper procedure is to complete a magistrate's order, not a warrant. See the discussion of magistrate's orders below.

G.S. 15A-304(b) directs that the circumstances to be considered in determining whether the person should be taken into custody may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Failure to appear when previously summoned
- Facts making it apparent that a person summoned will fail to appear
- Danger that the accused will escape
- Danger that there may be injury to a person or property
- Seriousness of the offense

Another factor sometimes considered is that under G.S. 15A-502, a person charged with a misdemeanor or felony may be fingerprinted upon arrest, if allowed by your local fingerprint plan adopted pursuant to G.S. 15A-1383. Issuance of a warrant will lead to an arrest; issuance of a summons will not.

Follow the local policy issued by your senior resident superior court judge or chief district court judge on whether a summons or warrant is appropriate. In the absence of a specific policy, many magistrates apply the following two guidelines:

1. A criminal summons should be used instead of an arrest warrant when the magistrate believes that the accused will appear in court without being jailed or placed under conditions of pretrial release.
2. A criminal summons should be used for most minor misdemeanors (unless the defendant might flee) and an arrest warrant should be used for all felonies.

Note that the arrest warrant provisions in G.S. 15A-304(b) state that the criminal summons is the process of first choice and that an arrest warrant only should be used when a criminal summons specifically has been ruled out. Also, note that officers often ask for a warrant when in fact they would settle for a criminal summons.

Cross Warrants

G.S. 15A-304(d) provides that a judicial official may not refuse to issue a warrant solely because a prior warrant has been issued for the arrest of another person involved in the same matter. A judicial official retains discretion to issue a criminal summons instead of an arrest warrant in these instances.

Magistrate's Order

Statute and Forms

G.S. 15A-511(c); AOC-CR-116 (generic magistrate's order form; included in Appendix A); AOC-CR-117 (shoplifting); AOC-CR-118 (felony or misdemeanor larceny or possession). For all magistrate's order forms, one copy of the form is for the clerk, and one copy is for the defendant.

When Used

A magistrate's order is used only when a defendant has been arrested without a warrant. G.S. 15A-511(c). As described in the section "Conducting the Initial Appearance and Setting Conditions of Pretrial Release," below, when a defendant is arrested without a warrant, he or she must be brought, without unnecessary delay, to a magistrate for an initial appearance. If the magistrate finds that there is probable cause to charge the defendant with a crime, the magistrate must issue a magistrate's order.

Used for Any Crime

The magistrate's order may be used for any crime, both felonies and misdemeanors. G.S. 15A-511(c).

Contents

A magistrate's order must contain a statement of the crime, as required for a warrant for arrest, and a finding that the defendant has been arrested without a warrant and that there is probable cause for his or her detention. G.S. 15A-511(c)(3).

Conversion of Citation

A citation may be converted into a magistrate's order. See page 17 for instruction.

Magistrate's Order for Fugitive

AOC-CR-909M (included in Appendix A) is the form for a magistrate's order for a fugitive. It has a different purpose than the magistrate's order discussed in this section. The magistrate's order for a fugitive form is discussed in the section "Fugitives," below.

Order for Arrest

Statute and Forms

G.S. 15A-305; AOC-CR-217 (included in Appendix A). One copy of the OFA form is filed with clerk, and one copy is for the defendant.

Defined

An OFA is an order that a law enforcement officer take a person into custody. G.S. 15A-305(a).

Who May Issue

An OFA may be issued by a justice, judge, clerk, or magistrate. G.S. 15A-305(a) and (d).

When Issued

G.S. 15A-305(b) lists all of the circumstances in which an OFA may be issued. For example, an OFA may be issued when a defendant fails to appear after being released on conditions of pre-trial release, or if he or she fails to appear as directed in a criminal summons. However, a magistrate is likely to issue an OFA only in one circumstance: when a defendant is released subject to conditions, violates those conditions, and needs to be brought back before the magistrate—but only if this happens before the first appearance in district court. G.S. 15A-305(b)(5); -534(e).

Contents

When a magistrate issues an OFA, the order must state why it is being issued and order an officer to take the defendant into custody. G.S. 15A-305(c).

Special Problems with Issuing Process and PleadingsStatute of Limitations

Misdemeanors. There is a two-year statute of limitations for misdemeanors. G.S. 15-1. This means that valid process must be issued within two years of the completion of the misdemeanor.

Felonies. There is no statute of limitations for felonies. 275 N.C. 264. This means that there is no outer limit on the time when process may be issued for a felony.

Venue

Generally. When you issue a criminal summons, arrest warrant, or OFA, it is valid throughout the state. For good reasons, however, arrest warrants (and other process) usually are issued only for crimes committed in the magistrate's own county. The reason for this informal rule is that a person will be tried (venue) in the county where the charged offense occurred. G.S. 15A-131. Thus, if a magistrate from County X issues arrest warrants for crimes committed in County Y, then the defendant and all the paperwork will need to be transferred to County Y for the trial.

Concurrent venue. G.S. 15A-131(e) states that an offense "occurs" in a county if any act constituting part of the offense occurs within the territorial limits of the county. If acts constituting part of the offense occur in more than one county (for example, worthless check, when the check is written in one county and mailed to another county), then each county has venue to conduct the trial. G.S. 15A-132(a). Put another way, the two counties have concurrent venue. If counties have concurrent venue, then the first county in which a criminal process is issued has exclusive venue. G.S. 15A-132(c).

Venue for rape or sexual offenses. G.S. 15A-136 is a special venue statute that applies when a defendant transports a person for the purpose of committing a rape, sexual offense, or sexual battery and commits one of those offenses. Under G.S. 15A-136, venue is in any county where the transportation began, continued, or ended.

Venue for initial appearance and first appearance. Although venue for initial appearance before a magistrate may be anywhere, venue for first appearance before a district court judge must be in a judicial district embracing the county where the felony occurred. G.S. 15A-131(b) and (f).

Transmittal of Out-of-County Process

As noted in the section on venue above, if a crime has been committed in your county and the defendant lives in another county, you may issue criminal process. Original process is no longer required for service in the other county; see “Initial appearance for paperless arrests” on pages 18–19. However, there may be circumstances in which you want a paper copy of the process delivered to the other county, with recommendations for conditions of release, when the initial appearance will be held there. In this case, form AOC-CR-236 (included in Appendix A) should be used. The form has a space where you may recommend conditions for release. However, this is only a recommendation, and it does not have to be followed. Be sure to include the court date in your county because the magistrate in the arresting county may not know your county’s court dates.

Service of Criminal Process

As noted on page 18, law enforcement officers are authorized to make an arrest without having the actual warrant or OFA in hand (“paperless arrests”), provided that they have knowledge that it has been issued and not executed (such as a DCI-PIN message). G.S. 15A-401(a)(2). Although the warrant or OFA—like all criminal process—must be served on the defendant, the arrest itself is valid without service. See pages 18–19 for a discussion of service of process and paperless arrests.

Requirements for Criminal PleadingsGenerally

The citation, criminal summons, warrant for arrest, and magistrate’s order serve as the state’s pleading in certain criminal cases. The requirements for valid pleadings, set out in G.S. 15A-924, are specific and technical. It is important that you follow all of these requirements, which are discussed below, along with other helpful pleading rules.

Name of Defendant

A criminal pleading must contain the name or other identification of the defendant. G.S. 15A-924(a)(1). If the defendant’s name is unknown, you do not have to use “John Doe” as a substitute. Instead, give a detailed physical description of the defendant and his or her address, if known. If the defendant’s aliases are known, you may use them in the warrant, if done in good faith. 61 N.C. App. 589.

Witnesses

Complaining witnesses are witnesses who give testimony under oath. People who give statements that are not under oath should be listed as witnesses but not as complaining witnesses. A complaining witness can be a victim, an officer, a friend or relative of a victim, or any other person who has information about the alleged crime and gives testimony under oath.

Separate Counts

A pleading must contain a separate count for each charged offense, although allegations in one count may be incorporated by reference in another count. G.S. 15A-924(a)(2). The general rule is that a separate warrant should be used for each offense charged by a magistrate (except that some computer and preprinted AOC forms allow charging more than one offense). If all offenses occurred as part of a single, continuous transaction, they may be joined for trial in one pleading.

G.S. 15A-926(a). However, even in that situation, you should use a separate process for each offense. This procedure makes things much simpler if, for example, the defendant is convicted of two offenses in district court and appeals only one to superior court. On this issue, follow local practice.

County

Each count of the pleading must contain a statement or cross reference indicating the county in which the charged offense was committed. G.S. 15A-924(a)(3).

Offense Date

Each count of the pleading must contain a statement or cross reference indicating on or on or about what date the offense occurred. G.S. 15A-924(a)(4). The phrase “on or about” appears on all AOC forms. An error regarding a date in a pleading will not provide grounds for dismissal, as long as time is not of the essence to the offense charged and the error or omission did not mislead the defendant to his or her prejudice. G.S. 15A-924(a)(4).

Factual Statement

Each count must contain a plain and concise statement asserting facts supporting every element of the offense and the charge that the defendant committed the offense. G.S. 15A-924(a)(5). The offense must be charged with sufficient certainty so that the defendant may prepare a defense. G.S. 15A-924(a)(5). The standard charging language serves as this factual statement. See page 6 for a discussion on charging language.

Law Violated

Each count must cite the statute, rule, regulation, ordinance, or other provision of law alleged to have been violated. G.S. 15A-924(a)(6). The pleading will not be subject to dismissal simply because the cited statute is erroneous or even missing. G.S. 15A-924(a)(6). If a city or county ordinance violation is alleged, the pleading must cite the section number and caption (e.g., “Sec. 5-20, Letting chickens run loose prohibited”). If the ordinance is not codified, the caption must be pleaded. The last form in WARRANT AND INDICTMENT FORMS provides an example of charging language to use in this situation.

Miscellaneous Issues

Abbreviations (such as a/d/w with IK or ccw) should never be used in the charging language of the criminal pleading. The abbreviation might be clear to you, but it might not be clear to others.

If you must prepare process for an offense for which there is no standard charging language, avoid the use of the word “or.” Courts have ruled that use of this word in charging some offenses may not adequately inform a defendant of the charge.

The word “feloniously” must appear in a pleading that charges the defendant with a felony or the pleading will be defective. However, use of that word in a misdemeanor pleading will be considered harmless surplusage.

When naming businesses in criminal pleadings, refer to the formal name of the business, not its common name, that is, be sure to include inc., corp., ltd., and so forth (e.g., “Roses Stores, Inc.,” not “Roses Store”). If you have a question about the name of a North Carolina corporation, you can search for information regarding the proper name on the North Carolina Secretary of State’s website (www.secretary.state.nc.us/corporations/csearch.aspx).

For information on charging fugitives from other states, see “Fugitives,” below.

Recall of Process

Sometimes it becomes necessary to recall process, such as when you learn that the wrong person was identified as a perpetrator. Recall of process is governed by G.S. 15A-301(g). The relevant rules are summarized in Table 1, below. Unless specifically directed to do so, never recall process issued by a judge.

When you recall process, you must enter the recall into the AOC Magistrate System or NCAWARE, if the process was created in those systems, and promptly communicate the recall to each law enforcement agency that has an original or copy of the process. G.S. 15A-301(g). You do not need to communicate with those agencies if the process was created in the AOC Magistrate System or NCAWARE and the agencies have remote electronic access to those systems. G.S. 15A-301(g).

Conducting the Initial Appearance and Setting Conditions of Pretrial Release

Initial Appearance Procedure

The initial appearance is a defendant’s first contact with the judicial system. Every person who is arrested must appear before a judicial official for an initial appearance. This section describes the procedure for conducting an initial appearance. This procedure applies in all cases except those in which you are authorized to dispose of the matter under G.S. 7A-273 (magistrate can accept guilty pleas for certain infractions and misdemeanors). G.S. 15A-511(a)(2). In most cases the procedure for conducting the initial appearance is to hold it without delay, make a probable cause determination and, if you find probable cause, inform the defendant of his or her rights and set conditions of pretrial release. The next section, starting on page 21, discusses the exceptions to the procedure discussed here.

Timing of the Initial Appearance

A law enforcement officer must take a person arrested (with or without a warrant) before a judicial official without unnecessary delay. G.S. 15A-501(2); -511(a)(1).

Defendant’s Presence

The defendant must be present for his or her initial appearance.

Audio and Video Transmission and Videoconferencing

An initial appearance for noncapital offenses may be conducted by an audio and video transmission between the magistrate (or other judicial official) and the defendant, in which both people may see and hear each other. G.S. 15A-511(a1). If the defendant has counsel, the defendant must be allowed to communicate fully and confidentially with counsel during the proceeding. G.S. 15A-511(a1). The procedure and equipment must be approved by the AOC, based on a submission to the AOC by the senior regular resident superior court judge and the chief district court judge. G.S. 15A-511(a1).

A 2009 law (S.L. 2009-270) authorizes a pilot program for the use of videoconferencing or similar technology to conduct proceedings, including an initial appearance, for defendants in the custody of the DOC or local confinement facilities. At the time of publication, funding issues prevented the start of this pilot project. In any event, audio and video transmission already is authorized, as discussed above.

Federal Offenses

You may hold an initial appearance for a person arrested for a federal offense. 18 U.S.C. § 3041. Conditions of pretrial release are determined according to federal law.

Appointing Counsel

Effective July 1, 2009, magistrates who are licensed attorneys may be designated by their chief district court judge to appoint counsel pursuant to G.S. Ch. 7A, Art. 36. S.L. 2009-419. However, such magistrates may not appoint counsel for potentially capital offenses, as defined by rules adopted by the Office of Indigent Defense Services, or accept waivers of counsel. S.L. 2009-419. Any magistrate who has been so designated should get guidance from his or her chief district court judge on when the counsel appointment should be made, the procedure to be followed, and how to determine indigency.

Non-English-Speaking Defendants

When a non-English-speaking defendant is brought before you for an initial appearance, you should use the telephone interpreting services, installed by the AOC's Court Services Division, to ensure that the defendant understands the proceedings and his or her rights. At the time of publication, the Court Services Division had implemented telephone interpreting services in almost all magistrates' offices. If you need information about or training on this system, contact Brooke Bogue, Manager, Interpreting Services, AOC Court Programs and Management Services Division (tel: 919.890.1213; e-mail: brooke.a.bogue@nccourts.org).

Initial Appearance Procedure—Generally

Initial appearance for warrantless arrests. The procedure for conducting an initial appearance after a warrantless arrest is as follows:

1. Determine whether there is probable cause to believe that a crime has been committed and that the arrestee committed it. G.S. 15A-511(c)(1). The probable cause determination is discussed on pages 5–6.
2. If you find no probable cause, release the arrestee. G.S. 15A-511(c)(2). No paperwork is required for such a release, but it is a good idea to make a written record of your action.
3. If you find probable cause, issue a magistrate’s order. G.S. 15A-511(c)(3).
4. To prepare the magistrate’s order, use AOC-CR-116, one of the other AOC forms for specific offenses noted on page 11, or convert the citation into a magistrate’s order following the procedure below. Because the magistrate’s order also may be used as the criminal pleading, it must satisfy all of the requirements for a criminal pleading specified by G.S. 15A-924. See pages 13–14 for more detail regarding the contents of a magistrate’s order and the requirements of G.S. 15A-924.
5. If a law enforcement officer arrests a person for a misdemeanor, brings that person to you with a completed citation, swears to facts establishing probable cause, and you find probable cause to believe that the person committed the crime charged, you may convert the citation into a magistrate’s order by signing the citation in the appropriate location. This saves you from having to complete a separate magistrate’s order form. Once a citation is converted into a magistrate’s order, it becomes your form, and you are responsible for ensuring that the charge is made properly. You must make sure that the defendant gets a copy of the order.
6. Inform the defendant of
 - the charges,
 - the defendant’s right to communicate with counsel and friends, and
 - the circumstances under which the defendant may obtain pretrial release.

G.S. 15A-511(b).

7. If you find probable cause, the defendant must be released under G.S. Ch. 15A, Art. 26 (Bail) or committed under G.S. Ch. 15A, Art. 25 (Commitment). G.S. 15A-511(e). Pages 28–31 discuss the situations when the defendant is not entitled to release; pages 33–38 discuss how to set conditions of pretrial release.
8. Regardless of whether the defendant is released on bail, when you are conducting an initial appearance you need to set a court date on the release order (the relevant form is discussed in more detail in “Determining the Conditions of Pretrial Release,” below). When setting court dates, keep in mind the timing rules for first appearances discussed in the next step.
9. Every defendant charged with a felony (or one of the accompanying misdemeanors described in G.S. 7A-271) is entitled to a first appearance. G.S. 15A-601(a). A first appearance usually is held before a district court judge. G.S. 15A-601(a). If the defendant is not released, first appearance before a district court judge must be held within ninety-six hours after the defendant is taken into custody or at the first regular session of the district court in the county, whichever occurs first. G.S. 15A-601(c). If the defendant is not taken into custody or is released within ninety-six hours of being taken into custody, first appearance must be held at the next session of district court held in the county. G.S. 15A-601(c). However, these timing rules do not apply to a defendant whose first appearance before a district court judge has been set by criminal summons. G.S. 15A-601(c). It is important that you set an appropriate court date, in light of these requirements.

Initial appearance for arrests with warrants. You do not need to make a finding of probable cause during an initial appearance for an arrest with a warrant because probable cause already was found when the process was issued. Except for this difference, conduct an initial appearance for an arrest with a warrant just like an initial appearance for a warrantless arrest: notify the defendant of his or her rights, and release the defendant on conditions of pretrial release or, if the defendant is not entitled to conditions of pretrial release, order the defendant to be held in jail.

Initial appearance for paperless arrests. Law enforcement officers may make arrests without having the actual warrant or OFA in hand, provided that they have knowledge that it has been issued and not executed (such as a DCI-PIN message). G.S. 15A-401(a)(2). This bulletin refers to such arrests as “paperless arrests.” When an officer brings a defendant before you on a paperless arrest, do not release the defendant simply because the officer cannot provide the paperwork. Paperless arrests are valid in North Carolina, even for out-of-county process. Also, do not delay the initial appearance until the officer can serve the paperwork on the defendant. You have no authority to delay the initial appearance for this purpose. Note that a faxed copy of criminal process constitutes an original. G.S. 15A-101.1(9)a. Thus an officer can convert a paperless arrest into an arrest with a warrant by obtaining a faxed copy of the original process and serving it on the defendant. Also, note that a printed copy of a document that was created in the AOC Magistrate System or in NCAWARE constitutes an original, and electronic signatures are valid. G.S. 15A-101.1(5) and (9)b; G.S. 15A-301.1(f). Thus, when the warrant was originally created in the AOC Magistrate System or in NCAWARE, a second way to convert a paperless arrest into an arrest with a warrant is to print a signed copy of the warrant from the computer and have it served on the defendant. The following procedure should be followed for an initial appearance following a paperless arrest:

1. Determine whether the warrant or OFA is still outstanding. To do this, you can
 - check with the relevant clerk’s office or law enforcement agency;
 - ask the law enforcement officer to contact DCI (available twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week); or
 - check the AOC Magistrate System, which includes warrants (but not OFAs) from ninety-seven counties, or NCAWARE.
2. If the warrant or OFA is no longer outstanding (e.g., because it has been recalled), let the person go without holding an initial appearance or setting release conditions. Also, notify, or have the law enforcement officer notify, authorities of the erroneous information so that the person will not be rearrested.
3. If the warrant or OFA is valid, investigate appropriate pretrial release conditions and obtain a copy of the original paperwork, if possible, to determine whether any pretrial release conditions were set. Although the initial appearance must be conducted without unnecessary delay, the law allows you time to make a reasonable investigation regarding pretrial release conditions. If the warrant or OFA is from another county, contact the other county to get any pertinent information about the defendant and to get the officer’s and county’s court schedule. Two other ways of getting the officer’s court schedule are to do an Automated Criminal/Infraction System (ACIS) witness search for pending cases or by using the AOC's Web search, "Officer Court Appearance Query," located in the Court Calendars section of the website, www1.aoc.state.nc.us/www/calendars/OfficerQuery.html. Also, notify the officers in that county that processing is underway because they may want to arrange for service of process on the defendant or to pick up the defendant.

4. Do not delay holding the initial appearance because the officers from the other county say they will be coming at some time to get the defendant. Remember that the initial appearance must be held without unnecessary delay. Proceed with the initial appearance unless the officers are from a nearby county and can pick the defendant up quickly for an initial appearance in the originating county.
5. As noted above, you have no authority to hold a defendant for service of criminal process. Also as noted above, a law enforcement officer may validly serve a defendant with a faxed copy of the criminal process or with process created in and printed from the AOC Magistrate System or NCAWARE, provided the process contains an electronic signature. The only time you are authorized to hold a defendant in these circumstances is when a hold has been specifically authorized by a judge. A DCI-PIN message to hold the defendant is insufficient if there is no way to verify that a judge ordered the hold.
6. After completing a reasonable investigation, conduct an initial appearance and set conditions of pretrial release as for an arrest with a warrant. Conditions of pretrial release should be set based on available information. If you have no information about the amount of a bond in an OFA for a FTA, follow the requirements of G.S. 15A-534(d1), discussed on pages 36–37. If the case involves a warrant in the AOC Magistrate System or NCAWARE, generate a release order in that system. As discussed above on pages 17–18, when a defendant is charged with a felony, he or she has right to a first appearance, which sometimes must be held within ninety-six hours. Thus, when handling an out of county warrant, you must obtain accurate court date information from the county in which the charges are pending and assign an appropriate court date, based on the rules for scheduling a first appearance. As noted above, when an officer is the complainant, you can obtain a court date by doing an ACIS witness search for pending cases or by using the AOC's Web search, "Officer Court Appearance Query," located in the Court Calendars section of the website, www1.aoc.state.nc.us/www/calendars/OfficerQuery.html.
7. After concluding the initial appearance for an arrest made pursuant to a warrant or OFA from another county, notify the appropriate authorities of the action, including sending the paperwork to the other county's clerk, and ask the law enforcement officer to provide the information to Division of Criminal Information (DCI). This is particularly important in paperless arrest situations to prevent the person from being rearrested.

Initial Appearance—Implied Consent Cases

G.S. 15A-511 sets out the basic procedure for initial appearances in criminal cases, and its provisions are discussed above. In 2006 the General Assembly enacted several additional statutes that apply to initial appearances for implied consent offenses. S.L. 2006-253, sec. 5. Implied consent offenses are listed in Table 2.

The first of the 2006 statutes, G.S. 20-38.3, provides, in part, that a law enforcement officer must take a person arrested for an implied consent offense to a judicial official for an initial appearance after completing all investigatory procedures, crash reports, chemical analyses, and related procedures specified in the new provision. G.S. 20-38.3. Before this provision was enacted, there was some question as to whether completing these tasks before the initial appearance violated the rule that the initial appearance must be held without unnecessary delay. This statute makes it clear that the officer must complete these tasks before the initial appearance.

The 2006 legislation also enacted G.S. 20-38.4, pertaining to initial appearances in implied consent cases. That statute has four primary provisions. First, it provides that a magistrate may hold an initial appearance anywhere in the county and that a magistrate “shall, to the extent practicable, be available at locations other than the courthouse when it will expedite the initial appearance.” G.S. 20-38.4(a)(1). This provision authorizes you to hold initial appearances at a location other than your office, such as on location when officers are conducting an impaired driving checkpoint operation with a mobile testing unit (sometimes referred to as a “Batmobile”). Of course, the statute only requires magistrates to conduct initial appearances outside of their offices “to the extent practicable.” Some practical issues that might arise include: lack of access to computer systems and records; the ability of the defendant’s witnesses to find and gain access to the remote location (the defendant’s rights in this regard are discussed below); and when the magistrate and law enforcement officers share a space, whether that close proximity unduly undermines the magistrate’s role as a neutral and independent judicial official.

Second, the statute provides that when determining whether there is probable cause to believe a person is impaired, a magistrate may review “all alcohol screening tests, chemical analyses, receive testimony from any law enforcement officer concerning impairment and the circumstances of the arrest, and observe the person arrested.” G.S. 20-38.4(a)(2). This provision appears to simply have codified existing practice. However, prior to 2006, the results of an alcohol screening test could be considered at the probable cause stage. The 2006 legislation changed that, amending G.S. 20-16.3(d) to provide that although a positive or negative result on an alcohol screening test can be considered when determining probable cause, the results of the alcohol screening test (e.g., 0.09) cannot be used for that purpose.

Third, the statute states that if you find probable cause, you must consider whether an impaired driving hold is required. G.S. 20-38.4(a)(3). Before enactment of this provision, some magistrates were not consistently considering impaired driving detentions, out of concern about Knoll motions, or for other reasons. This statute makes clear that you have no choice but to consider such a detention. The procedure for impaired driving detentions and the Knoll case are discussed on pages 25–28.

Fourth, the new statute requires you to (1) inform the defendant in writing of the established procedure to have people appear at the jail to observe the defendant’s condition or to administer an additional chemical analysis if the defendant is unable to make bond and (2) require a defendant unable to make bond to list everyone he or she wishes to contact, along with their telephone numbers, on a form setting forth the procedure for contacting the persons listed; a copy of the form must be filed with the case file. G.S. 20-38.2(a)(4). The 2006 legislation also required each chief district court judge, along with others, to adopt procedures, by December 1, 2006, indicating how family, friends, and specified others can gain access to a defendant who has been arrested for an implied consent offense and is unable to obtain pretrial release from jail. G.S. 20-38.5. New magistrates will need to obtain these written procedures so that they can provide the required notice to implied consent offense defendants as required by the statute. The AOC form on which you certify that the new procedures have been complied with and on which the defendant lists those people who the defendant wishes to contact or appear at jail is AOC-CR-271 (included in Appendix A).

Initial Appearance Procedure—Exceptions

Generally

As noted above, in most cases, you conduct the initial appearance without delay and make a probable cause determination. If probable cause is found, you then inform the defendant of his or her rights and set conditions of pretrial release. This section discusses the exceptions to that general procedure. Unless the case before you fits within one of the exceptions discussed below, you should follow the general procedure, outlined above, for conducting the initial appearance.

Delaying the Initial Appearance

In some situations it is necessary to delay the initial appearance. This section discusses when such a delay is permissible.

Reasonable delay to determine conditions. As noted, the initial appearance must be held without unnecessary delay. Of course, the time it takes you to do a timely and reasonable investigation into the facts relevant to your pretrial release decision is a necessary delay.

DEFENDANTS WHO REFUSE TO IDENTIFY THEMSELVES. Sometimes defendants brought before you for an initial appearance will refuse to identify themselves. Without knowing a defendant's identity, it is almost impossible to determine what conditions of pretrial release should be imposed. You will not be able to determine, among other things, whether the defendant has a record, has previously failed to appear, or what connections the defendant has with the community that are relevant to a risk of flight. When this happens, and there is no written local procedure that applies, you have a couple of options. (Note that if this issue consistently arises in your county and you do not have a written policy addressing it, you may want to ask your chief district court judge for a written policy or other formal advice so that all magistrates respond to this problem in a consistent manner.)

First, it seems reasonable to delay the initial appearance while a law enforcement officer completes an investigation into the defendant's identity. Such an investigation may not be feasible in all cases, particularly when the crime is not a serious one. Note, however, that if a person (1) is charged with an offense involving impaired driving, as defined in G.S. 20-4.01(24a), or driving while license revoked when the revocation is for an impaired driving revocation, as defined in G.S. 20-28.2, and (2) the person cannot be identified by a valid form of identification, then the arresting officer must have the person fingerprinted and photographed. G.S. 15A-502(a2). This requirement does not necessarily result in an identification of the person, but it does impose additional duties on law enforcement. If you delay the initial appearance to allow the officer to investigate and the officer's investigation is unsuccessful or cannot be done quickly, you should consider the other option set out below; you should not allow an indefinite delay of the initial appearance.

A second option for dealing with a defendant who refuses to identify himself or herself is to hold the initial appearance, set conditions in light of the potential flight risk associated with a person who will not identify himself or herself, and include as a condition of pretrial release that either the defendant adequately identify himself or herself or that there is an adequate identification of the defendant. In counties without a written policy or formal advice addressing this procedure, consider contacting a judge before using it.

Note that regardless of which procedure is used, it is probably not permissible and it is not advisable to require a defendant to produce a U.S. government-issued picture identification. Also, any reasonable form of identification may be satisfactory even if the defendant does not have any written form of identification—for example, when a responsible member of the community vouches for the defendant's identity.

Statutory authorization to delay because defendant is unruly, intoxicated, etc. Under G.S. 15A-511(a)(3), you may delay the initial appearance and order a defendant confined without bond for a "reasonable time" if the defendant, when brought before you,

- is so unruly that the defendant disrupts and impedes the proceedings,
- becomes unconscious,
- is grossly intoxicated, or
- is otherwise unable to understand his or her procedural rights (for example, the defendant needs a sign language interpreter).

The purpose of this delay is not to punish the defendant but simply to postpone the process until the defendant can understand his or her rights. The procedure for delaying the initial appearance in these circumstances is as follows:

1. Decide whether to delay before beginning the initial appearance and determining conditions. In some circumstances, however, you might not realize that one of the statutory reasons for delay is at issue until the initial appearance has begun. For example, the defendant may not get unruly until you start the initial appearance. In this situation, stop the proceeding and continue as outlined below in the steps that follow.
2. If the defendant simply is being disruptive and needs to cool off, you can order an officer to place the defendant in a holding cell for a short period of time, such as twenty minutes, or have the officer supervise the defendant on a bench in the magistrate's office, if there is no holding cell.
3. If you order the defendant confined to jail, you must use the Release Order, AOC-CR-200 (included in Appendix A), to do so. Never commit a defendant to jail without a written order.

4. When using the Release Order to commit the defendant to jail, only complete the “Order of Commitment” portion of form. Check only the second box (“hold him/her for the following purpose”). The purpose listed will vary according to the reason that the defendant is confined. If the defendant is simply disruptive, you may direct the jailer to “hold defendant until defendant is calm and agrees not to disrupt the proceedings.” Check regularly with the jailer about the defendant’s condition. If the defendant is grossly intoxicated, direct the jailer to “hold defendant until sober enough to understand rights.” Again, check regularly with the jailer about the defendant’s condition. Do not leave complete discretion with a jailer. Also, put an outer time limit on the confinement. It is your responsibility—not the jailer’s—to determine whether the defendant is ready for his or her initial appearance. Do not complete the upper portion of the Release Order concerning conditions of release. Because the initial appearance is being delayed, conditions should not be determined at this time. If the upper portion of the Release Order is completed, the defendant must be released if he or she satisfies the conditions. G.S. 15A-537. That is true regardless of what directions are given under the Order of Commitment (except for impaired driving detentions under G.S. 15A-534.2, discussed below).
5. A defendant may be brought back before a different magistrate for the initial appearance. The second magistrate is not modifying the first magistrate’s release order, but rather is changing the order of commitment, which is expressly allowed by G.S. 15A-521(b) (order of commitment may be modified “by the same or another judicial official”). Conditions should never have been set, and therefore they are being determined for the first time.
6. After the defendant is returned, conduct the initial appearance and set conditions as usual.

Finally, do not confuse the statutory authorization to delay discussed above—for example, when the defendant is too intoxicated to understand his or her rights—with an impaired driving hold. In the situations addressed in this section, you are delaying the initial appearance because of the defendant’s condition. The impaired driving hold, discussed below, only comes into play once the defendant is sober enough so that you can conduct the initial appearance.

Delaying the Setting of Conditions

As noted above, the general procedure for initial appearances is to conduct the initial appearance without delay, make a probable cause determination and if probable cause is found, inform the defendant of his or her rights and set conditions of pretrial release. This section discusses a second exception to the general procedure: when you hold the initial appearance but delay setting conditions of release. Currently, domestic violence cases are the only situations that fall into this exception. However, effective December 1, 2009, certain probationers also will fall within this exception. Both situations are discussed below.

Forty-eight-hour rule for domestic violence cases. G.S. 15A-534.1 provides that in all cases in which the defendant is charged with an assault on, stalking, communicating a threat to, or committing a felony as provided in G.S. Ch. 14, Art. 7A, 8, 10, or 15 upon a current or former spouse or a person with whom the defendant lives or has lived as if married, with domestic criminal trespass, or with a violation of a 50B order, only a judge can set conditions of pretrial release in the forty-eight-hour period after an arrest. Thus, when a defendant is brought before you for an offense covered by this provision, hold an initial appearance and order the defendant held for the next available session of district or superior court, to have conditions of release determined by a judge. To do this, use the release order form, AOC-CR-200 (included in Appendix A), and check the third box in the Order of Commitment portion of the form that states “Check in all domestic violence cases covered by G.S. 15A-534.1(b).” Then, enter an appropriate date and time as instructed on the form. If a judge does not act within forty-eight hours, the magistrate sets conditions. G.S. 15A-534.1(b). For a helpful chart that lists all offenses covered by the forty-eight-hour rule and clarifies the required relationship between the parties, go to the School of Government’s Web page for magistrates, www.sog.unc.edu/programs/ncmagistrates/index.html, and click on “Domestic Violence: 48-Hour Rule Offense Chart.”

Other domestic violence holds. G.S. 15A-534.1(a)(1) provides another domestic violence hold for defendants who are charged with an assault on, stalking, communicating a threat to, or committing a felony as provided in G.S. Ch. 14, Art. 7A, 8, 10, or 15 upon a current or former spouse or a person with whom the defendant lives or has lived as if married, with domestic criminal trespass, or with a violation of a 50B order. The statute provides that upon a determination that the defendant’s immediate release will pose a danger of injury to the alleged victim or another person or is likely to result in intimidation of the alleged victim and upon a determination that the execution of an appearance bond will not reasonably assure that such injury will not occur, a judicial official may retain the defendant in custody for a reasonable period of time while determining conditions of pretrial release. It is unlikely that you will have an opportunity to apply this provision. Only a judge can set conditions of pretrial release within the first forty-eight hours of the defendant’s arrest; once forty-eight hours has expired, it is unlikely that the circumstances would warrant application of this exception.

Probation cases. DEFENDANT CHARGED WITH A FELONY WHILE ON PROBATION FOR ANOTHER OFFENSE. Effective December 1, 2009, S.L. 2009-412, as amended by S.L. 2009-547, amended G.S. 15A-534 to add a new subsection (d2) providing that when conditions of pretrial release are being determined for a defendant who is charged with a felony while on probation for an earlier offense, you must determine whether the defendant poses a danger to the public (and make a written record of that determination) before imposing conditions of pretrial release. If the defendant does not pose such a danger, he or she is entitled to release as in all cases. If the defendant poses such a danger, you must impose a secured bond or a secured bond with electronic house arrest. However, if there is insufficient information to determine whether the defendant poses a danger, then you must keep the defendant in custody until that determination can be made. If you detain the defendant for this reason, you must make a written record, at the time you detain the defendant, of the following: (1) the fact that the defendant is being held pursuant to G.S. 15A-534(d2); (2) the basis for the decision that additional information is needed to determine whether the defendant poses a danger to the public and the nature of the necessary information; and (3) a date, within ninety-six hours of the time of arrest, when the defendant will be brought before a judge for a first appearance. If the necessary information is provided to the court at any time prior to the first appearance, the first available judicial official must set the conditions of pretrial release. One consequence of this statute is that effective December 1, 2009, every time a defendant is brought before you on a felony charge, you must determine whether the defendant is on probation for an earlier offense. If so, the new statutory procedure must be followed. At the time of publication, the AOC Forms Committee was considering changes to the Release Order, AOC-CR-200, and a new form to accommodate these statutory changes.

PROBATION VIOLATOR WHO HAS A PENDING FELONY OR IS A SEX OFFENDER REQUIRED TO REGISTER. Effective December 1, 2009, G.S. 15A-1345(b1) provides that if a probationer is arrested for violating probation and either (1) has a pending felony charge or (2) has been convicted of an offense that requires registration under the sex offender registration statutes or that would have required registration but for the effective date of the registration program, you must determine whether the probationer poses a danger to the public (and make a written record of that determination) before imposing conditions of release. If the probationer does not pose such a danger, determine the conditions of release as in any other case. If the probationer poses such a danger, he or she must be denied release. If there is insufficient information to determine whether the defendant poses such a danger, then you must detain the defendant in custody for no more than seven days from the date of the arrest to obtain sufficient information to make that determination. If the defendant has been held seven days from the date of arrest and the court has been unable to obtain sufficient information to determine whether the defendant poses a danger to the public, then the defendant must be brought before any judicial official, who must record that fact in writing and must impose conditions of pretrial release. One consequence of this statute is that effective December 1, 2009, every time a person is brought before you for a probation violation, you will need to determine whether he or she has a pending felony charge and whether he or she is or could be subject to the sex offender registration program. If so, the new statutory procedure must be followed. For a list of offenses requiring reporting under the sex offender registration statute, see Table 3. At the time of publication, the AOC Forms Committee was considering changes to the Release Order, AOC-CR-200, and a new form to accommodate these statutory changes.

Delaying Release

As noted above, the general procedure for initial appearances is to conduct the initial appearance without delay, make a probable cause determination and if probable cause is found, inform the defendant of his or her rights, and set conditions of pretrial release. The sections above discussed several exceptions to this general rule. This section discusses another exception: when you hold the initial appearance, set conditions of pretrial release but delay the defendant's release. Only two situations fall within this exception; both are discussed below.

Communicable disease holds. Under G.S. 15A-534.3, if you find probable cause to believe that a person was exposed to the defendant in a manner that poses a significant risk, through a non-sexual contact, of transmission of the AIDS virus or Hepatitis B infection, you must order the defendant detained for a reasonable period, not to exceed twenty-four hours, for investigation by public health officials and testing, if required by those officials under G.S. 130A-144 and -148. To order a hold in these circumstances, use form AOC-CR-270, side two (included in Appendix A).

You can contact a public health official for advice on whether the person was in fact exposed to the defendant in a manner posing a significant risk of transmission when deciding whether probable cause exists to justify detaining the defendant.

Although G.S. 15A-534.3 does not address whether you should set pretrial release conditions that would be applicable after the defendant has been examined by public health officials, it would appear wise to do so. That way, once the public health officials have completed their investigation and testing, the defendant will not have to be brought back again before a magistrate for the setting of pretrial release conditions.

Impaired driving holds. Impaired driving detentions under G.S. 15A-534.2 cause more confusion among magistrates than almost any other area of criminal procedure.

"TRIGGERING" OFFENSES. G.S. 15A-534.2 contains a special detention provision that applies when a magistrate finds probable cause to charge the defendant with one or more of offenses listed in Table 4.

RELEVANT DETERMINATION. An impaired driving detention must be imposed when you find probable cause to charge the defendant with one of the offenses listed in Table 4 and you find, by clear and convincing evidence, that impairment of the defendant's physical or mental faculties

Table 4. Offenses That Can Trigger an Impaired Driving Hold

 4. Any death by vehicle or serious injury by vehicle offense under G.S. 20-141.4, when based on impaired driving or a substantially similar offense under previous law presents a danger, if the defendant is released, of physical injury to himself or herself or others or damage to property. If so, you must order the defendant detained until one of the following events occurs:

- The defendant’s impairment no longer presents a danger of physical injury to himself or herself or others or damage to property; or
- A sober, responsible adult (eighteen years old or older) is willing and able to assume responsibility for the defendant until the defendant’s physical and mental faculties are no longer impaired.

REQUIRED DETERMINATION. The determination under G.S. 15A-534.2 is not optional. G.S. 20-38.4, enacted in 2006, makes clear that once there is a finding of probable cause that the defendant committed a “triggering” offense, you must determine whether an impaired driving detention must be imposed. Before enactment of G.S. 20-38.4, some magistrates reported that impaired driving detentions were not done in their counties out of concern that the underlying criminal case would have to be dismissed on a “Knoll motion.” This concern stemmed from a belief that the North Carolina Supreme Court’s decision in State v. Knoll, 322 N.C. 535 (1988), invalidates a magistrate’s authority to order a detention of impaired drivers under G.S. 15A-534.2. This suggestion, however, is incorrect. Knoll involved situations in which magistrates failed to follow statutory procedures, including failing to advise defendants of their rights and declining to release them to appropriate adults. Cases since Knoll suggest that if you comply with G.S. 15A-534.2, no Knoll violation will be found. In any event G.S. 20-38.4 now makes it clear that you are required to make the impaired driving detention determination. For more information about Knoll and later cases on point, see Shea Riggsbee Denning, “Knoll Motions and Implied Consent Cases,” posted online at www.sog.unc.edu/programs/crimlaw/faculty.htm

NOTIFICATION OF RIGHTS AND LISTING OF PERSONS TO CONTACT. As discussed on pages 19–20, in implied consent cases (note that as indicated by the list of implied consent offenses in Table 2 on page 21, this category of cases includes offenses involving impaired driving subject to G.S. 15A-534.2, as well as other offenses), G.S. 20-38.4 requires you to (1) inform the person in writing of the established procedure to have others appear at the jail to observe the person’s condition or to administer an additional chemical analysis if the person is unable to make bond and (2) require anyone unable to make bond to list everyone he or she wishes to contact, along with their telephone numbers, on a form setting forth the procedure for contacting the persons listed; a copy of the form must be filed with the case file. G.S. 20-38.4(a)(4). Also as noted on page 20, 2006 legislation required each chief district court judge, along with others, to adopt procedures, by December 1, 2006, indicating how family, friends, and specified others can gain access to a defendant who has been arrested for an implied consent offense and is unable to obtain pretrial release from jail. New magistrates will need to obtain these written procedures so that they can provide the required notice to defendants as required by the statute. The AOC form on which you certify that the new procedures have been complied with and on which the defendant lists those people whom the defendant wishes to contact or appear at jail is AOC-CR-271 (included in Appendix A). Use this form any time a defendant charged with an implied consent offense is confined to jail, even if only for a short time.

EFFECT OF THE DETENTION. Once the defendant meets one of the two conditions above (impairment no longer a danger or release to sober, responsible adult), the defendant still must satisfy the conditions of pretrial release (for example, $500 secured bond) before the defendant can be released.

WRITTEN FINDINGS REQUIRED. Whenever you order a defendant detained under G.S. 15A-534.2, you must make written findings to support the detention. 188 N.C. App. 120. Use form AOC-CR-270, side one, (included in Appendix A) to make these findings.

TIMING OF THE DETENTION DECISION. Decide whether or not to detain the defendant under G.S. 15A-534.2 at the time of the initial appearance. If you detain a defendant under G.S. 15A-534.2, you still must determine the conditions of pretrial release.

MAXIMUM PERIOD OF THE DETENTION. A defendant may not be detained under G.S. 15A-534.2 for longer than twenty-four hours, even if he or she never meets one of the two conditions. However, at the end of the twenty-four-hour period, the defendant still must satisfy the conditions of pretrial release before being released. G.S. 15A-534.2(c).

ALCOHOL TESTING. When making the determination whether or not a detained defendant remains impaired, you may request that the defendant take periodic tests to determine his or her alcohol concentration. G.S. 15A-534.2(d). The testing instrument may be an Intoxilyzer or other alcohol testing instrument; it also may be an alcohol screening unit used for roadside checks. G.S. 15A-534.2(d). If the defendant takes a test and the results indicate that his or her alcohol concentration is less than 0.05, unless there is evidence that the defendant is still impaired from a combination of alcohol and drugs, you must determine that the defendant is no longer impaired. G.S. 15A-534.2(d).

RELEASE FROM DETENTION. You must release a defendant from the impaired driving detention if (1) the maximum twenty-four-hour period for the detention has expired (but remember that the defendant still must satisfy any conditions of pretrial release that have been ordered before he or she can be released); (2) the defendant's physical and mental faculties are no longer impaired to the extent that the defendant presents a danger of physical injury to the defendant or others or of damage to property; or (3) if a sober, responsible adult appears and is willing and able to take custody of the defendant until the defendant's physical and mental faculties are no longer impaired so as to present a danger of physical injury to the defendant or others or of damage to property. To release for one of these reasons, use form AOC-CR-270, checking the appropriate box under the section entitled "Release from Detention Order." Note that if the release is to a sober, responsible adult, that person's name should be listed on the form and he or she should sign where indicated. Also note that a release to a sober, responsible adult for this purpose is not the same as a custody release, discussed below.

Denying Release

As noted above, the general procedure for initial appearances is to conduct the initial appearance without delay, make a probable cause determination and if probable cause is found, inform the defendant of his or her rights and set conditions of pretrial release. The sections above discussed various exceptions to this general rule. This section discusses a final exception: when you must deny release and commit the defendant to jail.

Capital offenses. It is within the discretion of a judge (and only a judge) as to whether a defendant charged with a capital offense will be released before trial. G.S. 15A-533(c). Thus, if you find probable cause to charge a defendant with first-degree murder—the only capital offense in North Carolina—you should commit the person to jail for a judge to determine the conditions of release at the first appearance.

Certain fugitives. A fugitive defendant charged in another state with an offense punishable by death or life imprisonment has no right to pretrial release. G.S. 15A-736. Also, a fugitive arrested on a Governor's Warrant has no right to pretrial release. These defendants should be committed to jail without conditions of release being set. For more information on handling fugitives, see "Fugitives," below.

Involuntarily committed defendants charged with crimes. There is no right to pretrial release for a defendant who is alleged to have committed a crime while involuntarily committed or while an escapee from commitment. Such a defendant should be returned to the treatment facility in which he or she was residing at the time of the alleged crime or from which he or she escaped. G.S. 15A-533(a).

Certain drug trafficking offenses. G.S. 15A-533(d) provides that it is presumed (subject to rebuttal by the defendant) that there is no condition of release that will reasonably assure the appearance of the defendant as required and the safety of the community if a judicial official finds

- reasonable cause to believe that the defendant committed a drug-trafficking offense;
- the drug-trafficking offense was committed while the defendant was on pretrial release for another offense; and
- the defendant has been convicted of a Class A through Class E felony or a drug-trafficking offense and not more than five years has passed since the date of conviction or the defendant's release from prison, whichever is later.

If all of these criteria are found, only a district or superior court judge may set pretrial release conditions after finding that there is a reasonable assurance that the defendant will appear and that the release does not pose an unreasonable risk of harm to the community. G.S. 15A-532(d).

Certain gang offenses. G.S. 15A-533(e) provides that it is presumed (subject to rebuttal by the defendant) that no condition of release will reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required and the safety of the community, if a judicial official finds

- reasonable cause to believe that the person committed an offense for the benefit of, at the direction of, or in association with, any criminal street gang, as defined in G.S. 14-50.16;
- the offense was committed while the person was on pretrial release for another offense; and
- the defendant has a previous conviction for a gang offense under G.S. 14-50.16 through -50.20 and not more than five years have passed since the date of conviction or the defendant's release for the offense, whichever is later.

If all of these criteria are found, only a district or superior court judge may set pretrial release conditions after finding that there is a reasonable assurance that the defendant will appear and that the release does not pose an unreasonable risk of harm to the community. G.S. 15A-532(e).

Violators of certain health control measures. G.S. 15A-534.5 provides that if a judicial official conducting an initial appearance finds by clear and convincing evidence that a person arrested for violating an order limiting freedom of movement or access issued pursuant to G.S. 130A-475

(incident involving nuclear, biological, or chemical agents) or G.S. 130A-145 (quarantine and isolation authority) poses a threat to the health and safety of others, the judicial official must deny pretrial release. The judicial official must order that the person be confined in a designated area or facility. This pretrial confinement ends when a judicial official determines that the confined person does not pose a threat to the health and safety of others. The statute requires that these determinations be made in conjunction with recommendation by the state health director or local health director.

Certain methamphetamine offenses. G.S. 15A-534.6 authorizes judicial officials to deny pretrial release for specified methamphetamine offenses under certain conditions. The statute provides that a rebuttable presumption arises that no conditions of release would assure the safety of the community if the State shows, by clear and convincing evidence, that

- the defendant was arrested for a violation of G.S. 90-95(b)(1a) (manufacture of methamphetamine) or G.S. 90-95(d1)(2)b (possession of precursor chemical knowing that it will be used to manufacture methamphetamine), and
- the defendant is dependent on or has a pattern of regular illegal use of methamphetamine and the violation was committed or attempted to maintain or facilitate the defendant's dependence or use.

Military deserters. A military deserter is not entitled to have conditions of pretrial release set by a magistrate. 149 Ga. 139, 99 S.E. 307. The deserter should be committed to the local detention facility without setting conditions of pretrial release. Military authorities should be contacted as soon as possible to take custody of the deserter.

Parole violators. A person taken into custody for a violation of parole or post-release supervision under structured sentencing is not subject to the provisions on pretrial release. G.S. 15A-1368.6 (post-release supervision); G.S. 15A-1376 (parole).

Certain probation violators. As a general rule, when a defendant has been convicted in North Carolina, put on probation, and later arrested for a probation violation that occurs in North Carolina, he or she is entitled to conditions of release. G.S. 15A-1345(b). There are two exceptions to this rule. New G.S. 15A-1345(b1) provides that if a probationer is arrested for violating probation and either (1) has a pending felony charge or (2) has been convicted of an offense that requires registration under the sex offender registration statutes or that would have required registration but for the effective date of the registration program, the judicial official must determine whether the probationer poses a danger to the public before imposing conditions of release and must record that determination in writing. If the judicial official determines that the probationer poses such a danger, the judicial official must deny the probationer release pending the revocation hearing. If the judicial official finds that the defendant does not pose such a danger, the judicial official determines conditions as usual. The procedure for handling the situation where there is insufficient information to make the required determination is discussed above on pages 24–25. The provision in G.S. 15A-1345(b) regarding no release for probation violators subject to sex offender registration who pose a danger is not new. However, it was amended by a 2009 law that enacted the provision regarding no release for probation violators who have a pending felony and pose a danger. S.L. 2009-412. The 2009 legislation is effective December 1, 2009, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date. One consequence of this new provision is that every time a person is brought before you on an arrest for a probation violation, you will need to know whether person has a pending felony charge and whether he or she is or could be subject to the sex offender registration program. To determine whether a probation violator has a pending felony charge, you will have to do a statewide record search. To determine whether a defendant is subject to the sex offender registration program or could be subject to that program but for its effective date, you should:

1. Search the on-line North Carolina Sex Offender Registry, <http://sexoffender.ncdoj.gov/> and click on "Search the Registry." If the probation violator's name appears, he or she is subject to G.S. 15A-1345(b1), as discussed above. If the person's name does not appear, go to step (2).
2. Determine the probation violator's prior convictions. If any one of those prior convictions is included in Table 3 on page 26, apply the provisions on G.S. 15A-1345(b1), as discussed above.

Out-of-state probation violators covered by the Interstate Compact. The general rule that probation violators are entitled to conditions of release does not apply to defendants who are arrested on out-of-state warrants for probation violations when the state that imposed the probation and is now seeking to violate the defendant has a supervision agreement in place with the State of North Carolina pursuant to the Interstate Compact for Adult Offender Supervision. G.S. Chapter 148, Article 4B. Unlike other out-of-state offenders, out-of-state probation violators covered by Interstate Compact supervision agreements are not dealt with through extradition (discussed in "Fugitives," below); rather, the Interstate Compact statutes govern. One of those statutes, G.S. 148-65.8(a) provides that such a defendant may be detained for up to fifteen days and is not entitled to bail pending the required hearing.

Out-of-state warrants for probation violators covered by the Interstate Compact are supposed to go through the North Carolina Compact Administrator, which is part of the DOC Division of Community Corrections. If Interstate Compact offenders are processed in this way, the warrant will come to you with an "Authority to Detain and Hold" form, notifying you that the offender is not entitled to pretrial release. Sometimes, however, the other state fails to go through North Carolina's Compact Administrator. In these instances, it can be difficult for you to determine whether the person is covered by the Interstate Compact. When this happens, you can obtain the relevant information from a probation officer. Another alternative is to go to the DOC website, www.doc.state.nc.us. From there, click on "Offender Search," then click on "Offender Search—Public Information," and then "Search For An Offender." Enter the offender information and the search should indicate, below probation and parole status, whether the offender is subject to the Interstate Compact. If so, immediately contact a local probation officer or the Compact Administrator (Anne Precythe at 919.716.3139 or pal02@doc.state.nc.us).

Other Cases

Magistrates sometimes are asked to deviate from the general procedure for initial appearance—for example, delay the initial appearance or hold the defendant—for reasons other than those listed above. Unless your situation falls within one of the exceptions discussed above, you have no authority to deviate from the general procedure for initial appearances. Some common scenarios that arise are discussed below.

Out-of-county paperwork. As noted on page 18, there is no authority to delay an initial appearance "for out-of-county paperwork."

Arrest without paperwork. As discussed on page 18, paperless arrests are valid and are no impediment to holding the initial appearance and proceeding as usual.

Noncitizens. In recent years a number of issues have arisen about magistrates' authority to hold defendants for a variety of immigration related issues. You have no authority to hold an arrestee simply because he or she is not a United States citizen. Effective January 1, 2008, G.S. 162-62 provides that whenever a person charged with a felony or an impaired driving offense is confined to a jail or a local confinement facility, the person in charge of the facility must attempt to determine if the prisoner is a legal resident of the United States by questioning the person and/or examining documents. If the prisoner's status cannot be determined, the person in charge must, if possible, make an inquiry through the DCI system to the Law Enforcement Support Center of Immigration and Customs Enforcement of the United States Department of Homeland Security. However, the new law imposing these requirements expressly states that it cannot be construed to deny bond to a prisoner or prevent the prisoner from being released from confinement when the prisoner is otherwise eligible for release.

Of course, citizenship status may be relevant in determining conditions of pretrial release, such as when the arrestee has no contacts in the community and was planning on returning to his or her home country shortly, thus creating a flight risk. How such factors play into your determination of the conditions of pretrial release is discussed in the section that follows.

Another immigration issue sometimes arises when the arresting officers tells you that there is an ICE detainer or that ICE is "interested" in the defendant. ICE refers to United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement, a component of the Department of Homeland Security. Although ICE has many functions, one of its responsibilities is detaining and removing non-citizens who are not legally in the country. An ICE detainer refers to a document issued by ICE, frequently to a local jail, asking the jailer to hold a person for up to forty-eight hours so that ICE can take custody of that person. For example, suppose a defendant is in jail on a $5,000 secured bond. Normally, when the defendant is able to make that bond, he or she must be released. However, if an ICE detainer is in place, the jailer will hold the defendant, for up to forty-eight hours after the defendant makes bond so that ICE can take custody.

When an officer brings a defendant to you and an ICE detainer is in place, follow your normal procedure for conducting the initial appearance and setting conditions of pretrial release. There is no special hold to implement, and you are not authorized to hold the defendant. The detainer is in place, and if the defendant meets his or her conditions of pretrial release, the jail will hold the defendant per the detainer. However, the fact that a detainer is in place may affect your decision about appropriate conditions, for example, if the defendant is facing deportation, there may be a flight risk.

Likewise, when an officer brings a defendant to you and informs you that ICE is "interested" or is "investigating whether a detainer should issue," follow your normal procedure for conducting an initial appearance and setting conditions of pretrial release. There is no special hold to implement, and you are not authorized to hold the defendant for this purpose. However, in this situation you may learn of facts that will be relevant to your determination regarding the appropriate conditions of pretrial release.

DCI "No Bond" Message. As discussed on page 19, the fact that a DCI-PIN message says "no bond" is not a basis for denying pretrial release conditions, unless you can verify that it was ordered by a judge.

Probation violation by in-state probationer or "absconder." As discussed on pages 30–31, when a defendant is sentenced to probation by a North Carolina court and is arrested for violating the conditions of probation, the defendant is entitled to condition of release, unless subject to new G.S. 15A-1345(b1), discussed above.

Determining the Conditions of Pretrial Release

Right to Conditions

Unless the defendant falls within one of the categories listed in the section above requiring that you deny conditions, the defendant is entitled to pretrial release.

Pretrial Release Options

G.S. 15A-534 provides that in determining conditions of pretrial release, a judicial official must impose at least one of the following five conditions:

1. Release on written promise to appear. This release involves no money. The defendant simply is released on his or her written promise to appear in court.
2. Custody release. A custody release is a release to a designated person or organization that agrees to supervise the defendant. Like a release on a written promise to appear, no money is involved. Note that G.S. 15A-534(a) provides that if this condition is imposed, the defendant may elect to execute a secured appearance bond instead.
3. Release on unsecured appearance bond. An unsecured bond is one that is backed only by the integrity of the defendant; it is not backed by assets or collateral.
4. Release on secured appearance bond. A secured appearance bond is one that is backed by a cash deposit in the full amount of the bond, by a mortgage, or by at least one solvent surety.
5. House arrest with electronic monitoring. This condition may be imposed effective December 1, 2009, for offenses committed on or after that date. S.L. 2009-547. If this condition is imposed, you also must impose a secured appearance bond. S.L. 2009-547. It is not yet clear how this condition will be implemented or which jurisdictions are equipped to implement it. Because imposing this condition in the absence of available equipment will result in a hold, if your county lacks the available equipment or does not have a device immediately available for the defendant involved, you should check with your chief district court judge before imposing this condition.

Deciding Which Pretrial Release Options to Impose

Local procedure. When setting conditions of pretrial release, you need to know and follow the written pretrial release policy issued by your senior resident superior court judge. Note that G.S. 15A-535 provides that the senior resident superior court judge must create and issue recommended pretrial release policies. If you have not seen your local policy, ask for it.

Purpose of conditions of pretrial release. The purpose of conditions of pretrial release is to make sure that the defendant appears in court when required and does no harm while on release. Keep these purposes in mind when deciding which conditions to impose.

Special considerations regarding secured bonds and house arrest with electronic monitoring. IMPOSE A SECURED BOND ONLY AFTER REJECTING OTHER OPTIONS. G.S. 15A-534(b) provides that you must impose a release on written promise to appear, a release on an unsecured appearance bond, or a custody release unless you determine that

- those forms of release will not reasonably assure the defendant's appearance;
- release under those conditions will pose danger of injury to any person; or
- release under those conditions is likely to result in the destruction of evidence, intimidation of witnesses, or subornation of perjury.

MAKE WRITTEN FINDINGS IF REQUIRED BY LOCAL POLICY. G.S. 15A-534(b) provides that when imposing a secured bond or house arrest with electronic monitoring, you must record, in writing, the reasons for doing so if required by your local policy on pretrial release issued by your senior resident superior court judge.

SPECIFYING "CASH" OR "GREEN MONEY ONLY" SECURED BOND. G.S. 15A-534 suggests that when you designate a secured bond as the condition of release, you may not also dictate which type of secured bond a defendant may post. Therefore, even if you see that a judge has set a cash bond or a "green money only" bond on one or more occasions, do not assume that you have authority to specify a cash bond. On this issue you should consult the written bond policy issued by your senior resident superior court judge. If no written policy is available or if the policy does not address this issue, seek advice from your senior resident superior court judge or chief district court judge before setting a cash bond. Cash bonds are discussed on pages 39–40. As discussed there, even if a cash bond is set, G.S. 15A-531(4) provides that a cash bond may be satisfied by the posting of a secured bond by a "bail agent" (also known as a surety bondsman) in all cases except child support contempt proceedings.

Factors to consider. G.S. 15A-534(c) provides that in determining which conditions of release to impose, you must take into account

- the nature and circumstances of the offense charged;
- the weight of the evidence against the defendant;
- the defendant's family ties, employment, financial resources, character, and mental condition;
- whether the defendant is intoxicated to such a degree that he or she would be endangered by being released without supervision;
- the length of the defendant's residence in the community;
- the defendant's record of convictions;
- the defendant's history of flight to avoid prosecution or failure to appear at court proceedings; and
- any other evidence relevant to the issue of pretrial release.

Evidence to consider. G.S. 15A-534(g) provides that when imposing conditions of pretrial release, you must take into account all available evidence that you consider reliable. You are not bound by the rules of evidence when making this determination. G.S. 15A-534(g).

Restrictions

G.S. 15A-534(a) authorizes magistrates to impose restrictions on travel, association, conduct, or place of abode. You are allowed to impose these restrictions no matter what type of pretrial release condition you set. Any restrictions imposed should be reasonable and related to the purpose of pretrial release. Restrictions should not be used as punishment. The restrictions should relate to reasons listed under G.S. 15A-534(b):

- Assurance of defendant's appearance (travel)
- Danger of injury (conduct/association)
- Destruction of evidence (conduct/travel/association)
- Intimidation of witnesses (conduct/association)

Special Cases

As a general rule, and subject to your local bond policy, the law gives magistrates a great deal of discretion to determine the appropriate conditions of pretrial release. In some situations, however, the law or a judge requires you to impose certain conditions, forbids you from imposing certain conditions, or allows you to consider special conditions. This section discusses those special cases.

Infractions. As a general rule, any person who is not a North Carolina resident and who is charged with an infraction may be required to post a bond to secure his or her appearance in court. G.S. 15A-1113. The charging officer may require the person to accompany the officer to the magistrate's office to determine if a bond is necessary to secure the person's court appearance, and if so, what kind of bond is to be used. G.S. 15A-1113(c). However, if you find that the person is unable to post a secured bond, you must allow the person to be released by executing an unsecured bond. G.S. 15A-1113(c).

There are several exceptions to this rule. First, as suggested by the rule itself, a North Carolina resident who is charged with an infraction cannot be required to post bond. Second, a person charged with an infraction cannot be required to post an appearance bond if the person is licensed to drive by a state that is a member of the motor vehicle nonresident violator compact, the charged infraction is subject to the compact, and the person executes a personal recognizance required by the compact. G.S. 15A-1113. Third, certain individuals charged with infractions that are subject to the Wildlife Violator Compact cannot be required to post a bond. G.S. 113-300.6.

Probationer charged with a felony. Effective December 1, 2009, S.L. 2009-412 amended G.S. 15A-534 to add a new subsection (d2) providing that when you are determining conditions of pretrial release for a defendant who is charged with a felony while he or she was on probation for an earlier offense, you must determine whether the defendant poses a danger to the public before imposing conditions of pretrial release and must record that determination in writing. If you determine that the defendant poses a danger to the public, the new law requires you to impose a secured bond. As noted above, if you find that the defendant does not pose a danger to the public, impose conditions as usual. The procedure for handling these defendants when the information is insufficient to make the required determination is discussed above in the section on delaying setting conditions.

Domestic violence cases. G.S. 15A-534.1(a)(2) sets out special restrictions that may be imposed on a defendant who is charged with specified crimes of domestic violence or with a violation of a civil domestic protective order. They include that the defendant

- stay away from the home, school, business, or place of employment of the alleged victim;
- refrain from assaulting, beating, molesting, or wounding the alleged victim;
- refrain from removing, damaging, or injuring specifically identified property;
- may visit his or her child or children at times and places provided by the terms of any existing order entered by a judge.

Use form AOC-CR-630 (included in Appendix A) to impose these restrictions.

G.S. 15A-401(b)(2)f provides that a law enforcement officer may arrest a person without an arrest warrant if the person has violated pretrial release conditions imposed under G.S. 15A-534.1(a)(2). Upon making such an arrest, the law enforcement officer must take the person without unnecessary delay to a magistrate and the magistrate has the responsibility of setting new pretrial release conditions. If the defendant also is charged with a new domestic violence offense subject to G.S. 15A-534.1, the forty-eight-hour rule applies to the new offense.

Certain cases involving child victims. G.S. 15A-534.4 sets out specific conditions that must be imposed on a defendant who is charged with certain sex offenses or crimes of violence against child victims listed in Table 5. If the defendant is charged with one of those crimes, you must impose conditions that the defendant (1) stay away from the victim's home, temporary residence, school, business, or place of employment; (2) refrain from communicating or attempting to communicate with the victim, except as specified in an order entered by a judge with knowledge of the pending charges; and (3) refrain from assaulting, beating, intimidating, stalking, threatening, or harming the alleged victim. However, upon request of the defendant, you may waive one or both of conditions (1) and (2), if you make written findings of fact that it is not in the best interest of the alleged victim that the condition be imposed. Use form AOC-CR-631 (included in Appendix A) for these cases.

Prior failures to appear and bond doubling. Special provisions apply when a defendant has been surrendered by a surety after a FTA or arrested on an OFA after a FTA.

ARREST ON AN OFA AFTER A FTA. When a defendant is arrested on an OFA after a FTA, follow these steps:

1. Check for prior surrender. Determine whether the defendant already has been surrendered by a surety for the same FTA. If so, and a new release order has been entered and a new bond set, re-release the defendant on the bond already posted and attempt to have the OFA recalled. If the defendant has not already been surrendered by a surety for the same FTA, set conditions of release as described directly below.
2. Setting conditions of release. Begin by examining the OFA. If the OFA recommends any conditions, impose them. G.S. 15A-534(d1). If the OFA says nothing about the conditions of release, find out what conditions were set in the prior release order. If a secured or unsecured bond was set in the prior release order, require a secured bond in at least twice that amount. G.S. 15A-534(d1). If a written promise to appear or custody release was set in the prior release order, require a secured bond of at least $500.00. G.S. 15A-534(d1). You also must impose restrictions on the defendant's travel, associations, conduct, or place of abode to assure that the defendant will not fail to appear again. G.S. 15A-534(d1). Be sure to check the box on the release order indicating that the defendant was arrested after failing to appear as required by a prior release order. If it is the defendant's second or subsequent FTA in the case, you must check the box indicating that on the release order. S.L. 2009-437, sec. 2.

SURRENDER AFTER A FTA. When a defendant is surrendered by a surety after a FTA, follow these steps:

1. Check for prior arrest. Determine whether the defendant already has been arrested by a law enforcement officer for the same FTA. If so, and a new release order has been entered and new bond posted, simply re-release the defendant on the bond already posted. If the defendant has not already been arrested, try to recall any outstanding OFA so that the defendant will not be rearrested for the same FTA. Then, set conditions of release as described in step 2.
2. Setting conditions of release. Obtain the certified copy of the bond that was provided to the jailer by the surety when the defendant was surrendered. Require a secured bond in at least twice that amount. G.S. 15A-534(d1). Be sure to check the box on the release order indicating that the defendant surrendered after failing to appear as required by a prior release order. If it is the defendant's second or subsequent FTA in the case, you must check the box indicating that on the release order. S.L. 2009-437, sec. 2.

Order of a judge. If the judge has ordered that certain conditions of pretrial release be imposed—for example in an OFA—impose those conditions as ordered.

Modification of Conditions

G.S. 15A-534(e) permits a magistrate to modify his or her pretrial release order at any time before the first appearance before a district court judge. If you believe that there are compelling reasons to modify another magistrate's pretrial release order, consult with the other magistrate before making the modification, if possible.

Term of the Bond

A defendant is covered by a bond until judgment is entered in district court from which no appeal is taken, or until judgment is entered in superior court. G.S. 15A-534(h). However, the bond ends earlier if: (1) a judge releases the obligor from the bond; (2) the defendant is properly surrendered by a surety; (3) the proceeding is terminated by voluntary dismissal by the state before forfeiture is ordered; or (4) an indefinite prayer for judgment continued has been entered in district court. G.S. 15A-534(h).

AOC Forms

Form AOC-CR-200 (included in Appendix A) must be completed every time you determine whether conditions of release are warranted and what conditions will be imposed. This section discusses how to use that form.

Upper portion of form. In the upper portion of the form, fill in basic information such as the file number, county, and name and address of the defendant. If a bond is imposed, list the amount of the bond there as well.

Defendant not entitled to release. If the defendant's release is not authorized (for example, in a capital case), check the box that says "Your release is not authorized," order the person's commitment on the appropriate portion of the form, and sign and date the form.

Custody release or written promise to appear. When ordering a custody release or a release on a written promise to appear, check the box for “Custody Release” or “Written Promise,” ensure that the relevant information in the section of the form entitled “Written Promise to Appear or Custody Release,” is completed, and sign and date the form. Note that a release of a defendant held on an impaired driving detention to a sober, responsible adult, see pages 25–28, is not a custody release.

Unsecured or secured bond. When ordering an unsecured or secured bond, check the appropriate box for “Secured Bond” or “Unsecured Bond” and sign and date the form. To take a bond, form AOC-CR-201 (included in Appendix A) also must be completed. To take an unsecured bond, check the box on AOC-CR-201 for “Unsecured Appearance Bond,” sign and date the form, and make sure the defendant signs the form. Instructions for taking a secured bond are provided below.

FTA boxes. When a defendant has been arrested by a law enforcement officer or surrendered by a surety after a FTA, check the box on form AOC-CR-200 that states, “The defendant was arrested after failing to appear as required under a prior release order.” G.S. 15A-534(d1). If the defendant has had any other FTAs in the case, check the box noting that this was the defendant’s second or subsequent FTA. G.S. 15A-534(d1). Be sure to follow the bond doubling procedures described above on pages 36–37.

Impaired driving or communicable disease detention. Impaired driving and communicable disease detentions are discussed above on pages 25–28. If such a detention has been imposed, check the box that says that the defendant’s release is not authorized until the detention is complete. Checking this box will help to ensure that a defendant is not mistakenly released when he or she satisfies a condition of release (for example, by putting down cash on a bond) and a detention is not yet complete.

Restrictions. Any restrictions that are imposed should be listed in the space designated on the form.

Additional information. The form contains a box for additional information. Most commonly, this box is used to specify that a secured bond must be satisfied by cash only. Your authority to set a cash bond is discussed on page 34. If you have been authorized to impose a cash bond and deem a cash bond appropriate, check the box for “Secured Bond” and write “Cash Bond” in the additional information box.

Taking Bonds

Generally

When you have set a written promise to appear or a custody release as the condition of pretrial release, the only paperwork needed to effect the release is the Conditions of Release and Release Order (AOC-CR-200, included in Appendix A). However, when a bond is set—whether secured or unsecured—an appearance bond is required. This section discusses how to take bonds and ensure that an appearance bond is properly executed. For more information on all of the topics discussed below, see the paper, “Taking Bail Bonds,” at www.sog.unc.edu/programs/ncmagistrates/2009AdvCrimProcedure_001.html, by Troy Page of the AOC.

Local Procedure

Many of the legal issues discussed in this section have not been decided by the North Carolina appellate courts. You should follow local procedures adopted by your senior resident superior court judge and the advice of your chief district court judge or senior resident superior court judge when those procedures and advice differ from statements in this section.

AOC Form

The form for taking bonds is AOC-CR-201. Form AOC-CR-201A is used when more space is needed to list multiple sureties. Both forms are included in Appendix A.

Unsecured Bonds—Described

An unsecured bond essentially is a promise by the defendant to forfeit the amount of the bond if the defendant fails to appear as required. In an unsecured bond, the defendant's promise is not backed by money or property. Although a defendant does not appear to have to satisfy any requirements regarding solvency for an unsecured appearance bond, the defendant does have to sign the appearance bond form to make it a valid contract.

Secured Bonds—Described

A secured bond essentially is a promise by the defendant or a surety to forfeit the amount of the bond if the defendant fails to appear as required. Unlike an unsecured bond, a secured bond is backed by money or other property. Because taking a secured bond is more complicated than taking an unsecured bond, the rest of this section focuses on taking secured bonds.

Types of Secured Bonds

G.S. 15A-534(a)(4) provides that there are three ways to secure a bond:

- A cash deposit in the full amount of the bond
- A mortgage pursuant to G.S. 58-74-5
- At least one solvent surety

Each of these ways of securing a bond is discussed below.

When Cash Secures the Bond

Full amount of the bond. G.S. 15A-534(a)(4) provides that a bond may be secured by a cash deposit in the “full amount of the bond.” Thus, when cash is provided, it must be for the total amount of the bond.

When “cash” means cash. G.S. 15A-531(4) provides that a cash bond may be satisfied by the posting of a secured bond by a “bail agent” (also known as a surety bondsman) in all cases except child support contempt proceedings. A bail agent is a surety bondsman acting as an agent for an insurance company. A “professional bondsman” is not a bail agent (surety bondsman), and therefore a professional bondsman may not post a secured bond when a cash bond is required.

Taking a cash bond. The procedure for taking a cash bond varies, depending on who is providing the cash. To take a cash bond when the defendant tenders the cash, form AOC-CR-201 should be completed as follows:

- Fill in the top portion of the form.
- Check the box for “Cash Appearance Bond.”
- Swear the defendant, have the defendant sign the bond, and complete the section entitled “Sworn and Subscribed Before Me.”
- Complete the section entitled “Complete if Cash Deposited.”
- Issue a receipt to the defendant.

When another person tenders cash to satisfy the bond, clarify that person's intentions about the use of the cash upon disposition of the charges. Specifically, determine whether the person intends the cash to be available to satisfy the defendant's obligations (for example, fine and costs) if the defendant is convicted or found in contempt. If the person intends the cash to be available to satisfy the defendant's obligations (or to be given to the defendant if there are no obligations to be satisfied), it is as if the person has given the cash to the defendant. Thus AOC-CR-201 should be completed as if the defendant personally tendered the cash. If the person expects to get the cash back even if the defendant is convicted or found in contempt (that is, the person is offering his or her cash for the limited purpose of securing the bond), AOC-CR-201 should be completed as follows:

- Fill in the top portion of the form.
- Have the defendant sign the bond.
- Check the box for "Surety Appearance Bond" and check the box below that option for "Cash Deposited by Surety."
- Under "Accommodation Bondsman" enter the information about the person tendering the cash and have that person sign as an accommodation bondsman.
- Swear that person and complete the section entitled "Sworn and Subscribed Before Me."
- Complete the section entitled "Complete if Cash Deposited."
- Issue a receipt to the person depositing the cash.

Cash bonds greater than $10,000. Special reporting requirements apply when you receive cash in excess of $10,000 to satisfy an appearance bond. Willful failure to file the required reporting form for a qualifying transaction is a felony. 26 U.S.C. § 7203. For more information on these reporting requirements, see the AOC paper, "Taking Bail Bonds," at www.sog.unc.edu/programs/ncmagistrates/2009AdvCrimProcedure_001.html.

Accepting cash. Although many sheriffs and chief jailers may have a policy against it, G.S. 15A-537 permits jailers to release a defendant if a judicial official is not available. This statute can be interpreted to mean that jailers may accept cash. However, the "Notes on Cash Bonds" on form AOC-CR-201, side two, indicates that jailers may not take cash bonds. Any cash collected by sheriffs and jailers should be deposited with the clerk's office.

When a Mortgage Secures the Bond

Generally. As noted above, a bond may be secured with a mortgage pursuant to G.S. 58-74-5. Specifically, a person can secure a bond by executing a mortgage on real or personal property that has a value that can cover the bond, payable to the state of N.C., conditioned with power of sale to be executed by the clerk upon a breach. G.S. 58-74-5. For more detailed information about taking mortgage bonds, see the AOC paper, "Taking Bail Bonds," noted above.

When a Surety Secures a Bond

Types of sureties. There are four types of sureties:

- An accommodation bondsman
- A professional bondsman or his or her runner
- An insurance company, acting through a bail agent (surety bondsman)
- A motor club

Each surety is discussed in more detail in the sections that follow.

Persons prohibited from serving as surety. G.S. 15A-541(a) prohibits the following types of people (or their spouses) from serving as a surety for anyone other than an immediate family member: sheriff, deputy sheriff, law enforcement officer, judicial official, attorney, parole officer, probation officer, jailer, assistant jailer, employee of the General Court of Justice, or other public employee assigned to duties relating to the administration of criminal justice. These people also are prohibited from having an interest in the financial affairs of any firm or corporation whose principal business is acting as bondsman. G.S. 15A-541(a). Violation of these provisions is a Class 2 misdemeanor. G.S. 15A-541(b).

Accommodation or “property” bonds. LOCAL POLICIES. Some counties have specific accommodation bond policies that magistrates must follow (for example, no accommodation bonds in the amount of $5,000 or more may be accepted without a deed of trust). Make sure that you know your local policy.

ACCOMMODATION BONDSMAN DEFINED. An accommodation bondsman must

- be a natural person;
- be eighteen-years-old or older;
- be a resident of North Carolina;
- receive no consideration (for example, money or other valuables) for acting as a surety;
- endorse the bond; and
- provide satisfactory evidence of ownership, value, and marketability of real or personal property that is sufficient to fully satisfy the bond in the event of breach.

G.S. 15A-531; G.S. 58-71-1(1).

TAKING AN ACCOMMODATION BOND. To take an accommodation bond, complete form AOC-CR-201 as follows:

- Fill in the top portion of the form.
- Check the box for “Surety Appearance Bond.”
- Have the defendant sign the bond.
- Complete the sections under “Accommodation Bondsman.”
- Swear the person and complete the section entitled “Sworn and Subscribed Before Me.”

If there are more than two accommodation bondsmen, use form AOC-CR-201A to list the additional names. When using this form, remember to check the box on AOC-CR-201, indicating that there are additional accommodation bondsmen. If the property pledged is owned by spouses as tenants in the entirety, both spouses must sign the bond.

The person wanting to be a surety must be placed under oath and you must determine that the person satisfies the requirements for an accommodation bondsman, including that the person has sufficient assets (real or personal) to cover the bond above liabilities and exemptions. The amount of assets must be over and above the homestead exemption in land of $1,000 in real property and the personal property exemption of $500. N.C. CONST. Art. X, sec. 1–2.

Sources that may be consulted in determining whether to accept real property for the bond include the following:

- Tax office (ownership of real property and appraised value of real property)
- Register of deeds office (deeds of trust and mortgages on real property)
- Clerk’s office (outstanding judgments docketed against the person who wants to be a surety)
- Surety (ask the person who wants to be a surety about outstanding debts)
- Third person (third party you trust vouches that the surety has sufficient assets)

The misdemeanor of false qualification occurs if the surety signs and knows or reasonably should know that there is insufficient property over and above his or her exemption. G.S. 15A-542.

SPECIAL ISSUES REGARDING ACCOMMODATION BONDS. Some special rules apply to accommodation bonds. First, a defendant may not sign his or her own accommodation bond. The surety must be someone who is liable in addition to a defendant (although a defendant can post his or her own cash for a cash bond or execute a mortgage on his or her property under G.S. 58-74-5 for a mortgage bond). The definition of “surety” in G.S. 58-71-1(10) states that a surety is one, who with the defendant, is liable for the amount of the bail bond when it is forfeited.

Second, a defendant’s spouse may be a surety only if the property is in the spouse’s own name (and not jointly owned). The reason is that G.S. 58-71-1(1) requires that the surety be personally solvent for the amount of the bond. The bond should be separate from and in addition to the defendant’s obligation. It is intended as an additional security.

Professional bondsman. DEFINED. A professional bondsman is a person who

- is approved and licensed by the Commissioner of Insurance;
- pledges cash or approved securities with the Commissioner as security for bail bonds; and
- receives or is promised money or other things of value for writing the bond.

G.S. 15A-531(7); G.S. 58-71-1(8).

RUNNERS. A professional bondsman may employ “runners” who are agents of the bondsman for purposes of executing bail bonds and other functions. G.S. 58-71-1(9).

TAKING A PROFESSIONAL BONDSMAN BOND. When taking a bond that is secured by a professional bondsman, begin by checking the Surety Report (available online at www.nccourts.org/Courts/OCO/Magistrates/Bondsman/) to confirm that the surety is authorized to execute bonds in the charging county. If so, complete form AOC-CR-201 as follows:

- Fill in the top portion of the form.
- Check the box for “Surety Appearance Bond.”
- Check the next box, which indicates that the affidavit is complete and true.
- Have the defendant sign the bond.
- Make sure the name and license of the professional bondsman or runner is provided under the section entitled “Professional Bondsman” on the front of the form.
- Make sure that the professional bondsman or the runner completes the affidavit on the back of the bond.
- Verify that the professional bondsman or his or her runner attach a stamp to the back of bond.
- Swear the bondsman or his or her runner regarding the truth of the statements in the bond, have the person sign the bond, then complete the portion designated “Sworn and Subscribed Before Me.”

Insurance company acting through a bail agent (surety bondsman). DEFINED. A bail agent (surety bondsman) is a person who

- is licensed by the Commissioner of Insurance as a surety bondsman;
- is appointed by an insurer by power of attorney to execute or countersign bail bonds for the insurer; and
- receives or is promised money or other things of value for writing the bond.

G.S. 15A-531(3); G.S. 58-71-1(11).

INSURANCE COMPANY IS SURETY. The bail agent (surety bondsman) is an agent for the insurance company, which is the surety.

RUNNERS CANNOT SIGN. Although a runner may sign a bond for a professional bondsman, only a bail agent (surety bondsman) may sign for the insurance company. The bail agent (surety bondsman) cannot have a runner sign the bond.

Example: A professional bondsman has a runner. The bondsman is also a bail agent (surety bondsman). The bondsman wants to post a $10,000 appearance bond. If the bond is executed on behalf of the insurance company, the runner cannot sign the bond. If the bond is executed on behalf of the professional bondsman, the runner can sign the bond.

TAKING A BAIL AGENT (SURETY BONDSMAN) BOND. To take a bond secured by a bail agent (surety bondsman) begin by checking the Surety Report (available online at www.nccourts.org/Courts/OCO/Magistrates/Bondsman/) to confirm that the surety is authorized to execute bonds in the charging county. If so, complete form AOC-CR-201 as follows:

- Fill in the top portion of the form.
- Check the box for “Surety Appearance Bond.”
- Check the next box, which indicates that the affidavit is complete and true.
- Have the defendant sign the bond.
- Make sure the portion of the form designated “Insurance Company” on the front of the form is completed.
- Make sure that the bail agent (surety bondsman) completes the affidavit on the back of the bond.
- Verify that the bail agent (surety bondsman) has affixed to the bond one of the individual powers of attorney given to him or her by the insurer.
- Swear the bail agent (surety bondsman) regarding the truth of the statements in the bond, have the bail agent (surety bondsman) sign the bond, and then complete the portion designated “Sworn and Subscribed to Before Me.”

NOTE ON POWERS OF ATTORNEY. The insurance company gives the bail agent (surety bondsman) two different kinds of powers of attorney. One power is the authorization for the bail agent (surety bondsman) to act as surety for the company and gives the total amount of money for which the agent (surety bondsman) is entitled to bind the insurance company. This power of attorney is registered with the license. The insurance company also gives the bail agent (surety bondsman) several individual powers of attorney, usually sequentially numbered. One of the individual powers of attorney must be attached to a bond signed by the bail agent (surety bondsman) on behalf of the insurance company. These powers are usually for less than the total amount of bonds that can be written and constitute the maximum amount for which one bond can be written.

Many powers of attorney provide that a bail agent (surety bondsman) may not stack powers of attorney.

Example: An insurance company gives a bail agent (surety bondsman) a power of attorney to write bonds for a total amount of $100,000 and gives the bail agent (surety bondsman) separately numbered powers of attorney to attach to each bond written with a face amount of $20,000, each providing that the power of attorney is “void if used with other powers.” The defendant is placed under a $60,000 bond. The bail agent (surety bondsman) may not attach three powers of attorney and write a $60,000 bond (called “stacking”) for one defendant because the insurance company has limited the authority of the agent in one bond to the amount in the individual, numbered power of attorney. A bail agent (surety bondsman) who is the agent for three different insurance companies may not put up $20,000 from each company.

Motor club bail bond. DEFINED. Some motor clubs provide bonds guaranteed by a surety for motor vehicle offenses. G.S. 58-69-2(3).

MUST BE ACCEPTED. Subject to exceptions, you must accept a guaranteed arrest bond certificate in place of cash bail or other bond in an amount not exceeding $1,500 for any motor vehicle offense. G.S. 58-69-55. The two exceptions are that the arrest bond certificate cannot be accepted for an impaired driving offense or a felony offense. G.S. 58-69-55.

VARIATIONS IN COVERAGE. When taking a motor club bail bond, read the motor club card carefully and check the expiration date. Some cards require that the court appearance rather than the date of taking the bond must occur before the expiration. The card must indicate that a surety company guarantees the defendant's appearance. Also, the card sometimes specifies offenses to which it will or will not apply and will indicate the maximum amount of a bond that will be guaranteed, which may be less than $1,500.

Example: A card may specify: "The General Insurance Co. of America (GICA) guarantees the appearance of the AAA member named on this card in any court up to the card's expiration date. The card can be accepted against an arrest bond up to $1,000 or to secure a bail bond up to $5,000 from GICA for any motor vehicle law violation except violations involving driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, drugs or narcotics, failure to appear for violations, driving on a suspended/revoked driver's license, hit and run, failure to present evidence of insurance, illegal use or falsification of license or registration, engaging in a felony, attempting to elude/eluding police, or while driving a vehicle used for commercial purposes."

TAKING A MOTOR CLUB BAIL BOND. For instructions on taking a motor club bail bond, see the AOC paper, "Taking Bail Bonds," at www.sog.unc.edu/programs/ncmagistrates/2009AdvCrimProcedure_001.html.

Wrapping

Some counties allow wrapping of bonds—that is, the bundling of multiple offenses into one bond. Consult the written bond policies in your county to determine whether wrapping is allowed in your jurisdiction.

Splitting

The general rule is that when multiple sureties sign a bond, they are jointly and severally liable on the bond. G.S. 15A-544.3(a); -544.7(a). That means that the full amount of the bond can be collected from each surety. Splitting of the bond refers to a practice where multiple sureties divide up the bond, agreeing to be liable for only a portion of it; for example, for a $1,000 bond, sureties A and B agree to be liable for $500 each. It is not clear whether splitting of a bond is permissible. Therefore, you should allow splitting only if permitted by the written bond policy issued by your senior resident superior court judge.

Surrender of Defendant by Surety

Surety's Authority to Arrest

A surety (and a runner for a bail bondsman) may arrest a defendant for purpose of surrender. G.S. 15A-540; G.S. 58-71-30.

Although G.S. 58-71-30 permits you to issue an OFA for a defendant when a surety makes a written request on a certified copy of the bond, do not do so without consulting with your chief district court judge or senior resident superior court judge. It ordinarily would not be a good practice to issue an OFA under such circumstances; this is additionally true as G.S. 58-

71-30 may conflict with G.S. 15A-305, which only authorizes the issuance of an OFA on certain grounds. Note that G.S. 58-71-195 provides that if there is a conflict between the provisions of G.S. Ch. 58 and G.S. Ch. 15A, the provisions of G.S. Ch. 15A govern.

Surrender

Surrender after breach. After a breach of conditions of a bail bond, a surety (and a runner for a bail bondsman) may surrender the defendant to the sheriff of the county where the defendant is bonded to appear for trial or to the sheriff of the county where the defendant was bonded. G.S. 15A-540(b). Alternatively, a surety may surrender a defendant who is already in the custody of any sheriff in the state by appearing in person and informing the sheriff that the surety wishes to surrender the defendant. G.S. 15A-540(b). Before surrendering a defendant to a sheriff, the surety must provide the sheriff with a certified copy of the bail bond. G.S. 15A-540(b). Upon surrender of the defendant, the sheriff must provide the surety with a receipt. G.S. 15A-540(b).

When a defendant is surrendered after a breach, the sheriff must take the defendant, without unnecessary delay, before a judicial official for new conditions of pretrial release. G.S. 15A-540(c).

Surrender before breach. Before a breach of conditions of a bail bond, a surety may surrender a defendant to the sheriff of the county where the defendant is bonded to appear or to the sheriff where the defendant was bonded. G.S. 15A-540(a); G.S. 58-71-20. When the surrender is made before a breach, new conditions of pretrial release should not be set. In this case, the defendant remains in custody until the conditions of the original release order are satisfied.

AOC Form

The form to be used when the surety surrenders the defendant is AOC-CR-214 (included in Appendix A).

Fugitives

Extradition is the procedure by which a person who has committed a crime in one state, escaped from prison in one state, or violated probation or parole imposed by one state and has fled to another state is returned to the first state. For more information about extradition, see STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA EXTRADITION MANUAL (2d ed. 1987), from which most of the text in this section is drawn directly. Note that separate procedures apply to defendants who violate probation imposed by another state and are in North Carolina pursuant to a supervision agreement under the Interstate Compact for Adult Supervision (Interstate Compact). In those cases, the Interstate Compact rules, discussed on page 31, apply. When a defendant has violated probation imposed by another state and is found in North Carolina with no Interstate Compact supervision agreement in place, extradition rules govern the process for returning the defendant to the other state.

Most commonly, magistrates will deal with fugitives from other states who are found in North Carolina. Consider the case of a person who committed a crime—say, armed robbery—in Ohio and fled to North Carolina. Probably the person already has been charged formally in Ohio, either by indictment or by an arrest warrant. When he or she is discovered in North Carolina, the person may be arrested by a North Carolina officer, either with or without an arrest warrant from a North Carolina magistrate. The sections below discuss the procedures that apply in these circumstances. See page 49 for a discussion of your involvement when a fugitive from North Carolina is found in another state.

Fugitive from Another State Before Magistrate after Warrantless Arrest

When a fugitive from another state is found in North Carolina, an officer may arrest the fugitive without a warrant only if the person has been charged with a crime in the other state that is punishable there by death or more than one year's imprisonment. After arresting without a warrant, the officer must take the fugitive before a North Carolina magistrate as soon as possible. When an officer brings a fugitive to you after making a warrantless arrest, you should:

1. Determine whether the officer had adequate grounds for the arrest. Place the officer under oath and ask the officer the reasons for the arrest. An officer may arrest without a warrant only when the person has been charged with a crime in another state and that crime is punishable by death or by imprisonment for more than one year. The person might have been charged in the other state by the issuance of an arrest warrant, indictment, or information. You determine only whether the person has been charged in the other state, not whether there was probable cause for the charge. The officer's information that the person has been charged must be reliable. Usually it will be a DCI-PIN message, but it could be a letter, facsimile, or telephone call from an officer in the other state. Sometimes the officer will have a copy of the warrant or indictment from the other state. If the information is a DCI-PIN message, ask the officer whether he or she has telephoned the other state to verify that the charge is still outstanding and that the other state wishes to extradite. This verification is not essential—the DCI-PIN message is sufficient justification for arresting the fugitive—but it is a highly recommended practice. Of course, you also must determine that the person arrested is the person charged in the other state.
2. Complete a magistrate's order for fugitive. Make sure the Fugitive Affidavit (AOC-CR-911M) is completed and complete the Magistrate's Order for Fugitive (AOC-CR-909M), following the usual procedure on the number of copies to be completed. Both forms are included in Appendix A. Send the original to the clerk's office and attach to the original the DCI-PIN message or other written document used to establish that the person is a fugitive. Next, remind the officer to obtain a copy of the other state's warrant or indictment as soon as possible and attach it to the original copy of the magistrate's order in the clerk's office.
3. Inform the fugitive of the charge. Inform the fugitive of the charge, the right to communicate with counsel and friends, and whether he or she is entitled to pretrial release.
4. Determine appropriate conditions. G.S. 15A-736 allows a fugitive to be given bail unless the offense with which the defendant is charged in the other state is punishable by death or life imprisonment. See page 29. Apparently the only form of pretrial release that may be used is a bail bond with sureties. Your local bail bond schedule may include instructions on what bond to set for fugitives. Sometimes the same amount is required as for a similar North Carolina crime; sometimes that amount is doubled or otherwise multiplied. If bail is not allowed, or if the fugitive cannot meet the bail, he or she should be committed to the county jail.
5. Order the fugitive to appear in district court. Whether the fugitive is released on bond, cannot make bond, or is ineligible for bail, the release or commitment order should direct the fugitive to appear before a district court judge at the earliest possible time. Although the statute does not require an immediate district court appearance for a fugitive who is released on bond, such an appearance will give the district judge an early opportunity to review the fugitive's bond, explain the extradition process, and appoint counsel if necessary. Fugitives often waive formal extradition once they are told about the process and have talked to a lawyer. If your chief district judge prefers not to deal with the fugitive at this point, release is on condition that the person either (a) return for a district court appearance at a specific time within thirty days or (b) surrender when a Governor's Warrant, discussed below, is issued.

Fugitive Warrant

More commonly, the officer will come to you to obtain a North Carolina arrest warrant, called a fugitive warrant, AOC-CR-910M (included in Appendix A), before arresting a fugitive from another state. When this happens, you should:

1. Determine whether there are grounds for an arrest. Place the officer under oath and ask about the reasons for making an arrest. The three grounds that justify an arrest are that the person (1) is charged with a crime in another state and fled, (2) was convicted of a crime in another state and has escaped from imprisonment there, or (3) was convicted of a crime in another state and violated the conditions of probation or parole by fleeing. The officer's information must be reliable. Usually it will consist of a DCI-PIN message, but it could be a letter, facsimile, telephone call from an officer in the other state, or even a copy of the warrant or indictment from the other state. You do not determine whether there is probable cause to believe the person committed the crime. You only determine that one of the three grounds for arrest exist and that this is the person who is wanted by the other state.
2. Complete the affidavit and arrest warrant. Both the Fugitive Affidavit (AOC-CR-911M) and the Warrant for Arrest for Fugitive (AOC-CR-910M) must be completed and attached to each other. Follow the usual procedure on the number of copies to be completed and send the original to the clerk's office. Also, attach to the original the DCI-PIN message or any other document used to establish that the person is a fugitive. It is good practice to remind the officer to obtain a copy of the arrest warrant or indictment in the other state as soon as possible and attach it to the original copy of the warrant in the clerk's office.

Fugitive from Another State Before Magistrate after Arrest on a Warrant

Once the fugitive warrant is issued, the officer makes the arrest and takes the defendant before a magistrate as soon as possible for the setting of pretrial conditions, just as would be done for a North Carolina crime. When an officer arrests a fugitive on the basis of a warrant and brings the fugitive before you, inform the fugitive of the charges, determine whether to allow bail, and order the fugitive to appear in district court, as described in "Fugitive from Another State Before Magistrate after Warrantless Arrest," above.

Fugitive from Another State Who Has Not Been Charged

Another possibility, though unusual, is that the person has not yet been formally charged in the other state. For example, a person may have robbed a convenience store in Virginia late at night and fled to North Carolina but no warrant was issued because no judicial official was on duty in Virginia.

The extradition statutes allow a fugitive to be arrested in North Carolina even though the fugitive has not yet been formally charged in the other state. However, the officer only may do so with an arrest warrant. The procedure for issuing such a warrant is the same as that for charging someone with a North Carolina crime; that is, the officer must be placed under oath and must state facts from which you can independently determine that there is probable cause to believe that the person committed the crime in another state. You cannot simply accept the word of the officers from the other state that the person committed the crime; you must be told the reasons for reaching that conclusion. (This is different from other situations involving a fugitive in which you need only establish that the person has been charged in the other state.)

If you determine that there is probable cause, complete an arrest warrant. The standard arrest warrant form will need to be modified to indicate that the crime is one committed against the law of another state. You need not spell out the elements of the offense but simply can state the name of the other state's crime. The name of the crime given by the officers from that state should be used, even if it is different from the name used in North Carolina (for example, "second degree robbery"). After the warrant is issued, the case proceeds like any other one involving a fugitive.

Governor's Warrant

Once arrested, a fugitive is held until formal extradition procedures can take place. If he or she wishes to do so, the fugitive may waive extradition before a clerk of court or a judge and be immediately released to the state from which the fugitive fled. Many fugitives choose to do this, knowing that they will be extradited and not wishing to spend the time required for formal extradition.

If the fugitive does not waive extradition, the state from which the fugitive fled then must formally request the governor of North Carolina to extradite. If the governor decides to extradite, a Governor's Warrant will be issued. A Governor's Warrant authorizes the taking of the fugitive into custody—in fact, the fugitive already may be in custody if he or she was not allowed bail or could not make bail—to be turned over to an agent of the other state.

When a fugitive is brought before you on a Governor's Warrant, you should:

1. Inform the fugitive of the charges. Tell the fugitive what crime he or she is charged with in the other state and that the governor of North Carolina has issued a warrant to take him or her into custody and be returned to the state from which he or she fled. The fugitive also should be informed of the right to communicate with counsel and friends. The Governor's Warrant requires that the fugitive be held without bond.
2. Commit the fugitive to jail. Commit the fugitive to jail to await his or her appearance before a district court judge.
3. Order the fugitive returned to district court at the earliest possible date. The order of commitment should specify the time and date that the fugitive is to appear before a district court judge, which should be as soon as possible.

Fugitives from North Carolina

If a person who committed a crime in North Carolina flees to another state and is found there, a similar procedure takes place. Once the fugitive is arrested in the other state, the North Carolina district attorney of the county where the fugitive is charged is notified and must put together the documents that the North Carolina governor's office will need in requesting extradition (assuming that the fugitive does not waive extradition).

Magistrates only are involved in the process of extraditing a fugitive from North Carolina who has fled to another state if an arrest warrant is used as the charging document. In that case, the warrant must be accompanied by an affidavit (usually by the investigating officer or the victim) that states the grounds for charging the defendant. This affidavit must be sworn to before a magistrate or judge and should have the same date as the warrant (or earlier). Some states will not extradite if the date of the affidavit (for example, January 25, 2009) is later than the date of the arrest warrant (for example, January 20, 2009). Therefore, when a warrant is issued without an accompanying affidavit (oral sworn testimony is sufficient to support an arrest warrant in North Carolina), a new arrest warrant must be issued when the affidavit is prepared so that the dates of the arrest warrant and the affidavit will be the same. Also, if a warrant and affidavit are submitted, they must be accompanied by a certification of the magistrate or judge who issued the warrant or took the affidavit. A clerk of court may certify copies of documents when he or she is the keeper of the original. Each copy must be certified. When a judge or magistrate certifies a document, the clerk of court must certify that person's official character. Then a district court or superior court judge must certify the official character of the clerk. And, in turn, the clerk must certify the official character of the judge who certified the clerk.

Search Warrants

Generally

A search warrant directs a law enforcement officer to search premises, vehicles, persons, or other places in order to seize specified items or persons. G.S. 15A-241. Any item is subject to seizure under a search warrant if there is probable cause to believe it is stolen or embezzled, is contraband or otherwise unlawfully possessed, has been used or is possessed for the purpose of being used to commit or conceal the commission of a crime, or is evidence of an offense or the identity of a person participating in an offense. G.S. 15A-242. Typically, officers will need a search warrant to seize items. Sometimes, however, they will need a search warrant to seize a person—for example, when the officers have a warrant for arrest of a person but that person is inside a friend's house and the friend will not allow the officers to enter.

This section focuses on a magistrate's role in issuing search warrants. For an extensive discussion of search warrants, including among other issues, the advantages of using them and the consequences of unlawful searches, see ARREST, SEARCH, AND INVESTIGATION.

Forms

Two basic documents are used for search warrants: the application for the warrant and the warrant itself. Form AOC-CR-119 (included in Appendix A) contains a generic application (on one side) and a generic warrant (on the other side). A special form, AOC-CR-155 (included in Appendix A), is used for search warrants to seize blood or urine in impaired driving cases.

Authority to Issue

Only judicial officials may issue search warrants. G.S. 15A-243. Appellate justices and judges and superior court judges may issue search warrants to search throughout North Carolina. G.S. 15A-243(a). District court judges are limited to searches within their respective judicial districts. G.S. 15A-243(b)(1). Clerks and magistrates are limited to searches within their counties. G.S. 15A-243(b)(2)-(3). One magistrate can issue a search warrant even if another magistrate has refused to do so under the same factual circumstances. However, the second magistrate should view the first magistrate's refusal as a cautionary signal.

Modification

Once a search warrant has been issued and changes need to be made to it, it is a better practice to issue a new warrant and have the first warrant returned unexecuted.

The Application

Generally

An application for a search warrant must be in writing, on oath or affirmation. G.S. 15A-244. It is best to use the standard AOC forms noted above. All applications must contain: (1) the name and title of the applicant; (2) a statement that there is probable cause to believe that the items subject to seizure may be found in or upon a designated or described place, vehicle, or person; (3) allegations of fact supporting the statement, and the statement must be supported by one or more affidavits setting forth the facts and circumstances establishing probable cause to believe that the items are in the places or in the possession of the individuals to be searched; and (4) a request that the court issue a search warrant directing a search for and seizure of the items in question. G.S. 15A-244.

It does not matter who fills out the application for the search warrant, as long as it accurately represents what the applying officer knows. Thus an officer may fill out most of the application before bringing it to you, provided that you swear the officer, see G.S. 11-11 regarding oaths, and carefully examine the officer about the information contained in the application.

AOC Form

This section walks you through the contents of the application for a search warrant. You might find it helpful to have a copy of form AOC-CR-119 in front of you as you review this material.

Name of applicant. The first item on the application form is the name and address of the person applying for the warrant, or if an officer, the officer's name, rank, and agency. Most commonly, an officer will apply for the search warrant.

Description of property to be seized/person to be arrested. The next part of the application form provides space for a listing of the property to be seized or the person to be arrested. The officer who executes a search warrant need not be the officer who applies for the warrant. Therefore, the description of the property to be seized must be sufficiently detailed so that an officer executing the search warrant does not seize the wrong property. The subsections below provide more detail on how the property or person to be seized should be described.

PROPERTY. The more common the property, the more detailed the description must be to avoid seizure of the wrong thing. Thus "stolen gun" and "refrigerator" are not sufficient. When dealing with common items, including the serial number, brand, model, and visual description of an item to be seized would be helpful identifying information. A detailed description is less important for obvious contraband, such as a machine gun or nontaxpaid liquor. Moreover, an officer may seize obvious contraband not described in the affidavit, if seen in plain view or seized incident to arrest. Not much detail is needed if the property is drugs, which ordinarily may not be possessed lawfully. Although it is best to state the name of the drug, the generic name is adequate. Thus “marijuana” is sufficient. It is not necessary to state the amount of illegal drugs being sought.

PERSON. As noted above, there are situations when an officer will be required to obtain a search warrant to enter premises to make an arrest with an arrest warrant or an OFA. In such a case, the officer must describe the person to be seized by giving that person’s name and description. If the person’s name is known, only the name is required; a physical description can be helpful or can be a substitute for the name if the name is unknown (e.g., “white male, 6’5”, long blond hair and mustache”).

Crime that was committed. The next item on the application is the crime at issue. It is useful to give a short phrase describing the crime, such as “possession of marijuana,” “armed robbery,” or “felonious breaking or entering.” It is also better practice to refer to the date and location of the crime and the crime’s statutory citation. Avoid abbreviations such as “A/R” or “FB/E.”

The description of the crime need not be as detailed as in criminal process, because a person is not being charged with a crime by this document. After all, it is possible that a person whose home is being searched may have nothing to do with the crime under investigation.

What is to be searched. The next section on the application form requires that the applicant specify and describe where the person or item sought is located. The options on the form include “premises,” “person(s),” “vehicle(s),” and “other places or items.” The application may specify any combination of these locations, if justified by the facts. As noted above, the officer who executes a search warrant need not be the officer who applies for the warrant. Therefore, the descriptions of the premises, persons, vehicles, or other places or items to be searched must be sufficiently detailed so that an officer executing the search warrant does not search the wrong person or property.

PREMISES. If the premises is a house, the street number is sufficient, however, it is best to include a physical description in case the street number is wrong. If the street number is wrong but the officer searches the correct house based on the physical description, the search warrant still would be valid. If the house and street numbers are incorrect and the application contains no description, the warrant will be invalid. If the premises is an apartment, give the apartment number or description of its location in the apartment complex. Remember that an officer unfamiliar with the investigation must be able to find the premises based on the description in the application.

A search warrant to search premises does not give authority to search persons on the premises at the time of the search, except as provided in G.S. 15A-256. Thus, if particular suspects are involved and evidence may be hidden on them, the search warrant should authorize a search of them under the “person(s)” block. If a search of such persons is not authorized, then officers only can detain them (and frisk them for weapons, if appropriate) while the officers search the premises. If the search of the premises fails to uncover items being searched for, then the officers can conduct a full search of such persons.

If a search warrant only authorizes a search of premises, courts have ruled in certain circumstances that officers may search a vehicle on the premises (if the vehicles might contain evidence described in the application) when the officer knows the vehicle belongs to the suspect whose premises is being searched. However, to avoid any question of lawfulness, and also to authorize search of the vehicle if it is found away from the premises, a search warrant should authorize search of vehicles under “vehicle(s)” block, if there is probable cause that the items sought might be in the vehicle.

Although usually not legally required, it is best to describe outbuildings on the premises that the officer wants to search or simply state “outbuildings on the premises.”

If there are more than one premises to be searched, separate warrants should be issued for each to help officers comply with the forty-eight-hour rule, discussed below, and to avoid infecting the search of one premises with a problem in the affidavit regarding the search of the other premises.

PERSONS. When listing persons, the application should include person’s name, age, height, weight, race, distinguishing marks, and so forth.

VEHICLES. When listing vehicles, the application should include model, make, year, color, license tag, and anything else that distinguishes it from other similar vehicles, such as its vehicle identification number, if known.

OTHER PLACES OR ITEMS TO BE SEARCHED. This category may be used when the place or item to be searched is not in premises or vehicles or on a person. For example, an officer may need a search warrant to search luggage that the officer has seized in a situation when a warrantless search cannot be made.

Statement of facts establishing probable cause. The next part of the application provides space to list the facts that establish probable cause for the issuance of the search warrant. This portion of the form is where the applicant provides the required supporting affidavit.

WHEN ADDITIONAL SPACE IS NEEDED. If all of the facts establishing probable cause do not fit on the form, additional sheets may be attached. At the very bottom of the application form, there is a note that says: “If more space is needed for any section, continue the statement on an attached sheet of paper with a notation saying ‘see attachment.’ Date the continuation and include on it the signatures of applicant and issuing official.” It is important to follow this procedure so that there is no question later as to whether the attachments were part of the original application. It is also a good idea to include a name on the attachment, such as “In the Matter of Murder of Steve Jones,” and to staple the additional sheets to the form.

ADDITIONAL AFFIDAVITS. In some cases, affidavits by people other than the officer applying for the warrant may be submitted to support the warrant. For example, the officer may provide affidavits by other officers or by an informant. When this happens, check the box on the form that says “In addition to the affidavit included above, this application is supported by additional affidavits, attached, made by _____” and should fill in the person’s name and address or if a law enforcement officer, name, rank, and agency. The additional affidavits should be dated and clearly marked as attachments to the application.

ADDITIONAL TESTIMONY ESTABLISHING PROBABLE CAUSE. In some cases, in addition to the affidavit, a person will provide sworn testimony setting out the facts establishing probable cause. When this happens, check the box on the form that says “In addition to the affidavit included above, this application is supported by sworn testimony, given by _____” and fill in the person’s name and address. When testimony is given in this way, it either should be reduced to writing or tape-recorded and filed with the clerk. Check the appropriate box on the form to indicate whether the testimony has been reduced to writing or tape-recorded.

If the officer believes that it is important to exclude some supporting information from the suspect’s copy of the application (e.g., to keep information from a suspect that might reveal an informant’s identity), the officer may wish to have the informant’s testimony tape-recorded and filed with the clerk.

GENERAL RULES FOR THE AFFIDAVIT. The most common problem with search warrants is that the application fails to contain enough of what the officer knows. When preparing the statement of facts establishing probable cause, usually it is best to write a statement telling a story with a clear plot in chronological order. The officer should tell what led to the conclusion that the evidence sought is related to a crime and why the officer believes it is where he or she wants to search.

There are no set rules about what needs to be in the statement. A good statement need not have an informant's report. On the other hand, a good statement could consist solely of an informant's report, although it is better if the officer corroborates some of the informant's information. What is important is whether all the facts stated together establish a fair probability that the evidence is where the officer wants to search. Reliable hearsay is permitted, such as information obtained from another officer or an informant.

If a confidential informant is used, it is helpful if the confidential informant's report shows how the informant got his or her information (e.g., the informant was there or someone told the informant) and why the informant should be believed (has given good information before, for example; the report should provide details regarding the information previously provided such as when the information was provided, how often, and whether it resulted in arrests or convictions). An officer's corroboration (through personal knowledge or reliable hearsay) of a confidential informant's report adds weight to the informant's report. It is not necessary to establish that an identified, reliable citizen informant has previously given good information to the police.

Personal observations should be stated in a way that makes it clear that the officer was the person making the observation. Including truthful phrases such as "I saw . . ." or "Affiant saw . . ." are helpful ways to do this.

Signatures. The officer applying for a search warrant must sign the application under oath or affirmation. G.S. 15A-245(a). There is a place on the application form for the officer's signature and for you to sign and date the form indicating that the officer's statement was sworn.

Issuance of a Search Warrant

Examination of the Applicant

When an officer applies for a search warrant, you may examine the officer and/or other witnesses under oath or affirmation to determine that probable cause exists to issue the warrant. G.S. 15A-245. Information supporting the issuance of a search warrant may be offered by oral testimony under oath or affirmation presented by a sworn law enforcement officer to the issuing judicial official by means of an audio and video transmission in which both parties can see and hear each other. Before using this method, the procedures and type of equipment for audio and video transmission must be submitted to the AOC by the senior resident superior court judge and the chief district court judge for a judicial district and approved by the AOC. G.S. 15A-245(a)(3). The statute does not say how such testimony is to be memorialized or served.

Probable Cause Determination

Independent determination. You must make an independent judgment as to the existence of probable cause. You must be told the facts that support the officer's conclusion that probable cause exists; for example, simply stating the officer's or informant's conclusion that drugs are in the apartment is not sufficient. You must determine that there is probable cause—a fair probability—that the items or persons sought are in the places to be searched.

Materials considered. As described above, sometimes the applicant will offer additional affidavits or additional sworn testimony. These additional materials may be considered if they have been properly attached to the affidavit, reduced to writing, or tape-recorded. At a hearing to suppress evidence seized pursuant to a search warrant, only affidavits attached to the application or sworn testimony reduced to writing or tape-recorded and filed with the clerk may be considered. Other information told or given to the magistrate is inadmissible at the hearing.

Completing the Form

The search warrant side of form AOC-CR-119 is largely self-explanatory.

In the matter of. There are no hard and fast rules for completing the “In the Matter of” portion of the form, and practices vary. One option is to list the crime, for example, “Murder of Mary Smith.”

Signature and date. It is a good practice to put original signatures on all copies of the warrant. Additionally, you should list the time and date of issuance of the warrant. This is important because of the forty-eight-hour rule, described below.

Copies. Three copies must be completed: the original, one copy to be filed in the clerk’s office, and one copy to be served on the suspect by the executing officer.

Execution of a Warrant

Forty-Eight-Hour Rule

An officer must execute a search warrant within forty-eight hours of its issuance. G.S. 15A-248. Any warrant not executed within forty-eight hours is void, must be marked “not executed,” and returned without unnecessary delay to the clerk. G.S. 15A-248.

Jurisdiction

Officers may execute a search warrant only within their territorial jurisdiction and if their investigative authority encompasses the crime or crimes involved. G.S. 15A-247. Thus city officers usually cannot go more than one mile outside city limits.

Stating Identity and Purpose

When executing a search warrant and before entering premises, officers must identify themselves and their purpose. G.S. 15A-249.

Breaking and Entering

An officer may break and enter any premises or vehicle to execute a search warrant if: (1) after identifying himself or herself and purpose, the officer reasonably believes that the officer’s admittance is being denied or unreasonably delayed or that the premises or vehicle is unoccupied; or (2) the officer has probable cause to believe that giving notice would endanger the officer’s life or the safety of any person. G.S. 15A-251.

Notice

The officer must read the search warrant (but not the application) and give a copy of the application and affidavit to the person to be searched or in apparent control of the premises or vehicle to be searched. G.S. 15A-252. If no one in apparent and responsible control is there, the officer must leave a copy of the warrant attached to the premises or vehicle. G.S. 15A-252.

Scope of Search

The search may include any area within the premises large enough to contain the evidence being sought. G.S. 15A-253. During the search, evidence related to any crime seen in plain view also may be seized. G.S. 15A-253. No particular time limit is set on the length of the search.

Paperwork

If items are seized, the officer must leave an inventory receipt with a person or attached to the premises if no one is home. G.S. 15A-254.

An officer who has executed a search warrant must, without unnecessary delay, return the warrant and inventory of items seized to the clerk. G.S. 15A-257. The inventory, if any, and return must be signed and sworn to by the officer who executes the warrant. G.S. 15A-257.

NOTES TO CUSTODIAN:

- (1) Only an actual surety may surrender the defendant. If the person offering the defendant for surrender presents an appearance bond form (AOC-CR-201) with the box checked for a "Cash Appearance Bond," then the person is not the surety for the defendant's appearance. Do not accept the surrender of the defendant. If the boxes for "Surety Appearance Bond" and "Cash Deposited By Surety" are checked, and the person attempting to surrender the defendant is the same person who signed the bond as surety, then that person is the surety and you may accept the surrender.
- (2) G.S. 15A-540(b) requires that a defendant surrendered by a surety must have an immediate hearing on whether the defendant is again entitled to release and, if so, upon what conditions. Take the defendant, with this form, to a judicial official for this hearing. When the above Receipt is completed, provide surety with a copy of this form.

NOTES TO MAGISTRATE:

- (1) If the defendant was surrendered before a breach of the conditions of release, the original conditions of release should be reentered. The defendant remains in custody until conditions of original release order are again satisfied. The court date remains the same.
- (2) If the defendant was surrendered after a breach of the conditions of release, G.S. 15A-540(c) requires that a judicial official determine whether the defendant is again entitled to pretrial release and, if so, upon what conditions. If the breach was a failure to appear for any charge(s) covered by the appearance bond provided at the time of surrender, G.S. 15A-534(d1) provides that the official shall at a minimum impose the conditions of release recommended in an order for arrest issued for that failure to appear. If no conditions were recommended, the judicial official shall require a secured bond at least double the amount of the most recent secured or unsecured bond, or at least $500 if there was no monetary bond previously required. On the new release order, check the appropriate box(es) indicating the failure to appear.
- (3) If an order for arrest was issued for the defendant's failure to appear, the court date in the new release order should be the same as the court date, if any, in the order for arrest. The order for arrest should be served on the defendant, if possible, without detaining the defendant beyond the time when he or she should be released under the new release order. If the order for arrest cannot be served in that time, use the court's records to learn the court date in the order for arrest, and arrange to have order for arrest recalled.
- (4) If the defendant was surrendered in a county other than the county where the defendant is to appear, return original order for arrest, if any, with return of service completed, along with this form and a copy of the new release order, to the county where the defendant is to appear. When conditions of pretrial release are satisfied, return original of the new release order with any custodian's entries completed, together with the original appearance bond, if any, to the county where the defendant is to appear.

2012 Legislation Affecting Criminal Law and Procedure (Aug. 17, 2012)

John Rubin, © UNC School of Government

Each ratified act discussed here is identified by its chapter number in the session laws and by the number of the original bill. When an act creates new sections in the North Carolina General Statutes (hereinafter G.S.), the section number is given; however, the codifier of statutes may change that number later. Copies of the bills may be viewed on the General Assembly's website at <http://www.ncleg.net/>.

1. S.L. 2012-6 (S 582): Gaming on Indian lands. Effective June 6, 2012, this act adds G.S. 14-292.2 to provide that Class III games may lawfully be conducted on Indian lands as specified in the new statute. Class III games include gaming machines, live table games, raffles, and video games as defined in the act and in statutes to which the act refers. The act repeals G.S. 14-306.1A(e), which previously addressed Class III gaming on Indian lands.
2. S.L. 2012-7 (H 778): Innocence Commission procedures and preservation of biological evidence. Effective June 7, 2012, and applicable to pending claims and to claims filed on or after that date, this act amends several statutes on preserving biological evidence. Amended G.S. 15A-268(a1) requires the agency that has custody of physical evidence (referred to as the custodial agency) to preserve the evidence, regardless of the date of collection, for as long as required by the preservation statutes. Amended G.S. 15A-268(a7) requires the custodial agency, if requested, to provide the defendant with an inventory of biological evidence in the agency's custody and, if evidence was destroyed based on a court order or other written directive, to provide the defendant a copy of the order or directive. Amended G.S. 15A-268(b) allows the custodial agency to dispose of evidence sooner than required by G.S. 15A-268(a6) if all of the listed conditions are met, including that the custodial agency has determined that it has no duty to preserve the evidence under new G.S. 15A-1471, a section within G.S. Chapter 15A, Article 92, North Carolina Innocence Inquiry Commission (the Commission). New G.S. 15A-1471 provides that on receiving notice from the Commission, the State must preserve all files and evidence subject to disclosure under G.S. 15A-903, the principal statute governing the defendant's right to discovery in criminal cases. The duty to preserve ceases under the new statute (although a duty to preserve may still exist under other laws) once the Commission provides notice to the State that it has completed its inquiry. The new statute gives the Commission the right to a copy of all preserved records and to inspect, examine, and test physical evidence.

The act makes the following additional changes to Commission procedures. It adds a definition of claimant in G.S. 15A-1460 (essentially, a person who asserts complete innocence to a felony for which the person was convicted); specifies in G.S. 15A-1467(a) the people who may refer a claim of innocence to the Commission (namely, a state or local agency, claimant, or claimant's counsel); deletes from G.S. 15A-1468(b) the provision allowing the Commission to close portions of the proceedings to the victim; and revises G.S. 15A-1479 to authorize the Commission Chair to request the Attorney General (was, Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts) to appoint a special prosecutor to represent the State at Commission proceedings if there is credible evidence (was, allegation or evidence) of prosecutorial misconduct and precludes appointment as a special prosecutor a prosecutor from the district where the convicted person was tried. The act also amends G.S. 148-82(b), the provision on compensating people who have been convicted of a felony and been imprisoned and who thereafter have had their cases dismissed through Innocence Commission proceedings, to apply only to people who pled not guilty or no contest to the charges; the act does not add this plea restriction to G.S. 148-82(a), which provides for compensation for people who have been convicted of a felony and been imprisoned and who have received a pardon of innocence from the Governor.

3. S.L. 2012-9 \(H 340\): Criminal history check for certificate to transport household goods and discretionary disqualification for criminal convictions. Effective June 7, 2012, this act adds G.S. 62-273.1 to require criminal history checks of applicants for and current holders of a certificate to transport household goods. The act adds G.S. 114-19.31 to authorize the North Carolina Department of Justice to provide the North Carolina Utilities Commission with criminal history information. New G.S. 62-273.1 also provides that if the criminal history check reveals a criminal conviction, the Commission may, although is not required to, deny an application for a certificate or revoke a certificate. The new statute lists factors such as the seriousness and date of the crime for the Commission to consider in determining the action to take.
4. S.L. 2012-12 \(H 843\): Emergency management. As part of a rewrite of North Carolina's emergency management provisions, repealing Article 1 of G.S. Chapter 166A and adding new Article 1A, this act makes the following changes affecting criminal law, effective October 1, 2012. New G.S. 166A-19.30(d) and new G.S. 166A-19.31(h) make it a Class 2 misdemeanor to violate a declaration or executive order issued by the Governor or ordinance issued by a municipality or county during a state of emergency. The act adds new G.S. 14-288.20A repeating these provisions and adding that it is a Class 2 misdemeanor to willfully refuse to leave a public building as directed in a Governor's order under G.S. 166A-19.78. The act makes additional nonsubstantive, conforming changes to G.S. Chapter 14, Article 36A, renamed as Riots, Civil Disorders, and Emergencies. The act also revises G.S. 14-415.4(e)(6) and G.S. 14-415.12(b)(8) to require denial of a petition to restore firearm rights after a felony conviction and denial of an application for a concealed handgun permit for a conviction under new G.S. 14-288.20A or former G.S. 14-288.12, 14-288.13, and 14-288.14, which are repealed by the act.
5. S.L. 2012-14 \(H 345\): Move-over law. G.S. 20-157(f) has required drivers to move over or slow their vehicles when an emergency or public service vehicle is parked or standing within twelve feet of a roadway and is giving a warning signal. Effective for offenses committed on or after October 1, 2012, this act amends G.S. 20-157(f) to expand the definition of "public service vehicle" to include utility service vehicles, including electric, cable, telephone, communications and gas vehicles, and highway maintenance vehicles with amber-colored flashing lights authorized by G.S. 20-130.2.
6. S.L. 2012-18 \(H 707\): Jury lists. Included in a lengthy revision of statutes on registers of deeds is a rewrite of G.S. 9-4 about the preparation of jury lists, effective July 1, 2012. The changes provide for the jury list to be filed with the clerk of court rather than with the register of deeds and eliminate the requirement that the name of each person on the list be written on a separate card.

These changes are incorporated in and superseded by the more extensive changes made in jury list procedures by S.L. 2012-180, summarized below.

7. S.L. 2012-28 (H 673): Nuisance injunction for street gang activity. Effective for offenses committed and abatement actions commenced on or after October 1, 2012, this act creates a new Article 13B (G.S. 14-50.31 through G.S. 14-50.33), the North Carolina Street Gang Nuisance Abatement Act, declaring as a public nuisance a street gang that regularly engages in criminal street gang activities (as defined in G.S. 14-50.16) and real property used by a street gang for the purpose of criminal street gang activities. The new article allows for a civil action, under Article 1 of G.S. Chapter 19, to abate the nuisance. The court may enter an order enjoining individuals named as defendants in the suit from engaging in criminal street gang activities. Such an order expires one year after entry unless earlier modified or revoked by the court. The act repeals G.S. 14-50.24, the current street gang nuisance statute.
8. S.L. 2012-35 (H 941), as amended by S.L. 2012-194 (S 847): Pseudoephedrine transactions. Effective June 20, 2012, this act amends G.S. 90-113.53 to limit retail sales of pseudoephedrine products to 3.6 grams per day (was, two packages containing a total of 3.6 grams) and 9 grams (was, three packages containing a total of 9 grams) within any thirty-day period. The act also amends G.S. 90-113.52(c) to require every retail purchaser of a pseudoephedrine product to furnish a valid, unexpired, government-issued photo identification (was, photo identification) and to provide, in writing or orally, a valid personal residential address. The act deletes the requirement in that subsection that the retailer provide the purchaser with a written form with a statement of the limits on pseudoephedrine transactions. G.S. 90-113.54 continues to require the retailer to post a sign with that information.
9. S.L. 2012-38 (H 149): Terrorism offense. Effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, this act adds a new Article 3A (G.S. 14-10.1), Terrorism, creating a new terrorism offense. A person is guilty of the offense if he or she:
 - commits an act of violence
 - with the intent either to
 - intimidate the civilian population at large or an identifiable group of the civilian population, or
 - influence, through intimidation, the conduct or activities of the government of the United States, a state, or any unit of local government.

G.S. 14-10.1(a) defines an “act of violence” as one of several different crimes, including, among others, murder, manslaughter, and felonies involving assault or the use of force against another person. The offense is a separate offense from and is punishable one class higher than the underlying act of violence, except the offense is punishable as a Class B1 felony if the underlying act of violence is a Class A or B1 felony. Real and personal property used in or derived from the offense are subject to seizure and forfeiture as provided in G.S. 14-10.1(b). The act also amends G.S. 14-7.20 to make the offense of engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise a Class D felony if the underlying felony is a violation of new G.S. 14-10.1. For a further discussion of this act, see Jessica Smith, The New Terrorism Offense, N.C. CRIM. L., UNC SCH. OF GOV'T BLOG (July 5, 2012).

10. S.L. 2012-39 \(H 176\): Domestic violence changes. G.S. 15A-1343(b)(12) has authorized the court to order as a regular condition of probation attendance at and completion of an abuser treatment program if the court finds the defendant responsible for acts of domestic violence and a program approved by the North Carolina Domestic Violence Commission is reasonably available to the defendant. Effective for defendants placed on probation on or after December 1, 2012, this act revises G.S. 15A-1343(b)(12) to require that if the defendant is discharged from the program for failing to comply, such noncompliance must be reported to the court. Revised G.S. 15A-1343(b) also provides that if a defendant is required to participate in an abuser treatment program as a condition of unsupervised probation, the court must schedule a compliance review within sixty days of the entry of judgment and every sixty days thereafter until the defendant completes the program.

The act also amends G.S. 15A-1382.1(a), which provides that if the case involved an offense described in that subsection and the defendant and victim had a personal relationship as defined in G.S. 50B-1(b), the court must enter on the judgment of conviction that the case involved domestic violence. Revised G.S. 15A-1382.1(a) imposes this requirement if the defendant is convicted of an offense involving any of the acts in G.S. 50B-1(a). The act repeals G.S. 15A-1382.1(b), which addressed the authority of the court to impose special conditions of probation in domestic violence cases when the court imposed a community punishment; these provisions were made moot by the General Assembly's passage of the Justice Reinvestment Act in 2011, which significantly narrowed the differences between community and intermediate punishments.
11. S.L. 2012-40 \(H 235\): Criminal conviction of sexually-related offense as ground for termination of parental rights. Effective October 1, 2012, this act amends G.S. 7B-1111(a) to add as a ground for terminating a parent's rights to a child a conviction of the parent of a sexually-related offense under G.S. Chapter 14 resulting in conception of the child.
12. S.L. 2012-46 \(H 199\): Metal theft. Effective for offenses committed on or after October 1, 2012, this act makes several changes to the regulation of metal purchases and sales. It recodifies and renames G.S. Chapter 91A, Pawnbrokers and Cash Converters Modernization Act, as Part 1 of G.S. Chapter 66, Article 45 (G.S. 66-385 through G.S. 66-399), Pawnbrokers and Cash Converters; and recodifies and renames G.S. Chapter 66, Article 25, Regulation of Precious Metal Businesses, as Part 2 of G.S. Chapter 66, Article 45 (G.S. 66-405 through G.S. 66-414), Precious Metal Businesses. The substance of those provisions did not change.

The act adds a new Part 3 to Article 45 (G.S. 66-415 through 66-425), Regulation of Sales and Purchases of Metals, with permitting and record-keeping requirements, purchasing and transportation restrictions, and other regulations involving covered transactions. New G.S. 66-417 gives law enforcement officers the right to inspect records kept by and purchased metals in the possession of secondary metals recyclers (as defined in new G.S. 66-415). New G.S. 66-418 gives law enforcement officers the right to issue a "hold notice" if the officer has reasonable suspicion to believe nonferrous metals in the possession of a nonferrous metals purchaser (as defined in new G.S. 66-415) has been stolen. The hold notice bars a nonferrous metals purchaser from processing or removing the items from a secondary metal recycler's fixed site for fifteen days. The officer may renew the notice for an additional thirty days. New G.S. 66-418 requires any secondary metals recycler owner convicted of certain felonies to retain nonferrous metals for seven days from the date of purchase before disposing or altering the items. New G.S. 66-424 makes a violation of any provision in new Part 3 of Article 45 a Class 1 misdemeanor for a first offense and a Class I felony for a subsequent offense; it also requires the revocation of a permit for a fixed site for six months if the owner or employees are convicted of a total of three or more violations of Part 3 within a ten-year period.

New G.S. 14-159.4 creates the new offense of:

- willfully and wantonly
- cutting, mutilating, defacing, or otherwise injuring
- any personal or real property, including any fixtures or improvements
- of another
- for the purpose of obtaining nonferrous metals.

The new statute creates five different punishment levels, from Class 1 misdemeanor to Class D felony, depending on the damage from the unlawful act. Thus, if the damage to property is less than $1,000, the offense is a Class 1 misdemeanor; if the offense results in the death of another person, the offense is a Class D felony.

13. S.L. 2012-56 \(S 816\): Banking law changes. Effective October 1, 2012, this act rewrites North Carolina's banking laws. Among the changes, the act adds the following offenses (specified in greater detail in the indicated statutes):

- New G.S. 53C-8-7 makes it a Class H felony for a bank examiner to make a false report about the condition of a bank that the examiner has examined.
- New G.S. 53C-8-8 makes it a Class 1 misdemeanor for an examiner or other employee of the Office of the Commissioner of Banks to fail to keep secret the information obtained in an examination of a bank except as otherwise provided in G.S. Chapter 53C.
- New G.S. 53C-8-9 makes it a Class 1 misdemeanor, subject to certain exceptions, for a bank or officer, director, or employee to make an extension of credit or grant a gratuity to the Commissioner of Banks, a deputy commissioner, or a bank examiner, or for them to accept an extension of credit or gratuity. A person violating this provision may be fined a sum equal to the amount of the extension made or gratuity given.
- New G.S. 53C-8-10 makes it a Class 1 misdemeanor to willfully and maliciously make a false and derogatory statement about the financial condition of a bank.
- New G.S. 53C-8-11 creates five bank fraud offenses, including an embezzlement offense. An offense under this section involving funds of $100,000 or more is a Class C felony, and an offense involving less than $100,000 is a Class H felony.

The act repeals Article 10 of G.S. Chapter 53 containing similar crimes and other articles within that chapter containing other bank-related crimes.

14. S.L. 2012-72 (H 1081): Practice as a clinical addictions specialist without a license. Effective June 26, 2012, this act revises G.S. 90-113.31A(22a) and G.S. 90-113.43 to rename a provisional licensed clinical addictions specialist as a licensed clinical addictions specialist associate and, as under prior law, make it a Class 1 misdemeanor to practice in that capacity without a license.
15. S.L. 2012-83 (S 881): Department of Public Safety. Effective June 26, 2012, this act makes several technical and organizational changes to the statutes governing the North Carolina Department of Public Safety. Among the changes, the act revises G.S. 14-202(m) to exempt personnel of the Division of Juvenile Justice from peeping laws when they act for security purposes or during the investigation of alleged misconduct by a person in the custody of that division; amends G.S. 143B-704(d) to rename the Division of Adult Correction's substance abuse program as the alcoholism and chemical dependency treatment program and to revise the description of the program; and revises G.S. 143B-600(a)(7) and G.S. 143B-601 to place operation of the evidence warehouse under the Office of External Affairs in the Department of Public Safety, to rename the warehouse as the "Victim Services Warehouse," and to require the Department to do the following: provide central storage and management of evidence according to G.S. Chapter 15A, Article 13 (DNA Database and Databank, G.S. 15A-266 through 15A-270.1), create a databank of statewide storage locations of postconviction evidence, provide central storage and management of rape kits according to the federal Violence against Women and Department of Justice Reauthorization Act of 2005, and provide for the storage and management of evidence.
16. S.L. 2012-127 (H 512): Waste kitchen grease. Effective for offenses committed on or after January 1, 2013, this act adds G.S. 14-79.2 to create the following three new offenses:
 - Taking and carrying away a waste kitchen grease container or waste kitchen grease contained therein bearing a notice that unauthorized removal is prohibited without the written consent of the owner of the container.
 - Intentionally contaminating or purposely damaging any waste kitchen grease container or grease therein.
 - Placing a label on a waste kitchen grease container knowing that it is owned by another person in order to claim ownership of the container.

If the value of the container or grease is $1,000 or less, the offense is a Class 1 misdemeanor; if the value is more than $1,000, the offense is a Class H felony.

17. S.L. 2012-134 (S 828): Unemployment insurance fraud and disqualification from receiving benefits. Two aspects of this act relate to criminal law. First, effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, Section 4(a) of the act amends G.S. 96-18(a) to divide unemployment insurance fraud into two offense classes: a Class I felony if the value of the benefit wrongfully obtained is more than $400, and a Class 1 misdemeanor if the value of the benefit is $400 or less. Second, effective November 1, 2012, Section 2(b) of the act amends G.S. 96-14 to redefine misconduct that disqualifies a person from receiving unemployment insurance benefits. The amended statute provides that the listed disqualifying acts constitute prima facie evidence of misconduct, which may be rebutted by the claimant; and, the convictions listed as acts of misconduct must be related to or connected with an employee's work or in violation of a reasonable rule or policy. For further information about disqualification from unemployment benefits and other collateral consequences of a criminal conviction, see Collateral Consequences Assessment Tool \(C-CAT\), an online research tool from the School of Government.

18. S.L. 2012-136 \(S 416\): Racial Justice Act amendments. This act primarily addresses the North Carolina Racial Justice Act, enacted in 2009 as S.L. 2009-464 \(S 461\). See generally John Rubin, 2009 Legislation Affecting Criminal Law and Procedure, ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE BULLETIN No. 2009/09, at pp. 32–33 (Dec. 2009). The Governor vetoed the new act, and the General Assembly overrode her veto. This summary briefly describes the changes.

Sections 1 and 2 address two statutes that are not part of the Racial Justice Act. Effective for executions scheduled after July 2, 2012, amended G.S. 15-188 provides that the superintendent of the State penitentiary must provide, in conformity with G.S. Ch. 15, Article 19 (Execution) (was, in conformity with that Article and approved by the Governor and Council of State), the necessary appliances for infliction of death and qualified personnel to perform the procedure. Effective for Rule 24 hearings scheduled on or after July 2, 2012, amended G.S. 15A-2004(b) adds the following provisions: a court may discipline or sanction the State for failing to comply with the time requirements in Rule 24 of the General Rules of Practice for the Superior and District Courts but may not declare a case as noncapital for such a failure; and, in addition to any discipline or sanctions the court may impose, the court must continue the case for sufficient time so that the defendant is not prejudiced by any delays in the holding of the Rule 24 hearing.

Sections 3 and 4 of the act address statutes previously enacted by the Racial Justice Act. Section 3 amends G.S. 15A-2011, as described below; Section 4 repeals G.S. 15A-2012, which contained the hearing procedures for Racial Justice Act claims.

Amended G.S. 15A-2011(a) provides that a finding that race was the basis of the decision to seek or impose a death sentence may be established if the court finds that race was a significant factor at the time the death sentence was sought or imposed. The amended provision states that “at the time the death sentence was sought or imposed” means the “period from 10 years prior to the commission of the offense to the date that is two years after the imposition of the death sentence.”

New G.S. 15A-2011(a1) provides that a defendant who makes a motion for relief from a death sentence under the Racial Justice Act must waive, as provided in the new subsection, any objection to the imposition of life imprisonment without parole.

G.S. 15A-2011(b), which described evidence relevant to establish a finding that race was a significant factor in decisions to seek or impose the sentence of death, is deleted.

Amended G.S. 15A-2011(c) states that the defendant has the burden of proving that race was a significant factor in decisions to seek or impose the sentence of death in the county or prosecutorial district (was, the county, prosecutorial district, judicial division, or state).

New G.S. 15A-2011(d) describes evidence relevant to establish a finding that race was a significant factor in decisions to seek or impose a sentence of death. It states that evidence may include statistical evidence derived from the county or prosecutorial district where the defendant was sentenced to death, or other evidence, that the race of the defendant was a significant factor or that race was a significant factor in decisions to exercise peremptory challenges during jury selection. It also states that evidence may include sworn testimony of personnel involved in the criminal justice system, including attorneys, prosecutors, law enforcement officers, judicial officials, and jurors.

New G.S. 15A-2011(e) states that statistical evidence alone is insufficient to establish that race was a significant factor under the Racial Justice Act article and that the State may offer evidence in rebuttal of claims or evidence of the defendant, including statistical evidence.

New G.S. 15A-2011(f) describes procedures for raising and hearing a claim that race was a significant factor in decisions to seek or impose a sentence of death in the defendant's case.

New G.S. 15A-2011(g) states that if the court finds that race was a significant factor in decisions to seek or impose a death sentence in the defendant's case, the court shall order that a death sentence not be sought or that a death sentence be vacated and the defendant resentenced to life imprisonment without parole.

The act states it is effective when it becomes law (July 2, 2012, when the General Assembly overrode the Governor's veto) and applies to all capital trials held before, on, or after the effective date of the act and to all capital defendants sentenced to the death penalty before, on, or after the effective date of the act. The act contains additional uncodified provisions on the applicability of the act to motions filed, hearings commenced, and decisions issued pursuant to S.L. 2009-464—for example, the act states that it applies to postconviction motions filed before the effective date of the new act but does not apply to such motions if the court, before the effective date of the new act, made findings of fact and conclusions of law after an evidentiary hearing on the motion unless the court's order is vacated or overturned on appellate review.

19. S.L. 2012-142 \(H 950\): Budget bill. This act modifies the 2011 Appropriations Act. The Governor vetoed the act, and the General Assembly overrode her veto. Unless otherwise noted, the provisions discussed below are effective July 1, 2012.

- Section 8.9 of the act amends G.S. 115D-21(c) to authorize community colleges to increase the maximum permissible penalty for a parking violation from $5 to $25 and adds G.S. 115D-21(d) to provide that the clear proceeds of civil penalties collected under G.S. 115D-21 must be remitted to the Civil Penalty and Forfeiture Fund in accordance with G.S. 115C-457.2.
- Section 15.3A establishes the North Carolina Human Trafficking Commission in the Department of Justice with the powers enumerated in that section, including the power to research the occurrence of human trafficking in North Carolina, suggest policies, procedures, and legislation to eradicate human trafficking, and provide assistance to law enforcement. The Commission terminates December 31, 2014.
- Section 16.3 repeals G.S. 7A-314(f), which addressed foreign language interpreters, and states in an uncodified provision of Section 16.3 that the Judicial Department may use funds appropriated and available to the Judicial Department to provide assistance to limited English proficient (LEP) individuals, assist the courts in the fair, efficient, and accurate transaction of business, and provide more meaningful access to the courts.

- Effective for fees waived on or after July 1, 2012, Section 16.6(b) amends G.S. 7A-304(a) to provide that the court may waive costs under that section and may waive or reduce costs under subdivisions (7) or (8) of that section (which deal with state and local crime lab costs) only if the court enters a written order, supported by findings of fact and conclusions of law, determining that there is just cause for the order. Section 16.6(a) amends G.S. 7A-38.7(a) to impose a similar requirement for waiver or reduction of dispute resolution fees in criminal cases.

20. S.L. 2012-143 \(S 820\): Hydraulic fracturing. This act authorizes hydraulic fracturing, known as fracking, in North Carolina. The Governor vetoed the act, and the General Assembly overrode her veto. As part of numerous changes and additions to the North Carolina General Statutes, Section 2(a) of the act revises G.S. 113-380, effective August 1, 2012, to provide that a violation of G.S. Ch. 113, Article 27 (Oil and Gas Conservation) is a Class 1 misdemeanor except as otherwise provided.

21. S.L. 2012-146 \(H 494\), as amended by S.L. 2012-194 \(S 847\): Expanded authorization for continuous alcohol monitoring. Effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, this act amends several statutes to authorize the imposition of continuous alcohol monitoring in a range of circumstances. Those circumstances are as follows.

Pretrial release. Amended G.S. 15A-534(a) authorizes a judicial official to include as a condition of pretrial release for any criminal offense that the defendant abstain from alcohol consumption, as verified by the use of a continuous alcohol monitoring (CAM) system of a type approved by the Division of Adult Correction of the Department of Public Safety. The amended subsection requires that any violation of an abstinence/CAM condition be reported by the monitoring provider to the district attorney. The act likewise amends G.S. 15A-534.1, which prescribes special pretrial release procedures for domestic violence offenses, to authorize a judge to impose the same conditions. The act repeals G.S. 15A-534(i), which authorized for CAM as a pretrial release condition for certain impaired driving offenses only.

Conditions of probation. New G.S. 15A-1343(a1)(4a) allows as a condition of community or intermediate punishment that the defendant “abstain from alcohol consumption and submit to continuous alcohol monitoring when alcohol dependency or chronic abuse has been identified by a substance abuse assessment.” New G.S. 15A-1343(b1)(2c) allows this requirement to be imposed as a special condition of probation. Amended G.S. 15A-1343.2(f) expands a probation officer’s delegated authority when a person has received an intermediate punishment to include requiring that the person submit to continuous alcohol monitoring when abstinence from alcohol consumption has been specified as a condition of probation.

Eliminated from G.S. 15A-1343(b) is language that barred requiring a defendant to pay the costs of a substance abuse monitoring program or other special condition of probation in lieu of, or prior to, the payments required by G.S. 15A-1343(b), which specifies the regular conditions of probation. New G.S. 15A-1343.3(b) requires that probationers pay fees for CAM directly to the monitoring provider and prohibits the provider from terminating CAM for nonpayment of fees without court authorization.

Impaired driving offenses. Amendments to G.S. 20-28(a) permit a court, in sentencing a defendant convicted of driving while license revoked, to order abstinence from alcohol and CAM for a minimum period of 90 days as a condition of probation if the person's license was originally revoked for an impaired driving revocation.

New G.S. 20-179(k2) allows a judge to order "as a condition of special probation" for any level of punishment under G.S. 20-179, which governs sentencing for DWI and related offenses, that "the defendant abstain from alcohol consumption, as verified by a continuous alcohol monitoring system, of a type approved by the Division of Adult Correction of the Department of Public Safety." New G.S. 20-179(k3) permits the court to authorize a probation officer to require a defendant to submit to CAM for assessment purposes if the defendant is required as a condition of probation to abstain from alcohol consumption and the probation officer believes the defendant is consuming alcohol. If the probation officer orders the defendant to submit to CAM pursuant to this provision, the defendant must bear the costs of CAM.

The act also amends the mandatory punishment provisions for Level One sentencing in G.S. 20-179(g). That subsection currently requires a minimum term of imprisonment of not less than 30 days and provides that the term of imprisonment may be suspended only if a condition of special probation is imposed to require the defendant to serve a term of imprisonment of at least 30 days. Amended G.S. 20-179(g) permits a judge to reduce the minimum term of imprisonment to a term of not less than ten days if the judge imposes as a condition of special probation that the defendant abstain from alcohol consumption for at least 120 days and be monitored by a continuous alcohol monitoring system of a type approved by the Division of Adult Correction of the Department of Public Safety. The amended subsection provides that if a defendant is monitored on an approved CAM system before trial, up to 60 days of pretrial monitoring may be credited against the 120-day monitoring requirement for probation.

The act likewise amends the mandatory punishment for Level Two sentencing in G.S. 20-179(h). That subsection currently requires a minimum term of imprisonment of not less than seven days and provides that the term of imprisonment may be suspended only if a condition of special probation is imposed to require the defendant to serve a term of imprisonment of at least seven days. Amended G.S. 20-179(h) permits a judge to suspend the term of imprisonment if the judge imposes as a condition of special probation that the defendant abstain from consuming alcohol for at least 90 consecutive days, as verified by a continuous alcohol monitoring system of a type approved by the Division of Adult Correction of the Department of Public Safety. If the defendant is monitored on an approved CAM system before trial, up to 60 days of pretrial monitoring may be credited against the 90-day monitoring requirement for probation.

New G.S. 20-179(k4) provides that the judge may not impose CAM under subsections (g), (h), (k2), and (k3), the new and amended subsections discussed above, if he or she finds good cause for not requiring the defendant to pay the costs of CAM except if "the local governmental entity responsible for the incarceration of the defendant in the local confinement facility agrees to pay the costs of the system." The act repeals G.S. 20-179(h3), which required that fees and costs ordered for CAM imposed under G.S. 20-179(h1) (authorizing CAM as a condition of probation for a Level One or Two punishment) be paid to the clerk of court, who then transmitted the fees to the monitoring entity.

Custody cases. Effective for custody orders issued on or after December 1, 2012, new G.S. 50-13.2(b2) provides that any order for custody, including visitation, may require either or both parents to abstain from consuming alcohol and to submit to CAM to verify compliance. The new subsection provides that failure to comply with the abstinence/CAM condition is grounds for civil or criminal contempt.

22. S.L. 2012-148 \(S 635\): Sentencing of juveniles to life imprisonment. North Carolina law authorizes a juvenile's case to be transferred to superior court and the juvenile to be tried as an adult for a felony allegedly committed when the juvenile was 13, 14, or 15. If convicted, the juvenile is sentenced in the same way that an adult would be sentenced for the same offense, with few exceptions. The U.S. Supreme Court held in Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), that imposing the death penalty on someone who was younger than eighteen when he or she committed a capital offense violates the Eighth Amendment. Five years later, in Graham v. Florida, ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2011 (2010), the Court held that a sentence of life without the possibility of parole violates the Eighth Amendment when imposed on someone who committed a non-homicide offense when younger than age eighteen. Consistent with those cases, in North Carolina the death penalty can never be imposed on someone for an offense committed before age eighteen, and a sentence of life without the possibility of parole can be imposed only in cases of first-degree murder. See G.S. 14-17.

On June 25, 2012, in Miller v. Alabama, ___ U.S. ___, 132 S. Ct. 2455 (2012), the Supreme Court extended its holding in Graham and held in a capital murder case involving a juvenile defendant that an automatic sentence of life without the possibility of parole violates the Eighth Amendment. Because North Carolina required such a sentence on a juvenile's conviction for first degree murder, legislative changes were needed. The General Assembly made those changes in S.L. 2012-148, effective July 12, 2012. This act creates a new Article 93, Sentencing for Minors Subject to Life Imprisonment without Parole, in G.S. Chapter 15A. The new article authorizes a sentence of life imprisonment with the possibility of parole after 25 years for juvenile defendants convicted of first-degree murder. If the murder conviction is based solely on the felony murder rule, the court must impose this sentence. In other cases involving first-degree murder, the court must conduct a hearing, pursuant to new G.S. 15A-1477, to determine whether the defendant should be sentenced to life imprisonment with the possibility of parole or without parole. The new statute identifies mitigating factors that the defendant may submit to the judge in making this decision. New G.S. 15A-1479 describes the conditions and procedures for parole for juvenile defendants sentenced to life imprisonment with the possibility of parole.

The act applies to sentencing hearings held on or after July 12, 2012. It also applies to resentencing hearings for juvenile defendants who were younger than 18 at the time of their offense and who were sentenced to life imprisonment without parole. New G.S. 15A-1478 establishes procedures for motions for appropriate relief seeking resentencing in such cases. The act also directs the North Carolina Sentencing and Policy Advisory Commission, in consultation with the Office of the Juvenile Defender, the Conference of District Attorneys, and other organizations and agencies identified by the Sentencing Commission, to study and report to the General Assembly by January 31, 2013, on sentencing of juveniles convicted of first-degree murder.

23. S.L. 2012-149 \(S 707\): School offenses and procedures, cyberbullying, magistrate charging procedures, and prayers for judgment continued for Class B1 through E felonies. This act deals primarily with offenses involving schools. The school-related changes are as follows:

- Effective July 12, 2012, new G.S. 14-33(c1) provides that school personnel who take reasonable action in good faith to end a fight or altercation between students incur no civil or criminal liability as a result of their actions; effective with the beginning of the 2012–13 school year, new G.S. 115-390.3(d) provides that no school employee may be reprimanded or dismissed for acting or failing to act to stop or intervene in an altercation between students if the employee’s actions are consistent with local education board policies.
- Effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, new G.S. 14-458.2 creates the offense of cyberbullying of a school employee by a student, a Class 2 misdemeanor. G.S. 14-458.2(a) defines school employees and students as those at primary and secondary schools. G.S. 14-458.2(b) lists several ways in which the offense is committed, such as building a fake profile or website with the intent to intimidate or torment a school employee. G.S. 14-458.2(d) allows for discharge and dismissal of the case on completion of probation and, if the person qualifies, expunction under G.S. 15A-146, the statute on expunctions of dismissals. In addition, if a student is convicted of cyberbullying under G.S. 14-458.2, new G.S. 115C-366.4 requires transfer of the student to another school in the local administrative unit or, if there is not an appropriate school, another class or teacher.

The act also makes changes to the statutes on cyberbullying generally. Effective July 12, 2012, G.S. 14-453(7c) is amended to expand the definition of “profile,” on which a cyberbullying offense may be based; effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, amendments to G.S. 14-458.1(a)(3), (5), and (6), which describe the ways in which a cyberbullying offense may be committed, require proof of an improper intent as described in those subsections.

The act adds and revises additional school statutes in G.S. Chapter 115C, effective with the beginning of the 2012–13 school year.

- New G.S. 115C-46.2 regulates probation officer visits at schools.
- Amended G.S. 115C-288(g) requires the principal to report to law enforcement the occurrence of certain offenses on school property when the principal has knowledge or actual notice of the occurrence (was, knowledge, reasonable belief, or actual notice). The subsection also is amended to delete the provision on demotion or dismissal of a principal who fails to make such a report.
- New G.S. 115C-289.1 requires a supervisor of a school employee to report to the principal an assault by a student against the employee resulting in physical injury when the supervisor has actual notice of the assault.

The act adds new G.S. 15A-301(b1) and (b2) to modify charging procedures by magistrates for offenses allegedly committed by school employees while discharging their duties of employment. New subsection (b1) provides that a magistrate may not issue an arrest warrant or other criminal process in such a case without the prior written approval of the district attorney or designee. This requirement does not apply to traffic offenses or offenses that occur in the presence of a law enforcement officer. New subsection (b2) allows a district attorney to decline the authority under new subsection (b1), in which case the chief district judge must appoint a magistrate or magistrates to review any application for an arrest warrant or other criminal process against a school employee for a misdemeanor allegedly committed during the discharge of employment duties. Subsection (b2) explicitly lifts this requirement if the offense is a traffic offense, the offense occurred in the presence of a law enforcement officer, or there is no appointed magistrate available to review the application; the new subsection implicitly exempts felony cases from the requirement because it applies to misdemeanors only. Subsection (b2) states that the failure to comply with the requirement does not affect the validity of any arrest warrant or other criminal process. The changes are effective on or after the date a magistrate is appointed by the chief district court judge to perform these functions.

In a change unrelated to schools, the act adds new G.S. 15A-1331B to prohibit a court from disposing of a Class B1 through E felony by a prayer for judgment continued (PJC) that exceeds 12 months. It provides further that if the court imposes a PJC in such a case, it must impose as a condition that the State pray judgment within a specific period of time not to exceed 12 months. If the State does not pray judgment within 12 months, the court must enter final judgment unless it finds that the interests of justice warrant continuing the PJC for an additional 12 months. The change applies to offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012.

24. S.L. 2012-150 \(H 203\): False liens. Effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, this act amends and enacts several statutes on the filing of false liens and similar claims. The amended statutes are as follows:

- The punishment for violation of G.S. 14-118.1, which prohibits the simulation of court process in connection with the collection of a claim, demand, or account, is increased from a Class 2 misdemeanor to Class I felony.
- The grounds for a violation of G.S. 14-118.12, which prohibits residential mortgage fraud, are expanded to prohibit knowingly filing in a public or a private record generally available to the public a document falsely claiming that a mortgage loan has been satisfied, discharged, released, revoked, or terminated or is invalid.
- The punishment for a violation of G.S. 14-401.19, which prohibits filing a false security agreement, is increased from a Class 2 misdemeanor to Class I felony.
- The punishment for a violation of G.S. 44A-12.1(c), which prohibits the filing of a claim of lien that is not authorized by statute, is for an improper purpose, or wrongfully interferes with another person, is increased from a Class 1 misdemeanor to Class I felony.

New G.S. 14-118.6 creates a new offense of filing a false lien or encumbrance, a Class I felony. A violation is also an unfair and deceptive trade practice under G.S. 75-1.1. A person is guilty of this offense if he or she:

- presents for filing
- in a public record or a private record generally available to the public
- a false lien or encumbrance
- against the real or personal property
- of a public officer or public employee
- on account of the performance of the officer or employee's official duties
- knowing or having reason to know
- that the lien or encumbrance is false or contains a materially false, fictitious, or fraudulent statement or representation.

The new statute authorizes the register of deeds to refuse to file the lien on reasonable suspicion that it is false. If the filing is denied, the person may commence a special proceeding to determine whether the filing is appropriate as provided in new G.S. 14-118.6(b).

25. S.L. 2012-153 (S 910): Unlawful sale, surrender, or purchase of a minor. Effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, this act adds G.S. 14-43.14 to make the unlawful sale, surrender, or purchase of a minor a Class F felony. A person commits the new offense if he or she

- acting with willful or reckless disregard for the life or safety of a child
- participates
- in the acceptance, solicitation, offer, payment, or transfer of any compensation
- in connection with the unlawful acquisition or transfer of the physical custody of a minor.

The new prohibition does not apply to actions that are ordered by a court, authorized by statute, or otherwise lawful. An amendment to G.S. 14-322.3 also makes the prohibition inapplicable to a parent who voluntarily surrenders an infant less than seven days of age as provided in G.S. 7B-500.

The new statute provides for a minimum fine of $5,000 for a first offense and $10,000 for a subsequent offense. It also provides that a child whose parent, guardian, or custodian has sold or attempted to sell the child in violation of the new statute is an "abused juvenile" as defined by G.S. 7B-101(1) and the court may place the child in the custody of a county department of social services or any person as the court finds to be in the child's best interest. The sentencing court also must consider whether the defendant is a danger to the community and whether requiring him or her to register as a sex offender under Article 27A of G.S. Chapter 14 would further the purpose of the sex offender registration law. If the court so finds, it may enter an order requiring the person to register. The act amends G.S. 14-208.6(4) to make a conviction under the new statute a "reportable conviction" under the sex offender registration law if the sentencing court orders the person to register. Attempts, conspiracies, and solicitations to sell, surrender, or purchase a child apparently are not reportable because not specified in the revised statute. Compare, e.g., G.S. 14-208.6(4)a. (specifying that an attempt to commit a sexually violent offense is reportable); G.S. 14-208.6(5) (specifying that a conspiracy or solicitation to commit a sexually violent offense is reportable).

The act requires the N.C. Conference of District Attorneys to study additional measures that may be taken to stop criminal activities involving the sale of children and to submit a final report of its findings and recommendations to the General Assembly by January 30, 2013.

26. S.L. 2012-154 (H 54): Habitual misdemeanor larceny. Effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, this act amends G.S. 14-72(b), which lists various circumstances in which a larceny is a Class H felony, to make a larceny a Class H felony if committed after the defendant has previously been convicted four times of a larceny as defined in new G.S. 14-72(b)(6). The new subdivision describes in detail when a prior larceny conviction counts for the new offense. Thus, a prior conviction counts if it is a conviction in North Carolina or another jurisdiction for any larceny offense under “this section” (that is, G.S. 14-72), any offense deemed or punishable as a larceny under “this section,” or any substantially similar offense in any other jurisdiction, regardless of whether the prior convictions were misdemeanors or felonies. A prior conviction may be counted only if the defendant was represented by counsel or waived counsel. If a person was convicted of more than one misdemeanor larceny in a single session of district court, or in a single week of superior court or of a court in another jurisdiction, only one of the convictions count; however, convictions based on offenses that occurred in separate counties count as separate convictions.

27. S.L. 2012-160 (H 737): Criminal history checks and disqualifications for child care providers. Effective January 1, 2013, this act expands the scope of criminal record checks required of people who care for children in child care facilities and adds additional restrictions on who may be a child care provider in a licensed or regulated child care facility. Amended G.S. 110-90.2(a) contains a broader definition of child care providers who are subject to a criminal history check and an expanded list of offenses to be included in the record check. Amended G.S. 110-90.2(b) requires a check every three years after a person’s employment starts. New G.S. 110-90.2(a1) imposes a mandatory disqualification on being a child care provider if the person is convicted of a misdemeanor or felony involving child neglect or abuse or of an offense that is a reportable conviction for sex offender registration purposes. New G.S. 110-90.2(b) imposes a discretionary disqualification from being a child care provider if the person is a habitually excessive user of alcohol, illegally uses narcotic or other impairing drugs, or is mentally or emotionally impaired to an extent that may be injurious to children.

28. S.L. 2012-165 (S 105): Punishment for second-degree murder and deaths caused by DWI. Second-degree murder has been classified as a Class B2 felony under G.S. 14-17. Effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, this act adds G.S. 14-17(b) to make second-degree murder a Class B1 felony except if the “malice” necessary to prove second-degree murder is based on recklessness as described in new G.S. 14-17(b)(1) or the murder is caused by the unlawful distribution of certain drugs, such as opium, in which case the offense remains a Class B2 felony. The opening sentence of new G.S. 14-17(b) states that second-degree murder as provided in the new subsection does not include a violation of G.S. 14-23.2 (“Murder of an unborn child; penalty”). The latter statute was not revised by the act and continues to state that a violation of G.S. 14-23.2(a)(3) based on recklessness is punishable in the same manner as for second-degree murder under G.S. 14-17; because second-degree murder based on recklessness remains a Class B2 felony under new G.S. 14-17(b), a violation of G.S. 14-23.2(a)(3) based on recklessness appears to remain a Class B2 felony as well. For a further discussion of the change in punishment for second-degree murder, see Jeff Welty, Change in Punishment for Second-Degree Murder, N.C. CRIM. L., UNC SCH. OF GOV'T BLOG (July 10, 2012).

The act also revises G.S. 20-141.4(b) to state that the punishment for repeat felony death by vehicle remains a Class B2 felony (was, the same as for second-degree murder); to provide that the court must sentence a defendant convicted of aggravated death by vehicle, which remains a Class D felony, to a sentence in the aggravated range; and to increase from a Class E to Class D felony the classification for felony death by vehicle and to authorize an intermediate punishment for a defendant in prior record level I.

29. S.L. 2012-168 \(S 141\): Trespass, motions for appropriate relief, license revocation procedures for provisional licensees, Department of Public Safety, and extension of time for forensic accreditation and certification. This act makes several changes, as follows.

Trespass. Effective for offenses committed on or after September 1, 2012, this act creates new Class A1 misdemeanor and new Class H felony trespass offenses. It is a Class A1 misdemeanor under new G.S. 14-159.12(c) for a person to:

- commit a first-degree trespass in violation of G.S. 14-159.12(a)
- on the premises of an electric, water, or natural gas utility facility as described in new G.S. 14-159.12(c) by
 - actually entering a building, or
 - climbing, going over, or otherwise surmounting a fence or other barrier to reach the facility.

It is a Class H felony under new G.S. 14-159.12(d) for a person to:

- violate new G.S. 14-159.12(c) if
 - the offense is committed with the intent to disrupt the normal operation of an electrical facility as described in G.S. 14-159.12(c)(1), or
 - the offense involves an act that places either the offender or others on the premises at risk of serious bodily injury.

Motions for appropriate relief. Effective for motions for appropriate relief filed on or after December 1, 2012, and for motions that are pending and for which no answer has been filed on or after that date, the act revises the procedures for hearing motions for appropriate relief, primarily in noncapital cases.

Revised G.S. 15A-1413 requires that motions for appropriate relief be referred to the senior resident superior court judge or chief district court judge, depending on which level of court the motion is filed, for assignment to a judge for review, hearing, and other appropriate actions. G.S. 15A-1413(b) continues to allow a judge who presided at the trial to be assigned the motion, but the motion is not required to be assigned to the presiding judge. Revised G.S. 15A-1413(b) provides that if the presiding judge is unavailable the senior resident superior court or chief district court judge may assign the case to another judge; and G.S. 15A-1413(e) provides that the assignment of the case is in the discretion of the senior resident superior court or chief district court judge. (In the third edition of the act, proposed G.S. 15A-1413(e) stated that when practicable a motion for appropriate relief shall be assigned to the judge who presided at the trial, accepted the guilty plea, or imposed sentence; that language was omitted from later editions of the act.) G.S. 15A-1413 does not distinguish between capital and noncapital cases, but it does not appear to change the procedure for assignment of motions for appropriate relief in capital cases, which have been governed by similar assignment requirements under Rule 25 of the General Rules of Practice for the Superior and District Courts.

The act also adds new G.S. 15A-1420(b2) establishing time frames for reviewing, hearing, and ruling on motions for appropriate relief. These requirements apply specifically to noncapital cases. Thus, the new subsection requires that the case be assigned to a judge within 30 days of filing of a motion for appropriate relief, that the assigned judge take initial action within 30 days after assignment, and that the parties and judge meet other time limits. The new subsection allows for extensions of time on a proper showing. If the court does not comply with the required deadlines, a party may petition the senior resident superior court or chief district court judge to assign the motion to a different judge or may seek a writ of mandamus to obtain compliance with the deadlines. The new subsection states that the failure to meet a deadline is not ground for the summary granting of a motion for appropriate relief.

New G.S. 15A-1420(e) states that nothing in G.S. 15A-1420 precludes the parties from entering into an agreement for appropriate relief, including an agreement as to any aspect, procedural or otherwise, of a motion for appropriate relief. Presumably, agreements requiring judicial action remain subject to approval by the judge assigned to the case.

License revocations for provisional licensees. In 2011, the General Assembly enacted G.S. 20-13.3, providing for an immediate 30-day revocation of the permit or license of a provisional licensee charged with a misdemeanor or felony motor vehicle offense that is a criminal moving violation. Effective for offenses committed on or after October 1, 2012, amendments to G.S. 20-13.3 eliminate the requirement that a provisional licensee charged with a criminal moving violation be arrested and be brought before a judicial official for an initial appearance at which the revocation is issued. Instead, a law enforcement officer may issue a citation charging a provisional licensee with a misdemeanor criminal moving violation without arresting the person. When this happens, the officer must notify the provisional licensee that his or her license is subject to revocation and must expeditiously file a revocation report with the clerk of superior court. On determining that the conditions requiring revocation under G.S. 20-13.3 are satisfied, the clerk must issue a revocation order and mail it to the provisional licensee. The ensuing 30-day revocation becomes effective on the fourth day after the order is mailed.

The act also creates a procedure for challenging the lawfulness of a revocation order entered pursuant to G.S. 20-13.3. New G.S. 20-13.3(d2) permits a provisional licensee to request a hearing to contest the validity of the revocation. These review provisions are modeled on those in G.S. 20-16.5(g) for review of license revocations issued by a magistrate or clerk in connection with implied consent charges.

Department of Public Safety. Effective July 12, 2012, the act amends G.S. 143B-600(a)(6) to establish a Research and Planning Section in the Division of Administration of the Department of Public Safety, with the responsibility for statistics, research, and planning. The amended statute states that the Research and Planning Section is the single state agency responsible for the coordination and implementation of ex-offender reentry initiatives. The act directs the Research and Planning Section to work with local communities to form from three to ten local reentry councils to develop local reentry plans and to form a state-level advisory group with broad representation of agency leaders, service providers, and program recipients.

Extension of time for forensic accreditation and certification. The act amends S.L. 2011-19, as amended by S.L. 2011-307, to extend from October 1, 2012, to July 1, 2013, the time for local forensic laboratories to obtain accreditation pursuant to the requirements of G.S. 8-58.20 and G.S. 20-139.1(c2), which govern the admissibility of certain forensic evidence. The act also amends the indicated 2011 legislation to provide that Scientists I, II, and III, forensic science supervisors, and forensic scientist managers (was, forensic science professionals) at the State Crime Laboratory must obtain certification, if certification is available, within 18 months of the date the scientist becomes eligible to seek certification, by January 1, 2013 (was, June 1, 2012), or as soon as practicable after that date (this language is new).

30. S.L. 2012-170 \(H 1173\): Forfeiture of public assistance benefits for probation violators who avoid arrest. Effective October 1, 2012, this act adds new G.S. 15A-1345(a1) to allow the court to order the suspension of public assistance benefits that are being received by a probationer for whom the court has issued an order for arrest for violation of the conditions of probation but who is absconding or otherwise willfully avoiding arrest. The suspension continues until the probationer surrenders or is otherwise brought under the court's jurisdiction. The subsection states that it does not affect the eligibility for public assistance benefits being received by or for the benefit of a family member of a probation violator.

31. S.L. 2012-172 \(H 853\): Juvenile procedures. This act makes the following changes to juvenile procedures, effective on the dates indicated.

Intake procedures. The act rewrites G.S. 7B-1803(a), effective July 12, 2012, to delete language providing that procedures for receiving complaints and drawing petitions must be established by administrative order of the chief district court judge in each district.

Local detention facilities. The act rewrites G.S. 153A-221.1, effective July 12, 2012, to make the Chief Deputy Secretary of Juvenile Justice in the Department of Public Safety responsible for state services to county juvenile detention homes. That responsibility previously belonged to the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Social Services Commission. Effective January 1, 2013, the act amends G.S. 7B-1905(b) to make it unlawful for a county to operate a juvenile detention facility that does not meet the standards and rules adopted by the Department of Public Safety (previously, Department of Health and Human Services). The act also modifies the duty of the Secretary of Health and Human Services to develop standards for the use of a jail as a holdover facility by requiring that the standards be developed in consultation with the Chief Deputy Secretary of Juvenile Justice in the Department of Public Safety.

Secure custody of undisciplined juvenile. The act rewrites G.S. 7B-1903(b)(7) and (8), which describe when a juvenile who is alleged to be undisciplined may be held in secure custody, to limit the time the juvenile may spend in secure custody to 24 hours, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and state holidays. Previously, that period could be extended to 72 hours “where circumstances require[d].” The change is effective October 1, 2012.

No contempt for undisciplined juvenile. The act rewrites G.S. 7B-2505, which describes procedures and consequences for finding a juvenile in contempt for violating the terms of protective supervision. Effective October 1, 2012, the section no longer refers to contempt and no longer permits any period of detention as a consequence of violating the terms of protective supervision. Instead, after notice and a hearing and a finding that the juvenile violated those terms, the court may (i) continue or modify the terms of protective supervision, (ii) order any disposition authorized for undisciplined juveniles under G.S. 7B-2503, or (iii) extend the period of protective supervision for up to three months.

32. S.L. 2012-175 \(H 1052\): Mechanics liens. This act modifies several statutes on mechanics liens, including one relevant to criminal law, G.S. 44A-24, which has made it a Class 1 misdemeanor for a contractor or other person receiving payment for an improvement to real property to furnish a false written statement of the sums due or claimed to be due for labor or material furnished at the site of improvements to such property. The changes make the statute applicable to improvements subject to Article 2 or 3 of G.S. Chapter 44A and revise the elements of the offense to clarify that receipt of payment pursuant to a false written statement may be by the person signing the document, a person directing another to sign the document, or a person or entity for whom the document was signed. The revised statute also provides that, in addition to the criminal punishment for a violation of the statute, conduct constituting the offense and causing actual harm to any person by any licensed contractor or qualifying person constitutes deceit and misconduct subject to disciplinary action under G.S. Chapter 87. The changes become effective January 1, 2013, and apply to improvements to real property for which the first permit required to be obtained is obtained on or after that date or, with respect to projects for which no permit is required, to improvements to real property commenced on or after that date.
33. S.L. 2012-180 \(S 133\): Jury list procedures. Effective July 12, 2012, this act makes various changes in the jury list procedures for the purpose of conforming old statutes to current practices and technology. The revised statutes, in G.S. Chapter 9, provide for the clerk of court rather than the register of deeds to maintain the master jury list; eliminate the requirement that each name be written on a separate card; require jury list preparation procedures to be in writing and available for public inspection; allow a one-time random sorting of names from the alphabetized master list, with jury panel pools then selected sequentially from that random list except to the extent otherwise required by G.S. 15A-1214 on criminal cases; and allow the clerk to serve jury summonses by mail or give them to the sheriff to serve personally, by mail, by telephone or by leaving at the address. With agreement of the clerk and the senior resident superior court judge, the clerk's functions can be given to the trial court administrator. The changes specify that only the alphabetized master list is available for public inspection; that jurors' addresses are confidential and may be disclosed only pursuant to court order; that the record of excuses is to be kept separate from the master list; and that privileged health information is to be kept confidential. G.S. 7A-312 is also amended to exempt jurors from ferry tolls. This act incorporates and supersedes the changes made by S.L. 2012-18, discussed above.

34. S.L. 2012-182 \(S 699\): Division of Criminal Information. Effective July 12, 2012, this act revises several statutes in G.S. Chapter 114 to change the name of the Division of Criminal Statistics to the Division of Criminal Information (still within the North Carolina Department of Justice) and to allow, in amended G.S. 114-10.1, the Division of Criminal Information (was, Attorney General) to adopt rules and regulations regarding its operations and charge fees for setup and access to the Division of Criminal Information Network.
35. S.L. 2012-183 \(S 738\): Required education for bail bondsmen. Effective October 1, 2012, this act amends G.S. 58-71-71 to require as a condition of becoming and remaining licensed that bail bondsmen and runners obtain their required education hours from the North Carolina Bail Agents' Association.
36. S.L. 2012-185 \(H 1074\): Fraudulent receipt of decedent's disability benefit. Effective for acts committed on or after December 1, 2012, this act revises G.S. 135-18.11, which has made it a Class 1 misdemeanor to fraudulently receive a decedent's retirement allowance, to apply that prohibition to the fraudulent receipt of a decedent's monthly benefit under the Disability Income Plan of North Carolina.
37. S.L. 2012-188 \(H 1021\): Justice Reinvestment Act changes. This act (referred to here as the Clarifications Act) revises the Justice Reinvestment Act (JRA), S.L. 2011-192, as amended by S.L. 2011-391 and S.L. 2011-412. The Clarifications Act makes the following changes, some of which took effect immediately upon the act becoming law on July 16, 2012. For a fuller discussion of these changes, see Jamie Markham, Justice Reinvestment Clarifications Become Law, N.C. CRIM. L., UNC SCH. OF GOV'T BLOG (July 18, 2012).

"Quick dip" procedures by probation officers. Under the JRA, probation officers may, in certain cases, impose a short term of jail confinement in response to a probation violation. That confinement has been referred to as a "quick dip." Before imposing a quick dip, a probation officer must advise the probationer of his or her right to a lawyer and hearing on the violation. If the probationer signs a written waiver of those rights, the officer can impose the quick dip. As the JRA was originally written, the waiver had to be witnessed by the probation officer and "a supervisor." The Clarifications Act deletes the requirement for a supervisor to act as a witness and allows another officer (designated by the chief of the Community Corrections Section) to do it instead. The change to the witness requirement was made in both G.S. 15A-1343.2(e) (for community cases) and (f) (for intermediate cases), effective July 16, 2012.

Confinement in response to violation for misdemeanors. As originally written, the JRA stated that the period of confinement in response to a violation (a “CRV,” sometimes referred to as a “dunk”) for a misdemeanor was “up to 90 days.” G.S. 15A-1344(d2). The law also stated that if 90 days or less remained on the defendant’s suspended sentence the CRV period had to be for the length of that remaining time. Because most misdemeanor sentences were 90 days or less to begin with, the rule almost always trumped the court’s authority to order a shorter CRV period; it was unclear from the language of the original statute whether that was the General Assembly’s intent. The Clarifications Act expressly excludes misdemeanors from the 90-days-or-less-remaining rule. In other words, the judge may impose a shorter CRV period in any misdemeanor case, up to the time remaining on the defendant’s sentence. The change took effect July 16, 2012, meaning it applies to any CRV-eligible violation heard on or after that date.

Community service fee. The “perform community service” condition added by the JRA as a “community and intermediate” condition of probation under G.S. 15A-1343(a1)(2) did not expressly require payment of the $250 community service fee described in G.S. 143B-708. The Clarifications Act amends the condition to require the fee. The change is effective July 16, 2012, and applies to any community service ordered as a community and intermediate condition on or after that date.

Post-release supervision changes. The Clarifications Act made the following changes to post-release supervision.

First, amended G.S. 15A-1368.3(c) states that when a person is reimprisoned for a violation of post-release supervision, his or her period of supervised release is tolled. (There is not a parallel provision tolling a probationer’s period of probation during a CRV period.) The amended law also adds that a supervisee is not to be rereleased onto post-release supervision once the supervisee has served all the time remaining on his or her maximum imposed term. That change applies to all supervisees, including sex offenders, effective for violations on or after July 16, 2012.

Second, the act amends G.S. 143B-720 to allow the Post-Release Supervision and Parole Commission to hold post-release supervision and parole hearings for all supervisees and parolees and contempt hearings for sex offenders by videoconference. The change is effective December 1, 2012.

Third, the act amends G.S. 15A-1368.1 to make clear that the post-release supervision law applies to drug trafficking sentences. The act also adds time to the maximum sentences for drug trafficking in G.S. 90-95(h) to cover defendants’ early release onto post-release supervision. The act adds three months to the maximum sentences for Class C, D, and E trafficking (so that maximum sentences in those cases are 120 percent of the minimum plus 12 months) and nine months to the maximum sentences for Class F, G, and H trafficking (so that maximums in those cases are 120 percent of the minimum plus 9 months). The changes are effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012. For a discussion of how to handle drug trafficking sentences for offenses committed between December 1, 2011 and November 30, 2012, see Jamie Markham, Revised Drug Trafficking Chart, N.C. CRIM. L., UNC SCH. OF GOV’T BLOG (Aug. 1, 2012).

- 38. S.L. 2012-190 \(S 821\): Improper taking of menhaden or thread herring. Effective for offenses committed on or after January 1, 2013, this act adds G.S. 113-187(e) to make it a Class A1 misdemeanor to take menhaden or Atlantic thread herring by the use of a purse seine net deployed by a mother ship and one or more runner boats in coastal fishing waters.

39. S.L. 2012-191 (H 1023): Expunction of nonviolent offenses. Effective for petitions filed on or after December 1, 2012, this act creates a new type of expunction, repeals a type of expunction that is effectively covered by the new expunction procedure, and revises two existing types of expunctions.

New G.S. 15A-145.5 authorizes expunction of “nonviolent” misdemeanors and felonies, defined by the offenses that are not considered to be “nonviolent.” Excluded from the “nonviolent” category are Class A through Class G felonies and Class A1 misdemeanors, offenses that include assault as an essential element, offenses requiring registration as a sex offender, certain drug offenses, and other listed offenses in new G.S. 15A-145.5(a). A person may obtain expunction of multiple nonviolent felony and nonviolent misdemeanor convictions if they are disposed of in the same session of court and none occurred after the person had already been served with criminal process for the commission of a nonviolent felony or nonviolent misdemeanor. To be eligible for an expunction, the person must not have any other misdemeanor or felony convictions other than a traffic violation; must not have previously obtained an expunction under the new statute or under G.S. 15A-145 through G.S. 15A-145.4; and must wait at least fifteen years from completion of the sentence of the conviction to be expunged. The petition for expunction must be served on the district attorney where the case was tried; the district attorney then has 30 days in which to file an objection and must make best efforts before the hearing to contact the victim, if any, to notify the victim of the expunction request. If granted, the expunction restores the person to the status the person occupied before the criminal proceedings, and agencies must reverse any administrative actions taken against the person as a result of the conviction that has been expunged. However, a person must disclose the expunged convictions to the applicable certifying commission if he or she is seeking certification as a law-enforcement officer under G.S. Chapters 17C or 17E. The act revises G.S. 15A-151 and pertinent statutes in G.S. Chapters 17C and 17E to allow disclosure of expunged convictions under the new statute to state and local law enforcement agencies for employment purposes and to the pertinent certifying commissions.

The act repeals G.S. 15A-145(d1), which authorized expunction of misdemeanor larceny convictions after 15 years. Expunctions obtained under that statute before December 1, 2012, remain effective and are not abated.

Amendments to G.S. 15A-145.4, which authorizes expunction of “nonviolent” felonies committed when a person was under age 18, modify the offenses excluded from the definition of “nonviolent” felony. For example, a felony conviction for an offense involving methamphetamine, heroin, or sale, delivery, or possession with intent to sell or deliver cocaine remains excluded from the definition of a “nonviolent” felony that may be expunged, but a prayer for judgment continued for such an offense is subject to expunction if the offense is a Class G, H, or I felony. A person still may obtain an expunction of multiple nonviolent felony convictions disposed of at the same session of court if none of the offenses occurred after the person had already been served with criminal process (was, charged and arrested) for a nonviolent felony.

Last, amended G.S. 15A-146, which authorizes expunction of charges that have been dismissed or for which the person has been found not guilty or not responsible, adds prior expunctions under G.S. 15A-145.4 and G.S. 15A-145.5 as bars to obtaining an expunction under G.S. 15A-146. The expanded bar does not apply to petitions filed before December 1, 2012.

40. S.L. 2012-193 (H 153): Forfeiture of public retirement benefits for certain felonies and revised aggravating factor in support of forfeiture. Statutes governing public employment retirement benefits have provided for forfeiture of benefits on conviction of certain offenses, such as buying and selling one's office, if the person was in an elected position, the person committed the offense while serving in that position, and the offense was directly related to the member's service in that position. See, e.g., G.S. 135-75.1 (judicial officials); G.S. 135-18.10 (teachers and state employees). Effective for offenses committed on or after December 1, 2012, this act adds several new statutes expanding the offenses that trigger forfeiture and making the forfeiture provisions applicable to all employees in the retirement systems covered by those statutes. Thus, new G.S. 135-18.10A prohibits the payment of retirement benefits or allowances, except for return of an employee's own contributions plus interest, to an employee in the Teachers' and State Employees' Retirement System who is convicted of any felony under federal law or the laws of this State if (1) the offense was committed while the employee was in service and (2) the conduct resulting in the conviction was directly related to the employee's office or employment. The new statute states that the direct relationship in (2) applies to felony convictions where the court finds the aggravating factor in new G.S. 15A-1340.16(d)(9), described below, or under other applicable state or federal procedures. The forfeiture applies to employees whose benefits have not vested as of December 1, 2012; for employees whose benefits have vested by then, the employees are not entitled to any creditable service accruing on or after December 1, 2012. The act makes similar changes in G.S. 128.38.4A and G.S. 128.26 (Local Government Employees' Retirement System); G.S. 135-75.1A and G.S. 135-56 (judicial retirement); and G.S. 120-4.33A and G.S. 120-4.12 (General Assembly member retirement). The act also directs The University of North Carolina and North Carolina Community College System, in revised G.S. 135-5.1 and G.S. 135-5.4, to adopt equivalent forfeiture provisions for employees who have elected to participate in the Optional Retirement Program and provides, in revised G.S. 143-166.30 and G.S. 143-166.50, for forfeiture of contributions to the Supplemental Retirement Income Plans for State and Local Law-Enforcement Officers if the officers' benefits are forfeited under the new statutes.

The act also amends G.S. 15A-1340.16(d)(9), one of the statutory aggravating factors in felony sentencing, to make the factor applicable to a defendant who held public elected or appointed office or public employment at the time of the offense and the offense directly related to the conduct of the office or employment. New G.S. 15A-1340.16(f) states that if the court determines that this aggravating factor has been proven, the court must notify the State Treasurer of the conviction and aggravating factor. The new subsection requires the State to include notice in the indictment that it intends to prove this factor.

41. S.L. 2012-194 (S 847): Technical corrections, citizen-initiated arrests, designation of senior resident superior court judge, and bar from practice of funeral service for conviction of offense of sexual nature against a minor. Almost all of this act consists of technical corrections, but there are a few substantive changes in the law. Included in the technical changes are revisions of the statutory charts on the authorized number of magistrates and assistant district attorneys to reflect the reductions made in recent years.

One substantive change is an amendment to G.S. 7A-38.5 to require the chief district judge and District Attorney to refer any citizen-initiated misdemeanor charge, defined as a warrant issued by a magistrate or other judicial official based on information supplied through oath or affirmation by a private citizen, to the local mediation center unless there is no mediation center available, the case involves domestic violence, or the judge or District Attorney determines that mediation is not appropriate. The mediation center will have 30 days to resolve the matter; otherwise, it goes back on the criminal docket. A District Attorney may elect to have the prosecutorial district opt out of the mediation requirement.

Another substantive change is the method of selecting the senior resident superior court judge. Revised G.S. 7A-41.1 returns to the automatic designation of the judge with the longest continuous time on the superior court bench, with one exception. The exception is the senior resident of any superior court district that consists of a set of districts “wholly contained in one county that is specified in law as the sole proper venue for certain actions.” It appears that the one district that meets this test is the Tenth Judicial District, Wake County. For that district, the senior resident is to be designated by and serve at the pleasure of the chief justice.

New G.S. 90-210.25B prohibits the Board of Funeral Service from issuing or renewing a license to engage in funeral services to a person who has been convicted of a sexual offense against a minor as defined in the new statute. The Board must impose an equivalent sanction if a person holding a funeral services license in another jurisdiction has had the license revoked or suspended for other felony convictions or because of conduct related to fitness to practice.

42. S.L. 2012-200 \(S 229\): Ginseng, galax, and Venus flytrap. As part of lengthy amendments to the state’s environmental laws, this act amends G.S. 106-202.19, effective for offenses committed on or after October 1, 2012, to prohibit: uprooting, digging, taking, or otherwise disturbing from another person’s land ginseng, galax, or Venus flytrap without a written permit from the owner; buying galax and Venus flytrap outside of buying season; and buying more than five pounds of galax or 50 Venus flytrap plants for resale or trade except in accordance with the requirements of the statute. A violation is a Class 2 misdemeanor and subject to the civil penalties provided in the statute.

PROBLEMS IN SELECTING THE PROPER CHARGE AND ISSUING PROCESS

Instructions: For each of the following sets of facts, assume that what is written is reliable information, then decide whether a criminal offense has been committed. If there is a crime, decide what kind of process should be issued. Each magistrate should select the proper AOC form and complete the form for one of the problems. In some of the situations you may be required simply to give advice to another person rather than issue process. If that is the case, be prepared to state in class exactly what you would say to that other person. For this set of problems, do not set conditions of pretrial release.

1. Mrs. Lorean Warren comes in with her 11 year-old son, Tommy. Tommy went to the Running Brook Golf Club yesterday morning to make some money caddying. When he approached Raymond G. Mallory and asked if Mallory wanted a caddy, Mallory said, "Get out of here, you damn little beggar" and pushed Warren to the ground with his arm. Warren fell on gravel and scraped his right arm. Mallory is a 45 year-old real estate broker who lives at 1011 Whitworth Street.
2. Patrolman Robert Lucas of the Franklin Police Department comes in and says that when he stopped Francis Smith about half an hour ago to give him a ticket for speeding 55 mph in a 45 mph zone, Smith called Lucas "a stupid flat-footed pig bastard." Smith's license indicated he was 24 years old and lives at 300 Oakwood Street.
3. Officer Thomas Burgess comes in and says that while Abraham Waverly was driving his 1991 Ford Taurus on Highway 73 near Andrews, N.C., yesterday, Charles T. Lloyd, 34, Apt. 3B, 2100 Brookside Drive, Franklin, drove alongside Waverly and fired a shotgun towards him. The shot shattered the back window and caused Waverly to drive off the side of the road, but no other damage or injury was sustained.
4. Lawrence T. Russell, a local merchant, appears saying that at 11:00 o'clock this morning he saw a 1990 red Chevrolet, N.C. license TRT442, driven by Thomas Sudland, run a red light at the corner of 8th Street and Mud Avenue.
5. Detective Roland Garland comes in with Lewis Wells who says that last night at 11:30 p.m. Bobby Hanners jumped on him, Wells, in Joe's Roadside Bar on Hopewell Boulevard. Hanners pulled a hunting knife with an 8" blade and cut Wells several times. Only one of the cuts required stitches, 5 stitches on the left hand. Wells doesn't know Hanners but got his name from the bartender, who thinks Hanners, a 6'3", 200 lb., white male, 25 years old, lives at Good-View Trailer Park.
6. Merchant Sally Kessler comes and tells you that Peter Kirkman wrote a worthless check in the amount of $79.95 when he bought some tools last week. Kirkman, white male, 27 years old, lives in an adjoining county at 22 Westover Drive, Smithville.

7. About 20 minutes ago officer Robert Lucas of the Franklin Police Department stopped Alice Lodge to give her a ticket for running a stop sign. Lodge's boyfriend, Fred Chambers, jumped out of the passenger's seat, ran around the car, called Lucas a "fat ignorant jerk" and shoved him to the ground while Lucas was trying to complete the citation. Lucas has placed Chambers under arrest for obstructing an officer and has now brought him before you. Chambers is white, 27 years old, and lives at 1414 Lockwood Circle.
8. Louise Day Hill, a sales clerk at Ivey's in Downtown Mall, Franklin, caught Ira Davis with a Wilson's Originals blouse, size 9, in her shopping bag while she was in the store. The blouse still had the Ivey's tag on it, indicating a price of $17.99. Davis is 19, white, lives at Apt. 13C, Old Towne Apartments, Kensington Drive. She is a local college student. Hill wants you to issue an arrest warrant.
9. Douglas Feldon, a security guard at Downtown Mall, Franklin, appears and explains that earlier today he caught Rita Davis in the parking lot of the mall with a pair of Brobeggio women's shoes, size 8 narrow. Feldon chased Davis after being told by Louise Day Hill, a sales clerk at Ivey's, that Davis had taken the shoes without paying. The shoes were in a box held in Davis's hand and the price tag had been torn off. Hill said the shoes sell for $28.95. Feldon checked Davis' driver's license which said that she lives at Apt. 13C, Old Towne Apartments, Kensington Drive, and is 26 years old. She is white. Feldon took the shoes back and let Davis go; he wants a warrant against her for shoplifting.
10. Detective Albert Simmons appears and says that John "The Breadman" Harding broke the kitchen window and entered Diana Stallings' house at 451 Mason Court at 1 a.m. last night. A house guest, Levine Kelley, caught Harding while he was in the living room and before anything had been disturbed by Harding. Harding has no known local address presently. He is about 30, black, about 6', 180 pounds.
11. Detective Ross Davidson appears and says that Eddie Fern entered Ross and Casey's Fine Appliances, 5660 Stanley Drive, through the unlocked back door at some time between 9 p.m., last Friday and 8 a.m., Saturday. Fern took a 13" Sony color television, serial #ART890034, and a Mr. Coffee coffee maker, DiMaggio special, model 53B. The television set is valued at $359.95 and the coffee maker at $27.50. Fern is 29, white, lives at 452 Jefferson Court.
12. Patrolman Robert Evans arrests Gilbert Sullivan and takes him to the magistrate's office. At 10:00 p.m. tonight Sullivan walked into Ken's Quickie Mart, Highway 430, about two miles out of town, pulled a pistol, pointed it at the manager, Kenneth Evans, and said, "Give me all your cash or I'll blow your damn head off." Evans complied, handing Sullivan about $450 in cash. The only customer in the store at the time was Rayline Corley, a 50-year-old housewife buying some bread and eggs.
13. Tom Martin and Mumford Ford have been feuding about a girl for about three months. Ford comes in and tells you that this morning Martin broke into Ford's apartment, #45B Old Towne Apartments, and painted "pig," "queer," and "toad" on the living room and bedroom walls in letters about two feet high. Martin is white, 24, and lives at #237 Village East, Westwood.

14. Detective Mason Gruder appears and says that last Saturday morning Haywood Goodman went into Larry Oldman's unlocked 1994 Pontiac while it was parked in the parking lot of Lynwood's Funeral Home, 1220 Patton Avenue, and took a tan sports coat worth about $45. He also tore out and took Aldham's Motorola KZR12 cassette tape recorder worth about $180. Goodman is 32, black, and works at Franklin Auto Repair, 1200 Fuquay Road; Gruder does not know his home address.
15. Manning Brandon and Susan Stewart come in and say that about 11 p.m. tonight that John Black was in the Frog's Kiss bar and had been drinking several beers. He walked up to a table at which Stewart and Brandon were sitting and said to Stewart, "Hey, you're quite some honey. Why don't you drop this queer turkey and come with me. I'd really like to give it to you in bed." Stewart was quite embarrassed and Brandon became angry. Brandon told Black to leave, to which Black replied, "Buzz off, you stringy pimp fairy." At that, Brandon leaped to his feet ready to strike Black, but several people intervened and no blows were actually inflicted by either party. Lloyd Crane, the bartender at the time, has come in also and says the story is true. Crane knows that Black, about 25, 6', 175 pounds, lives at the Hot Springs Trailer Park on Old Canton Road. Brandon and Stewart ask for a warrant for verbal assault.
16. Janice Monroe appears and says Charlie Davis was dating her until they had a violent argument last week. Monroe told Davis she never wanted to see him again. Saturday morning Davis went to Monroe's house at 213 Corbin Lane. Monroe ordered him to leave, but he refused and then picked up a lawn chair from the front yard and threw it through her front window. It will cost about $25 to have the window replaced; the lawn chair, worth about $6, was broken. Davis is 37, white, and lives at 340 Greenwich Road.
17. Tom Martin and Mumford Ford have been feuding over a girl for several months. Ford comes in and says that yesterday, Martin came up to him on the street, shook his fist at him, and said, "I've lost my patience with you. You keep away from Tricia from now on or I'll beat the hell out of you." Ford is afraid of Martin because Martin is about six inches taller and weighs 50 pounds more than him. Martin's age, address, etc. is given in #13 above.

Category	Specific Situation	Response	Statutory Basis	Form to Use
Delay initial appearance altogether	Person is unable to understand rights (ex., person is unconscious, grossly intoxicated, does not understand English)	Delay initial appearance for reasonable time without setting PTR conditions. If you commit person to jail until able to understand rights, set reasonable outer time limit and check regularly with jail. To avoid delay of initial appearance if person does not speak English, use telephone interpreting service when possible.	15A-511(a)(3)	AOC-CR-200 Fill out commitment portion of form only. Check the box to hold person "for the following purpose" and write purpose. Do not set PTR conditions in upper portion of form.
Conduct initial appearance, BUT delay setting pretrial release conditions	Person is charged with domestic violence offense under "48-hour" law	Conduct initial appearance, but do not set PTR conditions. Order that person be returned to magistrate if judge does not set PTR conditions within 48 hours. After 48 hours, magistrate has authority to delay setting of PTR conditions for reasonable time if person continues to pose danger, but authority should rarely be used.	15A-534.1	AOC-CR-200 Fill out commitment portion of form only. Check the domestic violence box and indicate when defendant should be returned to magistrate if judge has not acted.
	Felony by person on probation if insufficient information about danger to public ¹	Conduct initial appearance, but do not set PTR conditions. If defendant has been held for 7 days without PTR conditions, defendant must be brought before any judicial official to set PTR conditions. If sufficient information before then that not a danger, set PTR conditions.	15A-1345(b1)	AOC-CR-200, AOC-CR-272 (side two) Check the appropriate box in AOC-CR-200 and fill out AOC-CR-272 (side two)

PROBLEMS IN DETERMINING THE CONDITIONS OF PRETRIAL RELEASE

[Choose best answer(s) for each problem]

1. Frank Furrillo is arrested and brought before you for communicating threats to Joyce Davenport. Furrillo has been living as if married with Davenport for the past 18 months. Furrillo appears to be very upset at being arrested, but he cooperates with you and makes no threats. What action should you take?
 - a. Set release conditions as usual.
 - b. Set release conditions and commit him to jail for a reasonable time.
 - c. Do not set release conditions and commit him to jail for a reasonable time.
 - d. Place him in a holding cell for about 30 minutes.
 - e. Commit him to jail because only a judge may set release conditions for the period of 48 hours from Furrillo's arrest.

2. Rex "High Ball" Lincoln has been arrested and charged with driving while impaired. Lincoln is able to understand his procedural rights, but there is clear and convincing evidence that he presents a danger, if he is released, of physical injury to himself or others. What action should you take?
 - a. Order him detained until he is no longer impaired, up to 24 hours.
 - b. Set a high secured bond that he won't be able to meet for a while.
 - c. Set conditions of pretrial release, and order him detained for a while.
 - d. Set conditions of pretrial release, and order him detained until his mental and physical faculties are no longer impaired, up to 24 hours or a specified time less than 24 hours, or until a sober, responsible adult is willing and able to assume responsibility for the defendant until the defendant is no longer impaired.

3. Charles Manson was arrested and was charged with being drunk and disruptive. After you have found probable cause he starts screaming obscenities in a loud voice. You ask him to be quiet and he yells louder. This continues for several minutes and then he quiets down. Every few minutes he continues to mumble obscenities. What action should you take?
 - a. Place him in a holding cell for about 30 minutes.
 - b. Set release conditions as usual.
 - c. Set release conditions and commit him to jail for a reasonable time.
 - d. Do not set release conditions and commit him to jail for a reasonable time.

4. Amy Ames, a local prostitute, is arrested and charged with assault on a government officer. She walked up to his patrol car, leaned in the open window, yelled "buzz off," and slapped him in the face. You have placed her under a $500 secured bond. May you specify that the bond is to be satisfied with "cash only"?
 - a. Yes
 - b. No, unless authorized by a judge in local pretrial release policy

5. It is near the end of your shift and you have just conducted an initial appearance for Wilson Snipes. You have placed him under a $2,000 secured bond. Snipes is resting uncomfortably in the jail because he cannot make bond. On the next shift (you are asleep at home) another magistrate, without consulting you, modifies Mr. Snipes' bond and places him under an unsecured bond. Snipes is released. Was the second magistrate's modification legally authorized based on these facts?

Now, defendant's mother only has $500 but she brings in three other relatives who have $500 each. They do not intend to make the cash available to satisfy the defendant's obligations and want to split the bond. What do you do? If your county allows splitting, how do you fill out the forms?

15. Defendant was arrested by law enforcement officers on a DCI hit on a warrant from another county. The officers do not have the warrant when they bring the defendant to you. What should you do?

16. You have set a $500 secured bond. A runner arrives to sign the bond for a bail agent (surety bondsman). What do you do?

PROBLEMS IN SETTING PRETRIAL RELEASE CONDITIONS

Instructions: For the following problems set the conditions of pretrial release as you would do so in your county.

To assist in doing these problems, the following is a list of each class of felonies and the minimum and maximum punishment for each, with the minimum based on a mitigated sentence in Prior Record Level 1 and the maximum based on an aggravated sentence in Prior Record Level VI (without the additional time for post-release supervision):

Class A.....	life without parole or death	Class E.....	15 to 85 months
Class B1.....	144 months to life without parole	Class F.....	10 to 50 months
Class B2.....	94 to 481 months	Class G.....	8 to 38 months
Class C.....	44 to 228 months	Class H.....	4 to 30 months
Class D.....	38 to 201 months	Class I.....	3 to 15 months

1. Detective Steve Roman arrests without a warrant and brings in Allen Watts Ewing, age 26, of 1150 Brookside Drive. Earlier this evening—in the course of a search of Ewing’s home with a search warrant—ten pounds of marijuana were found in his bedroom. He also had a .38 caliber pistol under his jacket in his belt. Ewing has two previous arrests and convictions for misdemeanor assault and has been employed as a cook at the same place for the past two years.

The charges are maintaining a dwelling and possession with intent to sell or deliver (Class I felony)

2. Officer Kerry Davis arrests without a warrant Jerry Dennis Lawrence, age 17, of 1407 Roosevelt Drive, and brings him to you. Early this afternoon, Lawrence saw the keys in the ignition of Marsha Williams’ 1982 Volkswagen, license TRG 887, when the car was parked on Kennedy Street. Lawrence got in the car, drove it to Frame Street on the other side of town, and abandoned it, just before being apprehended by Davis. Lawrence lives with his parents and is a high school student. He has a previous conviction for reckless driving.

The charge is unauthorized use of conveyance (Class 1 misdemeanor)

3. SBI agent Felix Katz brings in Troy K. Cake, age 24, arrested under an arrest warrant for selling heroin and possessing heroin with intent to sell and deliver. The arrest warrant was issued in a county located 200 miles from your county. Cake has no prior arrests. Cake has $1,500 cash and says he would be willing to post a cash bond.

The charges are Sale of heroin (Class G felony) and Possession with Intent (Class H felony)

4. A Highway Patrol Officer arrest K.T. Rowse, age 19, of 65 Roosevelt Drive, for DWI. Rowse's alcohol concentration is 0.27. Rowse is cooperative but appears to be extremely intoxicated. There is no sober adult willing and able to take care of him.

The charge is DWI

5. A new .45 caliber Smith & Wesson revolver, serial #RR456J77, fair market value of $345, was stolen from Smithville Gun and Hobby Shop during a nighttime break-in two days ago. An undercover officer bought it this morning for $30 from Fred Lloyd, age 30, and then arrested him without a warrant and brings him to you. Lloyd is a resident of the county and has one prior conviction for felonious breaking and entering.

The charges are Felony breaking and entering and felony larceny (Class H felonies) and possession of firearm by a felon (Class G felony)

6. Detective Nancy Stone arrests Wayne Buchanan without a warrant and brings him to you and explains: Last night Wayne Buchanan poured gasoline inside and set fire to Donald Bell's 1991 Ford Mustang. The entire back seat was burned before the fire was extinguished. Buchanan is 16 years old and lives with his parents in town. He refuses to be released to the custody of his parents and he has previously failed to appear in court for a reckless driving charge.

The charges are Burning personal property (Class H felony) and Malicious use of an incendiary device (Class G felony)

7. Deputy Sheriff Samuel Burden arrests Steve Wiles, age 18, with an order for arrest for Wiles for failing to appear in court for the charge of accessory after the fact of armed robbery. The order for arrest was issued by a district court judge in your county and bears the notation "$25,000 secured bond."

No new charge

8. A city police officer arrests Susan T. Jones, age 35, of 66 E. Main Street, for DWI. Jones's alcohol concentration is 0.20. Jones is uncooperative and extremely intoxicated. Her husband, age 37, was a passenger in the car that Jones was driving. He is sober, has a valid driver's license, and states that he will take care of her until she becomes sober.

The charge is DWI

9. Officer Jesse Wilson appears at your office with Ron Z. Bloat, age 31. The officer has arrested Bloat based on an outstanding arrest warrant for a $55 worthless check. It is Saturday night. Bloat has a long history of mental trouble. Shortly after his appearance a worker from the Franklin Mental Health Clinic appears and says the Clinic would be happy to see to it that Bloat appears in court.

APPLYING THE LAW OF SEARCH WARRANTS

PREFACE

These materials are intended to help you learn how to apply the law of search warrants in making decisions that a magistrate might be required to make when dealing with search warrants. Although they are directed toward teaching a magistrate how to determine probable cause and how to fill-out a search warrant, they also are applicable to teaching these duties to a law enforcement officer. These materials are intended to guide you toward learning skills in applying the law of search and seizure. When you have successfully learned a skill, you should be able to make a correct decision in a situation that calls for the skill. Following is a list of the skills that you should learn from these materials.

- A. To determine whether a given set of facts justifies the issuance of a search warrant.
- B. To draw out from a law enforcement officer the information that is necessary to establish probable cause.
- C. To write an adequate description of the property to be searched for.
- D. To write an adequate description of the place to be searched.
- E. To follow the proper procedure in issuing a search warrant.

The materials are divided into an introduction and five sections. Each section is directed toward one of the skills listed above. The material in these sections is largely presented in the form of "programmed" instruction. This means that you will be asked to fill in blanks and supply the answers to questions using information that has appeared in the material. When you come to one of these blanks or questions, you may certainly read back over the material to find the answer. The answer itself appears below the question, in single-spaced type enclosed between two lines. You should keep that answer covered, however, until you have answered the question yourself. Proceeding in this way helps you to master the material more easily. Read each answer all the way through. Take your time and reread any preceding material if you do not understand an answer. If you still have questions you will be provided an opportunity to ask them later. Remember, you are teaching yourself a subject basic to the proper performance of your duties.

INTRODUCTION

Americans traditionally have resented the invasion of individual privacy by government officials for the purpose of search. Yet they have recognized the necessity of invading individual privacy in order to detect and to prevent crime. The law of search and seizure has grown in response to the need to balance these two interests.

The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States responds to this conflict by prohibiting "unreasonable" searches and seizures. This command is directed to both federal and state governments. In addition, the Constitution of North Carolina, which prohibits the general warrant (authorizing arbitrary searches) as "dangerous to liberty," has been expanded by judicial interpretation to encompass a general prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Origin of the Law of Search and Seizure

The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States provides: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized."

The laws of search and seizure has developed largely in response to the _____ Amendment to the United States _____. This amendment requires that searches be _____ and sets out requirements for search warrants.

The law of search and seizure has developed largely in response to the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and requires that searches be reasonable.

Article I, Section 20 of the Constitution of North Carolina provides: "General warrants, whereby any officer or messenger may be commanded to search suspected places without evidence of the act committed, or to seize any person or persons not named, whose offense is not particularly described and supported by evidence, are dangerous to liberty and shall not be granted."

The North Carolina Constitution prohibits _____ warrants.

The North Carolina Constitution prohibits general warrants and encompasses a general prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures.

In recent years, court cases and a fairly small number of statutes have put additional flesh on the bones of these _____ requirements to protect people's privacy.

The constitutional requirements have been clarified in recent years.

The law of search and seizure are aimed at protecting for everyone a basic American right--the right to be left alone. The law helps to p_____ this r_____ by restricting government officials' power to interfere with people's _____.

The law of search and seizure helps to protect this right to be left alone by restricting official action in interfering with people's privacy.

If an officer wants to search an individual's person or property, the officer may do so as long as the officer does not illegally _____ with the individual's privacy.

An officer may not illegally interfere with a person's privacy.

The law of search and seizure attempt to balance the need to enforce laws against the need to _____ people's _____ to be _____ alone.

To protect people's right to be left alone is a major purpose of the laws of search and seizure.

One of the traditional means of protecting the right to privacy has been to require law enforcement officers to obtain a search warrant from a neutral judicial officer. Decisions of both the United States Supreme Court and the North Carolina Supreme Court make clear the importance of the role of the magistrate as a check on the power of the state to interfere with a person's privacy. These decisions have required that the judicial officer be neutral, that the person applying for the warrant demonstrate probable cause to make a search, and that the warrant and its supporting affidavit specify the justification for the search.

Your principal function as a magistrate then is to exercise your independent judgment in evaluating facts presented to you by a law enforcement officer to see if they establish p_____ c_____ and therefore _____ the issuance of a search warrant.

In issuing search warrants, the magistrate's primary function is to use neutral and independent judgment to determine if the facts described by the officer establish probable cause to justify the issuance of the warrant.

Failure to comply with the constitutional requirements can result in adverse effects on both the state and the officer executing the search warrant. The courts refuse to admit into evidence information and objects obtained from a search based on an invalid search warrant. The result is that the state is unable to convict some offenders because the constitutional requirements for a valid search were not satisfied. The warrant may in some cases be so defective as to subject the officer executing it to civil and criminal penalties and disciplinary action by the officer's employing agency.

Two practical consequences of an invalid search warrant are the real possibilities that the state may find that information critical to a conviction is in _____ in evidence or that the officer executing the invalid warrant faces _____ and _____ sanctions for doing so.

The invalid search warrant presents real problems for the prosecution because essential evidence may be inadmissible and may subject the law enforcement officer to criminal and civil sanctions.

Of course the most serious result is a weakness in our system of criminal justice that comes from the failure of the judicial officer to exercise independent judgment as a _____ on the power of the state to invade the _____ of its citizens.

The most serious consequence of the magistrate's failure to observe constitutional requirements in issuing a search warrant is the harm that is done to our system of criminal justice because the magistrate does not act as a check on the state's power to interfere with a person's privacy.

Section A

The purpose of this section is to develop the skill to determine whether a given set of facts justifies the issuance of a search warrant.

As discussed in the introduction, a basic constitutional requirement for any search is probable cause. One of the judicial officer's most difficult problems is determining whether the facts related by an officer establish probable cause to support the issuance of a valid search warrant. This determination, however, is one of the most valuable contributions that a magistrate makes. An independent evaluation of the facts when an officer applies for a search warrant can prevent an illegal search, the results of which may be excluded from evidence at trial. Probable cause for a search requires enough knowledge to lead a reasonable person to believe that there is a fair probability that the object of the search is in the place to be searched. Probable cause, then, is based on the use of judgment by a _____ person. It is (more/less) than reasonable suspicion but (more/less) than proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

Probable cause is based on the judgment of a reasonable person. It must be more than reasonable suspicion but less than proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

CASE: Several residents living near a bank which had just been robbed described to police a car (including license number) which had been at the bank before the robbery and left immediately after the robbery occurred. They saw a man with a satchel run from the bank into the car at the time of robbery. Is this information sufficient to establish probable cause that the fruits of the robbery are in the suspect's car?

The evidence provided by the residents was sufficient to show probable cause for a warrant. A reasonable man would believe that it was likely that the stolen money would be in the car, even though it is not certain.

CASE: A woman called the police that The Cove, a local night club, was selling crack cocaine. Her son had come home apparently having just used cocaine , and she said that it was common knowledge that The Cove was the only place her son could obtain cocaine in her small rural community. Does probable cause exist to indicate that cocaine is present at The Cove?

Probable cause does not exist. The only indication that cocaine were there was the woman's vague belief that her son obtained cocaine at The Cove. She did not see anyone sell cocaine to her son, nor did she claim that her son had ever told her that he purchased cocaine from The Cove. This information would not convince a reasonable person of the likelihood of finding cocaine for sale at The Cove.

CASE: A city law enforcement officer comes into your office and says that the officer has just received an anonymous telephone call which said that a noted drug dealer had heroin in his house. The officer wants you to issue a warrant to search the house for heroin. What should you do?

The facts given by the officer, based solely on an anonymous telephone call, are no more than speculation about what is in the house. You should refuse to issue the warrant unless the officer can swear to specific facts that would lead a reasonable person to believe there is a fair probability that heroin is in the house. The next section contains instruction about obtaining those specific facts.

One of the most difficult situations in which you will have to determine if probable cause exists is the case when an officer wants a search warrant based on a confidential informant's report. The officer naturally wishes to protect the informant's identity as much as possible, but must show enough facts to indicate probable cause for the search. Specific information must be included in the search warrant application when an informant's report is being used. The officer should state specifically why the informant is probably telling the truth and give enough information to convince a reasonable person that the informant is indeed telling the truth. In other words, the informant should be shown to be reliable (or the informant's information should be shown to be reliable). However, the informant's name does not have to be revealed to the magistrate or appear in the application.

An informant's _____ or the _____ of the informant's information should be established when a search warrant is based on an informant's report.

It is important to establish an informant's reliability or the reliability of the informant's information when an informant's report is used in a search warrant application.

Just exactly what information will be sufficient to establish an informant's reliability in any given case is unclear. But it helps if the officer can state how often the officer has relied on the informant's information and how often this information has led to an arrest and/or conviction.

Determine whether the following statement is adequate to establish the informant's reliability: "A reliable and confidential informant who has in the past given me, Detective Don Smith, information that has resulted in arrests and convictions in court on drug charges six times."

This is a fairly common way of stating an informant's record of reliability and is sufficient. But the statement can be strengthened considerably if the officer states how often the informant has volunteered information and that the information has generally been accurate.

The informant's good track record is not the only factor to be considered. Especially when the informant is used for the first time, you should consider the informant's relationship to the suspect, the likelihood of that informant having the particular information, and any other factor the officer would know that would increase the likelihood that the informant was not an irresponsible person giving false information.

Another way to show that the informant's report is reliable is for the officer requesting the warrant to offer evidence of independent personal information about the suspect that supports or corroborates the informant's report. This knowledge must be shown in the affidavit by specific facts and not by the mere assertion that the officer has such information. Determine whether the following statement is adequate: "This officer has personal knowledge that the person named in the warrant is a user of narcotics."

The officer may indeed have such information, but has not said what it is. This statement establishes no more than a mere assertion that such information exists. The court will want to know (and so should you) just exactly what the officer knows to support a belief that the suspect is a narcotics user.

The informant should be able to supply enough information to convince a reasonable person that the suspect is indeed engaging in an illegal activity and that the informant is not merely passing on a rumor. Consider the following statement: "The informant states that his roommate told him that a man, whose name he thinks is John Doe, was on Main Street last night selling amphetamine pills." Is this informant's report sufficient probable cause to issue a warrant?

It is evident from the statement that the informant has no firsthand knowledge of the alleged offense. Further, assuming as a court will, that the statement contains all the information that the informant has, the informant is unable to accurately identify the suspect or give enough facts about the alleged offense to be sure that a violation of law actually took place. A warrant based on this information would be invalid, and evidence obtained in a search in executing the warrant would be inadmissible in court.

In other words, even though the informant is reliable, there should be an indication of the basis of the informant's conclusion and not just the conclusion itself.

In short, an application for a search warrant based on an informant's report should contain enough facts to indicate the source of the informant's conclusion and that the information is not a mere r_____. And it should establish the informant's r_____, including, when possible, the officer's p_____ k_____ that supports the informant's report.

Before an informant's information may be used as a basis for a valid warrant, the application should indicate enough to establish that the information is not a mere rumor. The informant's reliability should also be shown, and it's especially helpful if the officer's personal knowledge corroborates the informant's report.

Is the following affidavit adequate under the guidelines discussed above?

"A reliable informant, who has in the past volunteered information on three occasions that resulted in an arrest and conviction each time, within the past 24 hours told me, Detective Jane Miller, that Henry Smith has in his house located at 24 Main St., Dunn, N.C., a quantity of the controlled substance, amphetamine. The informant told me he saw the a large quantity of amphetamines in the house within the past 72 hours, and at that time he received several amphetamine pills that came from Henry Smith while he was in the kitchen. I have suspected Henry Smith of possessing amphetamines since three months ago when I arrested him during a raid at a party at which amphetamines and other narcotics were being used. I have seen Henry Smith since that time in the company of other confirmed users of narcotic drugs on several occasions."

This is a good example of the type of information that an affidavit should contain when based on an informant's report. The basis of his conclusion is stated (he saw the drugs) and his reliability is shown by his track record and by the officer's information which corroborates the informant's report. In addition, the report gives the time when the informant saw the drugs in the house as well as the time the informant gave his information to Detective Jane Miller.

Sometimes information is supplied by informants who are not merely confidential—they are anonymous. Even the officer does not know the identity of the person who has given the information. Anonymous information by itself is insufficient to establish probable cause. In some cases, however, anonymous information may help to establish probable cause if the officer provides other corroborating and reliable information so that the totality of circumstances establish a fair probability that the object of the search is in the place to be searched.

Anonymous information by itself is _____ to establish probable cause. However, anonymous information along with other corroborating and reliable information may establish probable cause when the t _____ of the circumstances establish a f _____ p _____ that the object of the search is in the place to be searched.

Anonymous information by itself is insufficient to establish probable cause. However, when the totality of circumstances presented, including the anonymous information, establishes a fair probability that the object of the search can be found in the place to be searched, then probable cause exists to issue a search warrant.

Section B

The purpose of this section is to develop the ability to draw out information from an officer which will support probable cause.

In the previous section we took a look at what facts constitute probable cause. As you have probably guessed, probable cause is a fairly ambiguous concept. Often an officer will actually have good reason to believe that contraband may be found in a certain place but fail to articulate reasons adequately to establish probable cause for issuance of the warrant. In these situations you will need to be able to spot weaknesses in the officer's statement of facts and then question the officer to see if the information is sufficient to justify the issuance of a warrant. In this section you will practice picking out the weak spots in various statements of facts.

As we have seen before, probable cause is information which would lead a _____ person to believe that the object of the search is in the place to be searched.

The information should be sufficient to cause a reasonable person to believe that the object of the search is really in the place to be searched.

From the list that follows, choose the items which would lead a reasonable person to believe that contraband could be found in a certain house:

- A. A detailed report from a confidential informant whose previous reports had been accurate and which showed that he had seen a suspect selling drugs in his house, confirming what the police already had suspected.

- B. A tip from a Department of Social Services caseworker who during a house call had seen marijuana growing behind the house.
- C. A complaint from an irate woman that her neighbors were car thieves because they had several cars in their yard which they were apparently "stripping."
- D. A report by an officer that she saw and smelled what appeared to be several gallon jugs of whiskey partially covered by a sheet in the kitchen of a house when called to the house concerning a possible domestic dispute.

Answers "A" and "D" are fairly clearly facts that would cause a reasonable person to believe that contraband could indeed be found at the location described by the officer or informant. Answer "B" could be very strong evidence that marijuana could be found behind the house, but what additional information would you want to know? Wouldn't it be reasonable to first satisfy yourself that the caseworker was capable of identify growing marijuana? Answer "C" pretty clearly could not stand by itself. A reasonable person could think of several explanations for the presence of the automobiles which would be at least as reasonable as the possibility that they were stolen. If an officer had come to you with the woman's complaint and asked for a warrant, what additional information would you want? At the very least the officer should drive by the house to see if any of the cars resemble those reported stolen, and to make other inquiries regarding the activities of the occupants of the house.

Consider the case situations which follow and write in the space provided the kind of additional information that would be required to establish probable cause.

CASE: An officer comes to you and says that the officer has been watching a suspect who previously has been convicted of possessing stolen goods. This man has been meeting another man who has also been convicted of possessing stolen goods in the latter's house at regular intervals. The officer states that the officer has personally seen the suspect enter the house several times with VCR's, stereo equipment, and television sets, and that the suspect's wife has also been seen at the house.

The facts that the officer gave simply do not establish illegal activity any more than legal activity. The facts that will constitute probable cause are (1) facts that are inconsistent with lawful activity (or if the facts by themselves are consistent with lawful activity, what makes those facts collectively appear to be indicators of illegal activity, based on the officer's training or experience), or (2) the presence of evidence of illegal activity. The facts in the stolen goods case described above can be explained just as easily by legal as illegal conduct, so there is not yet probable cause. You might try to find out whether the officer has evidence of whether the goods being brought to the house are stolen, whether there have been recent break-ins in the community which these kind of goods have been stolen, whether a reliable informant had passed on information indicating that the suspect is currently dealing in these kind of stolen goods, etc.

CASE: An officer comes to you and says that the officer has a report from an informant that there is going to be a drug party at a certain house tonight in which marijuana, LSD, and possibly cocaine will be distributed to the guests. The officer has a list of names, including the occupant of the house and several of the guests. The officer knows what time it is going to be held and how much of each drug will be available. The officer knows that several of the persons listed have been convicted of possessing drugs and that almost all have been suspected of being drug users.

The officer has information indicating that there will indeed be contraband at the place to be searched, but the officer has neglected to give any information concerning the reliability of the informant and how the informant knew that the party is going to be held there (that is, the informant's basis of knowledge). You will want to know what the officer's experience has been with this informant and any other information that would tend to show that the informant knew what he was talking about.

CASE: An officer asks for a warrant to search a house based on an informant's report. This informant has cooperated with the department several times. Most of the informant's reports have resulted in convictions and all have resulted in arrests. The informant states that yesterday he was playing poker in a regularly held game out in a house in the country when one of the players, who lived in the house, put a quart of nontaxpaid whiskey on the table. When the other players questioned him about where he had gotten it, he jokingly said that he was "picking up a little extra money between Asheville and Morganton on Friday nights." The informant also stated that he had seen in the kitchen two cardboard cartons of quart jars identical to the one on the table that looked like they had white liquor in them. He also said that the man's name was Harry James and provided the exact location of the house. The officer said that the officer has had Harry James under surveillance off and on for several months.

Although this information might be sufficient to establish probable cause (especially if something was said about the informant's ability to recognize nontaxpaid liquor), it would be helped by providing more specific information about the officer's own personal knowledge of Harry James's involvement with nontaxpaid liquor that would support the informant's report. A statement that the officer "suspected" or had "been watching" the suspect for some time is not particularly useful. What had the officer seen while having James under surveillance?

CASE: An officer requests a warrant to search a house based on an informant's report. The informant has volunteered information about drug cases on six separate occasions, and all have resulted in convictions. The informant stated that the informant thinks that the occupant of a house (giving its address) is selling crack cocaine. The basis of his conclusion is the fact that he has seen several young people stop briefly at the house, talk to the occupant, and then leave. The informant knows one of the young people to be a user of cocaine. This person is also known to the officer as having been convicted of possession of cocaine and is now on probation.

The facts given by the informant do not establish probable cause. There are just as many legitimate reasons for the people to be going to the house as illegal, and there is no specific information about selling cocaine. Don't be fooled by the proven reliability of the informant. The facts given in each case must be considered independently. In this case the officer will have to get more specific information, if possible, from the informant or from other sources to support a belief that cocaine is being sold from the house. You probably noticed that the officer's personal corroboration of the informant's report concerned only one of the people going to the house.

Section C

The purpose of this section is to develop the skill to write an adequate description of the property to be searched for.

The search warrant must describe as accurately as possible what the officer is to look for, so that it will not appear to authorize the officer to grab everything in the place and so that the officer can identify the property to be seized. The warrant must describe _____ the officer is looking for and the description must be detailed enough that the officer can _____ the property if the officer finds it.

The officer must know as accurately as possible what to be looking for and to be able to recognize/identify the property if the officer sees it.

If the officer is searching for a stolen refrigerator, the officer needs a clear idea of what this stolen refrigerator looks like (identifying marks, model number, serial number, etc.) so that the officer will be unlikely to take one that is legally owned.

Below are three descriptions of property to be searched for. In each case indicate whether you think the description was precise enough to be considered valid.

Description 1: ". . . certain evidence of the crime (possession of stolen goods) was to be found on the defendant's person and his residence . . ." (valid/invalid) Why?

Invalid. Not specific in any way.

Description 2: The warrant directed the officers to seize any property ". . . being used and/or possessed in violation of . . ." the obscenity statute. (valid/invalid) Why?

Invalid. The court ruled that the warrant was too general in that it gave no guidelines to the officers as to what is obscene and what is not.

Description 3: The warrant described ". . . a set of Wilson Staff golf clubs with rubber grips, in fairly worn condition . . ." to be searched for in the defendant's house. (valid/invalid) Why?

Valid. The description indicates the item which should be seized with enough precision so that it would be unlikely that legally owned property would be taken by mistake.

When the kind of property the officer is searching for can never be possessed legally, the description need not be as detailed as when the property the officer is searching for can be confused with something that can be legally possessed.

If the warrant says only to seize "heroin" then it (can/cannot) be interpreted to permit the officer to take something that the owner is entitled to have. This is because the owner can (sometimes/never/always) have heroin.

Describing "heroin" as the property to be seized cannot be interpreted as permitting the officer to take away something the owner is entitled to have, because the owner can never legally possess heroin.

Section D

The purpose of this section is to develop the skill to write an adequate description of the place to be searched.

The search warrant must accurately describe the place to be searched so that the officer may reasonably be expected to find the place to be searched; otherwise it would not be clear that the warrant authorized the search actually made by the officer. The description of the place must be complete enough so that the officer _____ reasonably make a mistake and search the _____ place.

An officer cannot reasonably make a mistake and search the wrong place if the description of the place to be searched is detailed enough.

This rule ensures that the search covers only the place for which _____ to search has been shown. It is also a good idea, whenever possible, to state in the warrant the name of the person who possesses the place to be searched.

A full description of the place to be searched ensures that the search covers only the place for which probable cause to search has been demonstrated.

CASE: The affidavit reads "to search an apartment located at Colonial Arms Apts. located at 714 W. Henderson Street, Monroe, N.C." Is this description is adequate?

The affidavit is inadequate since there is more than one apartment at the given address. An adequate description would include the apartment number and the tenant's name, if available.

CASE: The affidavit reads, "to search apartments occupied by John Doe at 413 W. Franklin Street (Apt. 22B), Chapel Hill, N.C. and at 117 Canal Street (Apt. 6), Chapel Hill, N.C. for appliances stolen from Hill Office Supply: two IBM computers model 118, serial numbers 473-Z11368 and 356-X4629." Is this affidavit is adequate?

This affidavit is adequate. There's not much chance of using the warrant at the wrong place. Although not discussed before, it is better to issue a separate warrant for each of two separate places to be searched, even if they belong to the same person.

Section E

The purpose of this section is to develop the ability to follow the proper steps in issuing a search warrant.

In the preceding sections you have learned that p _____ c _____ consists of facts that would lead a _____ person to believe that the object of a search can be found in the place to be searched; that an adequate description of the _____ to be searched is one that would not lead the officer to make a _____ and to search the wrong place; that an adequate description of the _____ of the search is one that would prevent an officer from making a _____ and from taking property which should not be taken.

Probable cause is a factual situation that would lead a reasonable person to believe that the object of the search can be found in the place to be searched. An adequate description of the place to be searched is one that would prevent an officer from making a mistake about the place to be searched, and an adequate description of the object of the search is one that would prevent the officer from making a mistake about what to take.

If you can do what has been taught so far, you have the most important aspects of the law's requirements. Meeting these requirements is part of the general warrant-issuing procedure, which must be followed to make sure that the validity of the warrant cannot be successfully attacked.

The steps you as a magistrate must be sure to follow in issuing a search warrant are these:

1. Make sure there is a completed application for a search warrant. Either the applicant or you may complete the application (other than where signatures are required).
2. Place the applicant under oath or affirmation and swear the applicant to the truth of facts stated in application.

3. Examine the officer about the facts stated in the application.
4. If applicant tells you facts that are not stated in application, they must be added in writing to the application OR you may tape-record the testimony OR reduce it to writing on separate paper, provided you file the tape-recording or separate paper with clerk when you file the copy of the search warrant and application.
5. You may take affidavits from persons other than applicant, provided you attach them to application.
6. Determine whether descriptions of the premises and property are adequate.
7. Make sure the applicant has signed the application. Sign and date the application.
8. If a tape-recording or separate paper writing of oral testimony has been made or additional affidavits have been attached, indicate that at bottom of application and sign your name.
9. Complete the search warrant, including date and hour, signature, names of applicant and others giving information.
10. Give original (white copy) and one copy (pink copy) of warrant and application to officer.
11. File a copy (green copy) of warrant and application and tape-recording or separate writing or oral testimony, if any, with clerk.

Using these steps means, for example, that immediately after getting a completed search warrant application, you would _____ the applicant to the truth of facts in the application, and _____ the applicant about those facts.

You would swear the applicant to the truth of facts stated in the application, and examine the applicant concerning those facts.

If the applicant tells you facts that are not stated in the _____, they must be _____ to the application OR _____ or _____ AND you must file them with the clerk when you file the _____.

If the applicant testifies about facts not stated in the application, they must be added in writing to the application OR tape-recorded or reduced in writing on a separate paper AND you must file them with the clerk when you file the application and warrant.

It is important to tape-record or reduce oral testimony to writing in the application or on separate paper because the failure to do so will mean that the testimony cannot be considered in court when the validity of the search warrant is challenged.

In summary, carefully see that all the information provided for in the application and search warrant form is filled in. Remember to:

- place the applicant under oath or affirmation;
- examine the applicant about the facts stated in the application;
- if the applicant gives oral testimony about facts not stated in the application, either add facts in writing to the application or tape-record or write on a separate paper and file with the clerk;
- determine probable cause;
- check to make sure the application and the search warrant are properly signed and completed;
- file a copy (green copy) of the search warrant and application with clerk;
- give the original (white copy) and a copy (pink copy) to the officer.

- (1) _____.
- (2) _____.
- (3) _____.
- (4) _____.
- (5) _____.
- (6) _____.
- (7) _____.

Briefly these seven requirements are:

- (1) swear the applicant.
 - (2) examine the applicant.
 - (3) write or record oral testimony about facts not in application.
 - (4) determine probable cause.
 - (5) make sure application and warrant complete.
 - (6) file copy (green copy) of warrant and application with clerk.
 - (7) give original (white copy) and copy (pink copy) to officer.

These are the steps that make up the whole search warrant procedure. Follow these steps, make sure probable cause has been shown, see that the descriptions are adequate . . . and you have done your job.

STATEMENTS OF PROBABLE CAUSE FOR SEARCH WARRANTS

1. The applicant states that yesterday , he purchased two ounces of cocaine. The cocaine was delivered to the applicant by Gene Orendorff, Jeff Manning, and Kenny Woods, who were arrested when they delivered the cocaine. The applicant further states that he paid $1650.00 in marked U.S. currency (listed above) for the cocaine. During the time spent on the purchase of cocaine, the applicant and the suspects were under surveillance by other officers. The applicant states that from the movement of the suspects during and before the purchase and information received from two confidential sources of information after the purchase, the applicant has reason to believe the U.S. currency (listed above) and other controlled substances are at this time located in the above described location.

Good/Bad

Why?

See State v. Hyleman, 324 N.C. 506 (1989).

2. The information contained in this application is based upon my personal knowledge and upon factual information I have received from others. A reliable informant who had provided information in the past and whose information in the past had led to arrest and conviction under the N.C. Controlled Substances Act has told the undersigned that approximately one week ago the informant saw Lilly Ann Beam with approximately one pound of marijuana at her home on Ridge Road. Another informant told the undersigned that Lilly Ann Beam sold marijuana to them today. Lilly Ann Beam is on probation for a violation of the Controlled Substances Act.

Good/Bad

Why?

See State v. Beam, 325 N.C. 217 (1989).

3. We have been informed by a reliable confidential informant that he has been inside the above address within the past 48 hours and has seen cocaine inside the residence and cocaine is being sold at this time by the above occupants. The informant is familiar with how cocaine is packaged and sold on the streets, and he has used cocaine in the past. We have known this informant for three weeks and information provided by this informant has resulted in the seizure of controlled substances included in the N.C. Controlled Substances Act and led to the arrest of at least six individuals for violations of the N.C. Controlled Substances Act.

Good/Bad

See State v. Graham, 90 N.C. App. 564 (1988).

4. I, the undersigned applicant, have been a law enforcement officer for more than three years with the Smith County Sheriff's Department. During this time I have received extensive training including Basic Law Enforcement Officer's Certification and Advanced Criminal Investigation courses presented through the North Carolina Justice Academy. During the last year I have been involved in several investigations concerning drug offenses in Smith County. Within the past five days, the person who I will refer to as "He," regardless of the person's sex, contacted me. This person offered his assistance to the city/county vice unit in the investigation of drug sales in the city and county. This person told me that he had been inside the residence described above where he observed a room filled with marijuana plants. He stated that the suspect Charles Wayne Newcomb was maintaining the plants. This applicant confirmed the identity of the suspect to be Charles Wayne Newcomb. This information was obtained through D.M.V. records through vehicle registration. This applicant further checked with Duke Power Company and found this residence to have Charles Wayne Newcomb listed as the current occupant.

Good/Bad

See State v. Newcomb, 84 N.C. App. 92 (1987).

5. Sometime between one and five days ago, the Fairchild Christian School in the City of Livingston was broken into and two microscopes (described above) were stolen. That sometime before the date of this application a reliable and confidential informant personally contacted the applicant with the information that the stolen microscopes are in the above described residence of Mark Timothy Roark.

Good/Bad

Why?

See State v. Roark, 83 N.C. App. 425 (1986).

6. I and other officers have received information from a confidential and reliable informant that the Bo King is residing at 1509 Luther Street and is possessing cocaine for the purpose of sale at 1509 Luther Street. This informant has been to 1509 Luther Street within the past 48 hours and has observed Bo King possessing cocaine. This informant is familiar with cocaine and how it is packaged for street use. We officers have known this informant for approximately one year and during this time this informant's information has led to the arrests and convictions of many people for violations of the North Carolina Controlled Substances Act.

Good/Bad

See State v. King, 92 N.C. App. 75 (1988).

7. I have received information from a confidential and reliable informant that occupants of the dwelling described above have in their possession and are selling a large quantity of cocaine. I have known this informant only one week, but during that time he has given me information that I know from police intelligence files is true. He has also introduced me to two individuals (while I was in an undercover capacity) from whom I have bought controlled substances. He has also given me information that has allowed me to buy cocaine from two other individuals. Based upon the proven reliability of this informant, I request a warrant to search the above described premises for cocaine.

Good/Bad

Why?

8. A confidential and reliable informant has given me information that occupants of the above described premises are selling large quantities of cocaine. This informant has been inside the dwelling within the past 48 hours and has seen large quantities of cocaine. Within the past 48 hours, this informant has, at my direction and while under my control, purchased a small quantity of cocaine from the dwelling occupants. The informant was searched prior to entering the dwelling. At that time he had no cocaine in his possession. I then gave the informant $200 in Department funds. I maintained constant observation while the informant entered the dwelling and until he exited the building. All other exits were observed by other officers. After the informant exited, he was again searched. A small quantity of cocaine and $75 was found on his person.

Good/Bad

Why:

9. Three days ago, an armed robbery occurred at the 7/11 Store on Main Street. Cash in the amount of $78 and a derringer pistol (pearl handles; owner applied number of 237-72-8451 on barrel) were stolen by the robber. A customer who identified himself as David Kiser stated to this affiant that he recognized the robber. He states that robber sells newspapers (the Daily Gazette) on the corner of Main Street and Elm Street. I have personally observed the subject described above selling newspapers on this corner. Employees of the Gazette confirm that this is the only subject that has sold papers on the corner of Main and Elm for the past year. The city telephone directory indicates that the suspect resides in the above described dwelling, and I have observed an automobile registered to the suspect in the driveway of the dwelling. I met my informant, Mr. Kiser, only as a result of investigating this crime. I have never before received information from Mr. Kiser. Based on this information, I request a search warrant for the above described dwelling to search for the above described derringer pistol.

Questions on Conspiracy, Solicitation, Attempts, Principals, and Accessories

1. Tonya Hardnose, world class roller skater, suspects that her husband, Jeff McGillicuddy, and her bodyguard, Bill Moose, are planning to assault Hardnose's chief rollerskating rival, Bambi Carrigan. The plan is to break Bambi's nose with a baseball bat so that potential sponsors will not be interested in using her in commercials even if she wins the upcoming world rollerskating championship. Hardnose says nothing to the authorities, and Bambi is later assaulted. What crimes, if any, has Hardnose committed?
2. Hardnose is concerned that if the World Rollerskating Association (WSA) learns of her prior knowledge of the planned assault on Bambi, the WSA will not let her skate at the world rollerskating championship next month. After the assault takes place, Hardnose agrees with McGillicuddy that she will not report him to the police if he will not say anything to the WSA. What crimes, if any, has Hardnose committed?
3. Assume Bill Moose, Hardnose's bodyguard, goes to John Indifferent and offers him $10,000 to break Bambi's nose with a baseball bat. Indifferent says he's not interested. What crimes, if any, has Moose committed? What about John Indifferent?
4. Same facts as Question # 3, except Indifferent accepts the money. However, three weeks later he changes his mind and does not commit the assault. What crimes, if any, have Moose and Indifferent committed? What if Indifferent returns the money?

(a) License Required. – To drive a motor vehicle on a highway, a person must be licensed by the Division under this Article or Article 2C of this Chapter to drive the vehicle and must carry the license while driving the vehicle. The Division issues regular drivers licenses under this Article and issues commercial drivers licenses under Article 2C.

A license authorizes the holder of the license to drive any vehicle included in the class of the license and any vehicle included in a lesser class of license, except a vehicle for which an endorsement is required. To drive a vehicle for which an endorsement is required, a person must obtain both a license and an endorsement for the vehicle. A regular drivers license is considered a lesser class of license than its commercial counterpart.

The classes of regular drivers licenses and the motor vehicles that can be driven with each class of license are:

- (1) Class A. – A Class A license authorizes the holder to drive any of the following:
 - a. A Class A motor vehicle that is exempt under G.S. 20-37.16 from the commercial drivers license requirements.
 - b. A Class A motor vehicle that has a combined GVWR of less than 26,001 pounds and includes as part of the combination a towed unit that has a GVWR of at least 10,001 pounds.
- (2) Class B. – A Class B license authorizes the holder to drive any Class B motor vehicle that is exempt under G.S. 20-37.16 from the commercial drivers license requirements.

 - c. A combination of noncommercial motor vehicles that have a GVWR of more than 10,000 pounds but less than 26,001 pounds. This sub-subdivision does not apply to a Class C license holder less than 18 years of age.

The Commissioner may assign a unique motor vehicle to a class that is different from the class in which it would otherwise belong.

A person holding a commercial drivers license issued by another jurisdiction must apply for a transfer and obtain a North Carolina issued commercial drivers license within 30 days of becoming a resident. Any other new resident of North Carolina who has a drivers license issued by another jurisdiction must obtain a license from the Division within 60 days after becoming a resident.

(e) Restrictions. – The Division may impose any restriction it finds advisable on a drivers license. It is unlawful for the holder of a restricted license to operate a motor vehicle without complying with the restriction and is the equivalent of operating a motor vehicle without a license. If any applicant shall suffer from any physical defect or disease which affects his or her operation of a motor vehicle, the Division may require to be filed with it a certificate of such applicant's condition signed by some medical authority of the applicant's community designated by the Division. This certificate shall in all cases be treated as confidential. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prevent the Division from refusing to issue a license, either restricted or unrestricted, to any person deemed to be incapable of safely operating a motor vehicle. This subsection does not prohibit deaf persons from operating motor vehicles who in every other way meet the requirements of this section.

§ 20-16.3. Alcohol screening tests required of certain drivers; approval of test devices and manner of use by Department of Health and Human Services; use of test results or refusal.

(a) When Alcohol Screening Test May Be Required; Not an Arrest. – A law-enforcement officer may require the driver of a vehicle to submit to an alcohol screening test within a relevant time after the driving if the officer has:

- (1) Reasonable grounds to believe that the driver has consumed alcohol and has:
 - a. Committed a moving traffic violation; or
 - b. Been involved in an accident or collision; or
- (2) An articulable and reasonable suspicion that the driver has committed an implied-consent offense under G.S. 20-16.2, and the driver has been lawfully stopped for a driver's license check or otherwise lawfully stopped or lawfully encountered by the officer in the course of the performance of the officer's duties.

Requiring a driver to submit to an alcohol screening test in accordance with this section does not in itself constitute an arrest.

(b) Approval of Screening Devices and Manner of Use. – The Department of Health and Human Services is directed to examine and approve devices suitable for use by law-enforcement officers in making on-the-scene tests of drivers for alcohol concentration. For each alcohol screening device or class of devices approved, the Department must adopt regulations governing the manner of use of the device. For any alcohol screening device that tests the breath of a driver, the Department is directed to specify in its regulations the shortest feasible minimum waiting period that does not produce an unacceptably high number of false positive test results.

(c) Tests Must Be Made with Approved Devices and in Approved Manner. – No screening test for alcohol concentration is a valid one under this section unless the device used is one approved by the Department and the screening test is conducted in accordance with the applicable regulations of the Department as to the manner of its use.

(d) Use of Screening Test Results or Refusal by Officer. – The fact that a driver showed a positive or negative result on an alcohol screening test, but not the actual alcohol concentration result, or a driver's refusal to submit may be used by a law-enforcement officer, is admissible in a court, or may also be used by an administrative agency in determining if there are reasonable grounds for believing:

- (1) That the driver has committed an implied-consent offense under G.S. 20-16.2; and
- (2) That the driver had consumed alcohol and that the driver had in his or her body previously consumed alcohol, but not to prove a particular alcohol concentration. Negative results on the alcohol screening test may be used in factually appropriate cases by the officer, a court, or an administrative agency in determining whether a person's alleged impairment is caused by an impairing substance other than alcohol.

(a) Scope. – This section applies to a person whose license was revoked as a result of a conviction of driving while impaired, G.S. 20-138.1, and:

- (1) The person had an alcohol concentration of 0.15 or more;
- (2) The person has been convicted of another offense involving impaired driving, which offense occurred within seven years immediately preceding the date of the offense for which the person's license has been revoked; or
- (3) The person was sentenced pursuant to G.S. 20-179(f3).

For purposes of subdivision (1) of this subsection, the results of a chemical analysis, as shown by an affidavit or affidavits executed pursuant to G.S. 20-16.2(c1), shall be used by the Division to determine that person's alcohol concentration.

(a1) (Expires December 1, 2014) Additional Scope. – This section applies to a person whose license was revoked as a result of a conviction of habitual impaired driving, G.S. 20-138.5.

(b) (Effective until December 1, 2014) Ignition Interlock Required. – Except as provided in subsection (l) of this section, when the Division restores the license of a person who is subject to this section, in addition to any other restriction or condition, it shall require the person to agree to and shall indicate on the person's drivers license the following restrictions for the period designated in subsection (c):

- (1) A restriction that the person may operate only a vehicle that is equipped with a functioning ignition interlock system of a type approved by the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall not unreasonably withhold approval of an ignition interlock system and shall consult with the Division of Purchase and Contract in the Department of Administration to ensure that potential vendors are not discriminated against.
- (2) A requirement that the person personally activate the ignition interlock system before driving the motor vehicle.
- (3) An alcohol concentration restriction as follows:
 - a. If the ignition interlock system is required pursuant only to subdivision (a)(1) of this section, a requirement that the person not drive with an alcohol concentration of 0.04 or greater;
 - b. If the ignition interlock system is required pursuant to subdivision (a)(2) or (a)(3) of this section, or subsection (a1) of this section, a requirement that the person not drive with an alcohol concentration of greater than 0.00; or
 - c. If the ignition interlock system is required pursuant to subdivision (a)(1) of this section, and the person has also been convicted, based on the same set of circumstances, of: (i) driving while impaired in a commercial vehicle, G.S. 20-138.2, (ii) driving while less than 21 years old after consuming alcohol or drugs, G.S. 20-138.3, (iii) a violation of G.S. 20-141.4, or (iv) manslaughter or negligent homicide resulting from the operation of a motor vehicle when the offense involved impaired driving, a requirement that the person not drive with an alcohol concentration of greater than 0.00.

(c) Length of Requirement. – The requirements of subsection (b) shall remain in effect for:

- (1) One year from the date of restoration if the original revocation period was one year;
- (2) Three years from the date of restoration if the original revocation period was four years; or
- (3) Seven years from the date of restoration if the original revocation was a permanent revocation.

(c1) Vehicles Subject to Requirement. – A person subject to this section shall have all registered vehicles owned by that person equipped with a functioning ignition interlock system of a type approved by the Commissioner, unless the Division determines that one or more specific registered vehicles owned by that person are relied upon by another member of that person's family for transportation and that the vehicle is not in the possession of the person subject to this section.

(f) Effect of Violation of Restriction. – A person subject to this section who violates any of the restrictions of this section commits the offense of driving while license revoked under G.S. 20-28(a) and is subject to punishment and license revocation as provided in that section. If a law enforcement officer has reasonable grounds to believe that a person subject to this section has consumed alcohol while driving or has driven while he has remaining in his body any alcohol previously consumed, the suspected offense of driving while license is revoked is an alcohol-related offense subject to the implied-consent provisions of G.S. 20-16.2. If a person subject to this section is charged with driving while license revoked by violating a condition of subsection (b) of this section, and a judicial official determines that there is probable cause for the charge, the person's license is suspended pending the resolution of the case, and the judicial official must require the person to surrender the license. The judicial official must also notify the person that he is not entitled to drive until his case is resolved. An alcohol concentration report from the ignition interlock system shall not be admissible as evidence of driving while license revoked, nor shall it be admissible in an administrative revocation proceeding as provided in subsection (g) of this section, unless the person operated a vehicle when the ignition interlock system indicated an alcohol concentration in violation of the restriction placed upon the person by subdivision (b)(3) of this section. If a person subject to this section is charged with driving while license revoked by violating the requirements of subsection (c1) of this section, and no other violation of this section is alleged, the court may make a determination at the hearing of the case that the vehicle, on which the ignition interlock system was not installed, was relied upon by another member of that person's family for transportation and that the vehicle was not in the possession of the person subject to this section, and therefore the vehicle was not required to be equipped with a functioning ignition interlock system. If the court determines that the vehicle was not required to be equipped with a functioning ignition interlock system and the person subject to this section has committed no other violation of this section, the court shall find the person not guilty of driving while license revoked.

(g) Effect of Violation of Restriction When Driving While License Revoked Not Charged. – A person subject to this section who violates any of the restrictions of this section, but is not charged or convicted of driving while license revoked pursuant to G.S. 20-28(a), shall have the person's license revoked by the Division for a period of one year.

(a) Upon all highways of sufficient width a vehicle shall be driven upon the right half of the highway except as follows:

- (1) When overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction under the rules governing such movement;
- (2) When an obstruction exists making it necessary to drive to the left of the center of the highway; provided, any person so doing shall yield the right-of-way to all vehicles traveling in the proper direction upon the unobstructed portion of the highway within such distance as to constitute an immediate hazard;
- (3) Upon a highway divided into three marked lanes for traffic under the rules applicable thereon; or
- (4) Upon a highway designated and signposted for one-way traffic.

(b) Upon all highways any vehicle proceeding at less than the legal maximum speed limit shall be driven in the right-hand lane then available for thru traffic, or as close as practicable to the right-hand curb or edge of the highway, except when overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction or when preparing for a left turn.

(c) Upon any highway having four or more lanes for moving traffic and providing for two-way movement of traffic, no vehicle shall be driven to the left of the centerline of the highway, except when authorized by official traffic-control devices designating certain lanes to the left side of the center of the highway for use by traffic not otherwise permitted to use such lanes or except as permitted under subsection (a)(2) hereof.

(d) Whenever any street has been divided into two or more clearly marked lanes for traffic, the following rules in addition to all others consistent herewith shall apply.

- (1) A vehicle shall be driven as nearly as practicable entirely within a single lane and shall not be moved from such lane until the driver has first ascertained that such movement can be made with safety.
- (2) Upon a street which is divided into three or more lanes and provides for the two-way movement of traffic, a vehicle shall not be driven in the center lane except when overtaking and passing another vehicle traveling in the same direction when such center lane is clear of traffic within a safe distance, or in the preparation for making a left turn or where such center lane is at the time allocated exclusively to traffic moving in the same direction that the vehicle is proceeding and such allocation is designated by official traffic-control device.
- (3) Official traffic-control devices may be erected directing specified traffic to use a designated lane or designating those lanes to be used by traffic moving in a particular direction regardless of the center of the street and drivers of vehicles shall obey the direction of every such device.
- (4) Official traffic-control devices may be installed prohibiting the changing of lanes on sections of streets, and drivers of vehicles shall obey the directions of every such device.

(e) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this section, when appropriate signs have been posted, it shall be unlawful for any person to operate a motor vehicle over and upon the inside lane, next to the median of any dual-lane highway at a speed less than the posted speed limit when the operation of said motor vehicle over and upon said inside lane shall impede the steady flow of traffic except when preparing for a left turn. "Appropriate signs" as used herein shall be construed as including "Slower Traffic Keep Right" or designations of similar import.

(a) The driver of a vehicle shall not drive to the left side of the center of a highway, in overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction, unless such left side is clearly visible and is free of oncoming traffic for a sufficient distance ahead to permit such overtaking and passing to be made in safety.

(b) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass another vehicle proceeding in the same direction upon the crest of a grade or upon a curve in the highway where the driver's view along the highway is obstructed within a distance of 500 feet.

(c) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass any other vehicle proceeding in the same direction at any railway grade crossing nor at any intersection of highway unless permitted so to do by a traffic or police officer. For the purposes of this section the words "intersection of highway" shall be defined and limited to intersections designated and marked by the Department of Transportation by appropriate signs, and street intersections in cities and towns.

(d) The driver of a vehicle shall not drive to the left side of the centerline of a highway upon the crest of a grade or upon a curve in the highway where such centerline has been placed upon such highway by the Department of Transportation, and is visible.

(e) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass another on any portion of the highway which is marked by signs, markers or markings placed by the Department of Transportation stating or clearly indicating that passing should not be attempted.

(a) The driver of any vehicle upon a highway or public vehicular area before starting, stopping or turning from a direct line shall first see that such movement can be made in safety, and if any pedestrian may be affected by such movement shall give a clearly audible signal by sounding the horn, and whenever the operation of any other vehicle may be affected by such movement, shall give a signal as required in this section, plainly visible to the driver of such other vehicle, of the intention to make such movement. The driver of a vehicle shall not back the same unless such movement can be made with safety and without interfering with other traffic.

(a1) A person who violates subsection (a) of this section and causes a motorcycle operator to change travel lanes or leave that portion of any public street or highway designated as travel lanes shall be responsible for an infraction and shall be assessed a fine of not less than two hundred dollars ($200.00). A person who violates subsection (a) of this section that results in a crash causing property damage or personal injury to a motorcycle operator or passenger shall be responsible for an infraction and shall be assessed a fine of not less than five hundred dollars ($500.00).

(b) The signal herein required shall be given by means of the hand and arm in the manner herein specified, or by any mechanical or electrical signal device approved by the Division, except that when a vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent the hand and arm signal from being visible, both to the front and rear, the signal shall be given by a device of a type which has been approved by the Division.

Whenever the signal is given the driver shall indicate his intention to start, stop, or turn by extending the hand and arm from and beyond the left side of the vehicle as hereinafter set forth.

Right turn – hand and arm pointed upward.

All hand and arm signals shall be given from the left side of the vehicle and all signals shall be maintained or given continuously for the last 100 feet traveled prior to stopping or making a turn. Provided, that in all areas where the speed limit is 45 miles per hour or higher and the operator intends to turn from a direct line of travel, a signal of intention to turn from a direct line of travel shall be given continuously during the last 200 feet traveled before turning.

Any motor vehicle in use on a highway shall be equipped with, and required signal shall be given by, a signal lamp or lamps or mechanical signal device when the distance from the center of the top of the steering post to the left outside limit of the body, cab or load of such motor vehicle exceeds 24 inches, or when the distance from the center of the top of the steering post to the rear limit of the body or load thereof exceeds 14 feet. The latter measurement shall apply to any single vehicle, also to any combination of vehicles except combinations operated by farmers in hauling farm products.

(c) No person shall operate over the highways of this State a right-hand-drive motor vehicle or a motor vehicle equipped with the steering mechanism on the right-hand side thereof unless said motor vehicle is equipped with mechanical or electrical signal devices by which the signals for left turns and right turns may be given. Such mechanical or electrical devices shall be approved by the Division.

Both charges arise from the same incident of driving. Helen submitted to a breath test that revealed an alcohol concentration of .08. Assuming that other statutory factors are met, should the magistrate order two civil license revocations?
 - a. Yes, the magistrate should issue two civil license revocations. Both of these offenses are implied consent offenses that, along with other statutory factors, require civil license revocation
 - b. No, only one civil license revocation should issue. When more than one offense requiring civil license revocation results from a single transaction, a magistrate should order only one civil license revocation.

7. A magistrate orders civil revocation of James Johnson's driver's license. James is licensed in California. Should the magistrate order James to surrender his California driver's license?
- a. Yes. The magistrate should order James to surrender his California driver's license. Licenses issued by jurisdictions other than North Carolina are covered by the surrender provisions and must, like North Carolina driver's licenses, be surrendered to the magistrate.
 - b. No. A magistrate may only order surrender of a North Carolina driver's license

What's Knoll Got to Do with It? Procedures in Implied Consent Cases to Prevent Dismissals Under Knoll

Introduction

In addition to enacting the pretrial motions and appeals procedures for implied consent cases recently upheld by the North Carolina Court of Appeals in *State v. Fowler*¹ and State v. Palmer,² the Motor Vehicle Driver Protection Act of 2006, S.L. 2006-53, created statutory provisions designed to, in the words of the task force recommending the changes, “avoid a dismissal under Knoll.”³ The Knoll reference is to the North Carolina Supreme Court’s opinion in *State v. Knoll*⁴ ordering that charges of impaired driving against defendants in three separate cases be dismissed. The court had found in each case that the magistrate committed substantial statutory violations related to the setting of conditions of pretrial release that prejudiced the defendant’s ability to gain access to witnesses. Though Knoll is most widely recognized for its outcome—the dismissal of charges in three impaired driving cases—the Knoll court’s holding actually increased the showing required from certain defendants to warrant dismissal of impaired driving charges. Before Knoll, to obtain dismissal of the charges a defendant charged with impaired driving had only to demonstrate that he or she was denied access to witnesses during the time in which such witnesses might provide testimony as to his or her lack of intoxication; prejudice from such a denial was presumed. Knoll requires that to establish a basis for dismissal of charges a defendant charged with impaired driving based upon driving with an alcohol concentration that equals or exceeds the per se limit in Section 20-138.1(a)(2) of the North Carolina General Statutes (hereinafter G.S.) must not only demonstrate a substantial statutory violation of the defendant’s right to pretrial release, but also prove that he or she was prejudiced by the violation.

Among the implied consent–offense procedures enacted in 2006 to prevent dismissals based on Knoll is G.S. 20-38.4, which governs initial appearances in implied consent cases. This statute requires, among other things, that a magistrate who finds probable cause for an offense involving impaired driving consider whether the defendant is “impaired to the extent that the provisions of G.S. 15A-534.2 should be imposed.”⁵ G.S. 15A-534.2, enacted by the Safe Roads Act of 1983, provides that if a magistrate “finds by clear and convincing evidence that the impairment of the defendant’s physical or mental faculties presents a danger, if he is released, of physical injury to himself or others or damage to property, the judicial official must order that the defendant be held in custody and inform the defendant that he will be held in custody until” (1) the defendant is no longer impaired to the extent that the defendant poses a danger or (2) a sober, responsible adult is willing and able to assume responsibility for the defendant until the defendant is no longer impaired.⁶ G.S. 20-38.4 also requires a magistrate conducting an initial appearance for an implied consent offense⁷ to “[i]nform the person in writing of the established procedure to have others appear at the jail to observe his condition or to administer an additional chemical analysis if the person is unable to make bond.”⁸ Magistrates must also “[r]equire the person who is unable to make bond to list all persons he wishes to contact and telephone numbers on a form that sets forth the procedure for contacting the persons listed.”⁹

Because of the adoption of implied consent–offense procedures in 2006 and their relationship to Knoll motions, the twenty-year-old Knoll case and its progeny (which are seldom mentioned) deserve examination to determine (1) under what circumstances dismissal of impaired driving charges is warranted based upon the denial to a detained defendant of access to family and friends and (2) how the implied consent–offense procedures may impact such motions.

7. The following are implied consent offenses:

- Impaired driving (G.S. 20-138.1)
- Driving after consuming alcohol or drugs by a person under 21 (G.S. 20-138.3)
- Violating no-alcohol condition of limited privilege (G.S. 20-179.3)
- Impaired instruction (G.S. 20-12.1)
- Impaired driving in commercial vehicle (G.S. 20-138.2)
- Operating commercial vehicle after drinking (G.S. 20-138.2A)
- Operating school bus, school activity bus, or child care vehicle after drinking (G.S. 20-138.2B)
- Habitual impaired driving (G.S. 20-138.5)
- Open container (G.S. 20-138.7)
- Driving in violation of restriction requiring ignition interlock (G.S. 20-17.8(f))
- Felony death by vehicle or felony serious injury by vehicle (G.S. 20-141.4)
- First- or second-degree murder or involuntary manslaughter if the offense involved impaired driving (G.S. 14-17; G.S. 14-18)

G.S. 20-16.2(a1). While first-degree murder is statutorily defined as an implied consent offense, the state supreme court in State v. Jones, 53 N.C. 159, 538 S.E.2d 917 (2000), reversed the defendant’s first-degree murder convictions, which were based upon deaths resulting from the defendant’s commission of the felony offense of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to inflict serious injury. The court held that because the intent required to prove the felony assault was not actual intent but instead was implied from defendant’s culpable negligence in driving while impaired, the felony assault could not serve as the underlying felony for felony murder under G.S. 14-17.

Denial of Access to Family and Friends in Implied Consent Cases

To understand Knoll, one must first consider State v. Hill,¹⁰ which established a defendant's right to the extraordinary remedy of dismissal based upon the denial of access to witnesses.

State v. Hill, 277 N.C. 547, 178 S.E.2d 462 (1971)

The North Carolina Supreme Court held in Hill that the defendant's Sixth Amendment right to obtain witnesses on his behalf was violated when his brother-in-law, who also was his attorney, was not allowed to see him after his arrest. The jailer holding Hill refused to release him after his brother-in-law posted bond and further refused to allow the brother-in-law to see Hill. From the time Hill was arrested at 11 p.m. until 7 a.m. the next morning, only law enforcement officers saw or had access to him.

The Hill court recognized that for offenses "of which intoxication is an essential element," the denial of immediate access to witnesses may deprive "a defendant of his only opportunity to obtain evidence which might prove his innocence."¹¹ Because the guilt or innocence of a defendant charged with impaired driving "depends upon whether he was intoxicated at the time of his arrest," such a defendant "must have access to his counsel, friends, relatives, or some disinterested person within a relatively short time after his arrest" in order to have "witnesses for his defense."¹² The court held that in Hill's case "the right . . . to communicate with counsel and friends implies, at the very least, the right to have them see him, observe and examine him, with reference to his alleged intoxication."¹³

The court concluded, therefore, that Hill was denied his constitutional and statutory right to communicate with counsel and friends at a time when the denial deprived him of any opportunity to confront the State's witnesses with other testimony.¹⁴ The court held that "[u]nder these circumstances, to say that the denial was not prejudicial is to assume that which is incapable of proof."¹⁵

The General Assembly codified the holding in Hill by enacting G.S. 15A-954(a)(4), which requires that a court dismiss criminal charges upon determining that "[t]he defendant's constitutional rights have been flagrantly violated and there is such irreparable prejudice to the defendant's preparation of his case that there is no remedy but to dismiss the prosecution."¹⁶ The Official Commentary notes the assumption "that the drastic relief called for under this motion would be granted most sparingly."¹⁷

State v. Knoll*, 322 N.C. 535, 369 S.E.2d 558 (1988)

Three impaired driving cases were consolidated for hearing in Knoll. In each case, the defendant was charged with impaired driving in Wake County, North Carolina, and made a pretrial motion to dismiss the charge based upon a violation of statutory and constitutional rights.

Defendant Knoll

David Knoll was stopped at 1:15 p.m. and charged with driving while impaired. He submitted to a chemical analysis of his breath at 2:31 p.m., which revealed a breath alcohol concentration of 0.30. Knoll then appeared before a magistrate, who set bond at $300 without inquiring into any of the factors relevant to conditions of pretrial release. Between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m., Knoll made several requests to call his father. He was allowed to call him at about 5 p.m. After speaking to Knoll, Knoll's father spoke to the magistrate, telling him that he wanted to come right away to get his son. The magistrate told Knoll's father that Knoll could not be released until 11 p.m. As a result, Knoll's father waited until 11 p.m. to go to the jail to post bond. Knoll's father stated that when he talked with his son on the phone, his son was oriented and coherent and not noticeably impaired in either his manner of speech or in the substance of what he said.

Defendant Warren

The second defendant, Samson Warren Jr., was stopped at 10:11 p.m. and charged with driving while impaired. Warren submitted to a chemical analysis of his breath at 11:08 p.m., which revealed a breath alcohol concentration of 0.25. Warren then appeared before a magistrate, who set a $500 secured bond. The magistrate did not inform Warren of his right to communicate with counsel and friends. Two adult friends of Warren attempted to secure his release. The first, Donald Martin, arrived at the magistrate's office between 11 p.m. and 11:30 p.m., while Warren was in the breath-testing room. Martin spoke with Warren and observed his condition. Martin had $300 in cash and was willing to assume responsibility for Warren, but the magistrate told Martin that Warren would have to go to jail until 6 a.m. in order to sober up.

John Lewis went to the courthouse between 1 a.m. and 1:30 a.m. following Warren's arrest. The magistrate informed Lewis, who had $200 in cash with him, that Warren could not be released until 6 a.m. After being so advised, Lewis did not request to see Warren. Warren was released from the Wake County Jail at 8 a.m. when Martin posted bond for him.

Defendant Hicks

The third defendant, Bennie Hicks, was arrested for driving while impaired at 12:45 a.m. He submitted to a chemical analysis of his breath, which revealed a breath alcohol concentration of 0.18. Hicks appeared before a magistrate, who set a $200 bond without informing Hicks of his right to communicate with counsel and friends and without asking questions about matters relevant to conditions of release. Hicks had $2,200 in cash but was not allowed to post his own bond. At 1:30 a.m., Hicks called his wife at their home, which was about thirty minutes away from the Wake County courthouse. Hicks's wife did not have a vehicle at the time and could not come to the courthouse to pick him up. Hicks was released from jail at 6 a.m.

Knoll court's analysis

The court began its analysis in Knoll by reviewing "the general obligations of the magistrate" in impaired driving cases.¹⁸ Curiously, however, this exposition failed to mention provisions of G.S. 15A-534.2 requiring in certain circumstances that a defendant charged with an offense involving impaired driving be detained. Though the court later acknowledged a magistrate's authority to "refuse to release one who is intoxicated to such a degree that he would be endangered by being released without supervision,"¹⁹ this was a reference to G.S. 15A-534(c), which governs the setting of conditions of pretrial release generally and permits a magistrate to consider, among other factors, "whether the defendant is intoxicated to such a degree that he would be endangered by being released without supervision," rather than the more specific requirements of G.S. 15A-534.2.

The court found that Knoll and Warren were unlawfully detained because they could have been released into the custody of "appropriate people who were seeking their release."²⁰ As for Hicks, the court concluded that though his "wife was temporarily unavailable to pick him up, he could have, by the use of a taxi, been in the presence of his wife within a short period of time."²¹ The high court agreed with the superior court's determination that the magistrate failed to comply with statutory provisions governing the setting of conditions of pretrial release, and that, but for these statutory deprivations, each defendant could have had access to friends and family.

The court of appeals in *State v. Knoll*²² had distinguished Hill, concluding that the creation of a per se impaired driving offense meant that denial of access was "no longer inherently prejudicial to a defendant's ability to gather evidence in support of his innocence in every driving while impaired case."²³ The appellate court opined that "[p]rejudice may or may not occur since a chemical analysis result of 0.10 or more is sufficient, on its face, to convict."²⁴ Prejudice might result from "a denial of access or unwarranted detention," explained the court of appeals, if the "defendant was not advised of his right to a second chemical test . . . or where his right to secure a second test was denied."²⁵ The court of appeals explained that "[p]rejudice might also occur . . . if pertinent evidence relating to contested elements of the offense, such as whether the defendant was in fact driving, became unavailable as a result of the denial of access."²⁶ The court of appeals found nothing in the record to support the trial court's finding that the statutory deprivations caused Knoll to lose significant evidence or testimony helpful to his defense, noting that the result of the chemical analysis alone was sufficient to convict Knoll.

Though the state supreme court adopted the rule articulated by the court of appeals that a defendant charged with a per se violation of the impaired driving statute must demonstrate prejudice resulting from a substantial statutory violation,²⁷ the supreme court, unlike the court of appeals, found that each defendant made a sufficient showing that "lost evidence or testimony would have been helpful to his defense, that the evidence would have been significant, and that the evidence or testimony was lost" because of the statutory violations.²⁸ The court based this determination on each defendant's confinement "during the crucial period" in which friends and family could have observed him to "form opinions as to his condition following arrest."²⁹ The court explained that "[t]his opportunity to gather evidence and to prepare a case in his own defense was lost to each defendant as a direct result of a lack of information during processing as to numerous important rights and because of the commitment to jail.”³⁰ The court found that “[t]he lost opportunities, in all three cases, to secure independent proof of sobriety, and the lost chance, in one case, to secure a second test for blood alcohol content” constituted prejudice to the defendants.³¹

The court’s reliance upon “lost opportunities” and “a lost chance” as establishing prejudice raises questions regarding whether the prejudice requirement as applied in Knoll requires any showing additional to that presumed prejudicial in Hill. Knoll, like Hill, was denied access to a witness who sought his release. One might interpret Knoll as adhering to the proposition that denial of sought-after access during the “crucial period” is always prejudicial. But if denial of access is presumptively prejudicial, then the rule announced in Knoll did not, in fact, depart from Hill. And while the basis for the finding of prejudice in Knoll’s case is not clearly specified, it is even more difficult to ascertain in Warren’s and Hicks’s cases.

Shortly after he submitted to the chemical analysis, Warren spoke in person to Martin, one of the people who attempted to secure his release. Thus Warren did not suffer a complete denial of access to witnesses. One might argue that his ability to communicate with a friend so soon after his arrest eliminated any prejudice resulting from his unlawful detention.

In Hicks’s case, the finding of prejudice is difficult to reconcile with a magistrate’s statutory obligation to hold certain impaired drivers. While the court held that Hicks should have been released to take a taxi home to his wife, G.S. 15A-534.2 makes clear that a defendant who is detained pursuant its provisions may only be released to the custody of a sober, responsible adult who appears before the judicial official ordering the release. And while Hicks attempted to procure his release by posting bond, there is no evidence that he requested to see anyone while confined or that anyone requested to see him.

Perhaps the court based its determination in part on the fact that neither Warren nor Hicks were informed by the magistrate that they had the right to access counsel and friends; yet, again, any determination that such a statutory violation is presumptively prejudicial does not comport with the standard articulated by the court requiring that the defendant demonstrate prejudice.

These curious aspects of the court’s holding may explain why Knoll, which purported to increase the showing required to obtain dismissal of charges, is widely perceived as the seminal case entitling defendants charged with impaired driving to the dismissal of charges.

Right to dismissal based upon a constitutional, versus statutory, claim

Though the Knoll defendants argued that dismissal was warranted on the basis of a violation of constitutional as well as statutory rights, the court did not rule on the defendants’ constitutional claims. In State v. Gilbert,³² the court of appeals distinguished statutory violations resulting from a magistrate’s failure to comply with statutory procedures governing the setting of conditions of pretrial release from constitutional violations. The Gilbert court found a magistrate’s refusal to set conditions of release and the ensuing five-hour detention of a defendant to constitute statutory,

App. 228, 352 S.E.2d 463 (1987), but before the supreme court’s ruling reversing the court of appeals, see 322 N.C. 535, 369 S.E.2d 558 (1988). Gilbert is still good law, however, as it relied upon the determination of the court of appeals in Knoll that the presumptive prejudice rule of Hill did not govern in statutory per se cases—a rule adopted by the supreme court.

but not constitutional, violations.³³ The court explained that Gilbert, who saw his brother shortly after he was administered a breath test, did not request and was not denied access to anyone. For this reason, the court determined that Gilbert failed to establish a constitutional violation. Gilbert further explained that a defendant seeking dismissal of per se impaired driving charges based upon a violation of the constitutional right to access witnesses must, like a defendant seeking dismissal for a statutory violation, demonstrate irreparable prejudice resulting from the violation.³⁴

Prejudice: Proven or presumed?

Because the Knoll requirement that a defendant demonstrate prejudice resulting from a violation of statutory rights related to pretrial release or the constitutional right to have access to witnesses applies only in cases in which the defendant is charged with a per se violation of the impaired driving statute, two lines of cases exist post-Knoll: the Knoll branch, requiring proof of prejudice for dismissal of charges pursuant to G.S. 20-138.1(a)(2) (the per se prong), and the presumptive prejudice branch,³⁵ for cases in which a defendant prosecuted solely pursuant to G.S. 20-138.1(a)(1) (the impairment prong) is denied access to witnesses. Furthermore, post-Knoll jurisprudence suggests that dismissal is an appropriate remedy in an impairment-prong case only when the defendant is denied his or her constitutional right to obtain evidence in his or her defense; less serious statutory violations warrant suppression of evidence rather than dismissal of charges.³⁶

Haas*, 131 N.C. App. 113, 505 S.E.2d 311 (1998) (explaining that “[a] motion to dismiss will only be granted when the statutory or constitutional violation caused irreparable prejudice to the development of [the defendant’s] case.”). Note that this standard differs from that set forth in G.S. 15A-1443(b), which provides that “[a] violation of the defendant’s rights under the Constitution of the United States is prejudicial unless the appellate court finds that it was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt” and places the burden upon the state to “demonstrate, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the error was harmless.”

35. See State v. Hill, 277 N.C. 547, 178 S.E.2d 462 (1971).

36. The court of appeals decided State v. Ferguson, 90 N.C. App. 513, 369 S.E.2d 378 (1988), another presumptive prejudice case, one week before the supreme court decided Knoll. Knoll made no mention of Ferguson. In Ferguson, the defendant was advised of his right to have a witness observe his breath test. Ferguson called his wife and told her to arrive at the jail in twenty minutes. When the twenty minutes expired, Ferguson refused the test because his wife was not there. Ferguson did not see his wife until he was released from jail later that evening. She had arrived at the jail within the twenty minutes and informed the desk officer that she was there to witness her husband’s breath test but was told that she was too late. She waited an hour and a half before seeing her husband.

Ferguson moved to dismiss the charges because he was denied his constitutional and statutory right of access to a witness to observe the breath test. While the trial court expressed its “distress” over the “regrettable” circumstances, it denied Ferguson’s motion. Id. at 518–19, 369 S.E.2d at 381. The court of appeals remanded to the trial court noting that if, upon remand, it found “that Mrs. Ferguson’s arrival to the jail was timely and she made reasonable efforts to gain access to the defendant, then defendant was denied access to a potential witness.” Id. at 519, 369 S.E.2d at 382. The appellate court concluded that “[t]he denial of access to a witness in this case—when the State’s sole evidence of the offense is the personal observations of the authorities—would constitute a flagrant violation of the defendant’s constitutional right to obtain witnesses under N.C. Const. Art. 1 Sec. 23 as a matter of law and would require that the charges be dismissed.” Id. (citing Hill, 277 N.C. 547, 178 S.E.2d 462).

Were Knoll the end of the matter, one might conclude that any time a magistrate fails to comply with statutory provisions governing initial appearances and the setting of conditions of pretrial release, resulting in the detention of a defendant charged with impaired driving, a defendant suffers prejudice requiring dismissal of the charges. But cases following Knoll emphasize that to warrant dismissal of charges, a defendant must make more than a perfunctory showing of prejudice resulting from such a violation to be entitled to the drastic relief of dismissal.

Knoll's Progeny

Cases in Knoll's wake have identified numerous circumstances in which the complained-of violations were deemed unfounded, insubstantial, or not prejudicial to the defendant. Indeed, there are no reported appellate court opinions post-Knoll in which the courts have found dismissal of implied consent charges an appropriate remedy for an alleged violation of provisions governing pretrial release. Instead, the court of appeals has made the following determinations in post-Knoll cases:

State v. Eliason, 100 N.C. App. 313, 395 S.E.2d 702 (1990), cited Ferguson for the proposition that “if a witness arrived timely under the breathalyzer statute and was unable to gain access to the accused despite reasonable efforts to do so, it would constitute a flagrant violation of defendant’s constitutional right to gather witnesses and would require dismissal of all charges.” Id. at 317, 395 S.E.2d at 704. Eliason was charged with a per se violation of the impaired driving statute and alleged that the magistrate’s failure to inquire into all of the statutory considerations before setting the conditions of his pretrial release violated his statutory and constitutional rights to access to counsel and friends. The court determined that Eliason failed to show that he was prejudiced by this denial as required by Knoll and was not entitled to relief on constitutional grounds as there was no showing that he was denied access to anyone. The court found that “[t]here was no violation of defendant’s constitutional rights which would warrant dismissal of the charges against him.” Id. at 318, 395 S.E.2d at 704.

In subsequent cases in which a defendant has been denied the right to have a witness observe the breath test, the court of appeals has characterized this as a denial of a statutory, rather than a constitutional, right, which requires suppression of the test results rather than dismissal of the charges. In State v. Myers, 118 N.C. App. 452, 455 S.E.2d 492 (1995), the defendant moved to suppress the results of the chemical analysis based upon the officer’s statement, after Myers requested that his wife come into the breath-testing room, that “that might not be a good idea because she had been drinking also.” Id. at 453, 455 S.E.2d at 493. Myers’s wife then left the police department. The court of appeals held that the breath test results should have been suppressed based on the refusal of Myers’s request to have his wife witness the test. Myers did not argue that the case should have been dismissed because of the violation, and the court did not intimate that dismissal would have been an appropriate remedy.

In State v. Hatley, ___ N.C. App. ___, 661 S.E.2d 43 (2008), the defendant likewise moved to suppress the results of a chemical analysis of her breath based upon the denial of her right to have a witness observe the testing procedures. The court of appeals cited Ferguson for the proposition that “[a] witness who has been selected to observe the testing procedures must make reasonable efforts to gain access to the defendant.” Id. at ___, 661 S.E.2d at 45. The court held that the denial of this right “requires suppression of the intoxilyzer results” but again did not intimate that dismissal was the appropriate remedy. Id. at ___, 661 S.E.2d at 45.

Thus, while the presumptive prejudice rule of Hill has survived, post-Ferguson cases suggest that while suppression of a chemical analysis is warranted when defendant is denied the right to have a witness observe the procedures, dismissal of the case is not necessarily warranted upon such a denial. Instead, it appears that there must be outright denial of access to witnesses during the relevant time frame to warrant dismissal based upon a flagrant violation of a defendant’s constitutional rights.

- Dismissal was not warranted based upon the defendant's allegation that law enforcement officials refused to take him to the hospital for additional testing or to withdraw blood for later testing. The alleged refusal did not violate the defendant's statutory rights under G.S. 20-139.1 or his constitutional right to due process. Law enforcement officials met their statutory and constitutional obligations by providing the defendant access to a telephone and by allowing access to the defendant for purposes of conducting an initial test.³⁷
- The defendant was not entitled to dismissal of charges based upon the magistrate's failure to inquire into every statutorily enumerated factor relevant to setting conditions of pretrial release where he failed to show that consideration of other factors would have required different conditions of release.³⁸
- To warrant dismissal, a defendant must prove that he or she was denied access to witnesses and friends during the crucial period during which exculpatory evidence could have been gathered.³⁹
- Suppression of evidence regarding field sobriety tests and dismissal of appreciable impairment theory cured any prejudice resulting from denial of the defendant's request to allow a witness to observe field sobriety tests. The defendant was not entitled to have charges under the per se prong of G.S. 20-138.1 dismissed.⁴⁰
- Substantial violation of the defendant's right to pretrial release does not establish basis for dismissal of charges when she was not denied access to family and friends while in jail. Defendant, who was unlawfully detained, saw her friends at the jail but did not ask to speak to them.⁴¹

Juxtaposing Knoll and the latest case of its progeny, State v. Labinski,⁴² reveals the heightened evidentiary standard applied by the appellate courts post-Knoll to defendants' claims that they have suffered irreparable prejudice arising from an unlawful detention. In Labinski, the defendant was arrested for impaired driving and taken to the jail for a breath test. On the way to the jail, Labinski sent a text message to her friend Brian Anderson to let him know she was in trouble. The officer who administered the breath test notified Labinski of her rights, including her right to have a witness present. Labinski did not call anyone. She submitted to the chemical analysis of her breath at 3 a.m., which revealed a breath alcohol concentration of 0.08.

Around the time Labinski was performing her breath test, four of her friends, including Anderson, arrived at the jail. Labinski saw her friends while she was walking with the officer from the breath-testing room to the magistrate's office, but she did not ask to speak with them, and they did not ask to speak to her. Labinski appeared before the magistrate at 3:25 a.m. The magistrate set a $500 secured bond and conditioned Labinski's release upon release to a sober, responsible adult or would release her either when she had a breath alcohol concentration of 0.05 or at 9 a.m.

Labinski was logged into the jail at 3:47 a.m. She was placed in an interview room with a phone and given a list of bail bondsmen. A detention officer allowed Labinski to retrieve telephone numbers from her mobile phone, and she called three of her friends who were already at the jail. She did not call a bail bondsman. Ultimately, a bail bondsman contacted by one of her friends posted bond for her release. At 5:02 a.m. she was released to the bail bondsman and one of her friends who had been waiting at the jail.

Labinski moved to dismiss the impaired driving charges based upon violation of her right to timely pretrial release and thus, access to family and friends. Labinski contended that the magistrate violated G.S. 15A-534.2 by ordering her detained without considering whether she was so intoxicated that she posed a danger to herself or others. She also argued that the magistrate required a secured bond without making the findings required by G.S. 15A-534(b) and considering the factors listed in G.S. 15A-534(c). Labinski alleged that the magistrate's failure to grant her timely pretrial release and access to friends and family resulted in the loss of evidence, which prejudiced her defense to the impaired driving charges. She asserted that, under Knoll, the appropriate remedy for the violation was dismissal of the charges.

In considering Labinski's appeal, the court noted that a noncapital defendant generally has the right to pretrial release. Citing Knoll, the court explained that if statutory provisions governing conditions of pretrial release in an impaired driving case are violated and the defendant can show irreparable prejudice directly resulting from a lost opportunity to gather evidence in her behalf by having family and friends observe her and form opinions about her condition after her arrest and to prepare a case in her own defense, the charges must be dismissed.

The court recognized the magistrate's authority under G.S. 15A-534.2 to hold Labinski in custody if he found clear and convincing evidence that her impairment presented a danger, if she was released, of physical injury to herself or others or damage to property. The trial court found that "based on [the magistrate's] opinion that anyone charged with driving while impaired who blows a 0.08 or above on the Intoxilyzer 5000 would possibly hurt himself or someone else, [the magistrate] set the defendant's bond at $500 secured."⁴³ The court of appeals held that this finding was not supported by the evidence. The magistrate did not testify regarding his reason for setting a $500 secured bond but said he required that Labinski be released to a sober, responsible adult "[b]ecause that's what the statute requires me to do."⁴⁴ The magistrate did not testify that he had any concern about Labinski hurting herself or anyone else or to having an opinion regarding her behavior based on a particular alcohol concentration alone. Indeed, the magistrate stated that Labinski was polite and cooperative. Thus the court concluded that the magistrate substantially violated Labinski's right to pretrial release by ordering her held without evidence that her impairment presented a danger to herself or others or of damage to property.

The court then considered whether Labinski suffered irreparable prejudice resulting from the statutory violation. Labinski alleged that her commitment to jail under improper release conditions prevented her friends from observing her physical and mental condition during the time period crucial to her defense. The court concluded, however, that even though Labinski was not timely released from detention, she was not denied access to friends and family such that she lost the opportunity to gather evidence in her behalf. The court noted that Labinski was informed of her right to have a witness present for the breath test and that she did not request a witness, even though four of her friends were at the jail and could have witnessed the test. The court further noted that these friends were at the jail by the time Labinski left the breath-testing room and remained there until she was released. The court reported that Labinski could see her friends and they could see her but that she did not ask to speak to them or that they be permitted to come to her. Finally, the court noted that Labinski had access to a telephone and made several phone calls.

In Knoll, the court determined that the detention of Warren, like that of Labinski, amounted to a statutory violation. Warren's friends, like Labinski's, came to the jail notwithstanding his unlawful detention. And Warren spoke to one of his friends in person, while Labinski only saw her friends. When another of Warren's friends was informed that Warren could not be released to him, the friend did not ask to see Warren. The Knoll court found prejudice, but the Labinski court did not, reasoning in part that Labinski did not ask to speak to her friends, nor they to her. Knoll's progeny, including Labinski, demonstrate that despite the curious circumstances in Knoll, prejudice will not be automatically—or even readily—inferred from a statutory violation, even one that results in the defendant's unlawful detention.

Procedural Requirements Enacted in 2006

As previously noted, the Motor Vehicle Driver Protection Act of 2006 includes several procedural requirements designed to ensure that defendants in impaired driving cases are detained when appropriate and that detained defendants are not denied access to witnesses.

Impaired Driving Holds

Among the new provisions is G.S. 20-38.4, which requires a magistrate, upon finding probable cause for an implied consent offense, to consider whether the defendant “is impaired to the extent that the provisions of G.S. 15A-534.2 should be imposed.” G.S. 15A-534.2 applies to initial appearances for offenses involving impaired driving. These offenses are as follows:

1. Impaired driving (G.S. 20-138.1)
2. Habitual impaired driving (G.S. 20-138.5)
3. Impaired driving in a commercial vehicle
4. Death by vehicle based upon impaired driving (G.S. 20-141.4)
5. First- or second-degree murder under G.S. 14-17 based on impaired driving
6. Involuntary manslaughter under G.S. 14-18 based on impaired driving
7. Substantially similar offenses committed in another state or jurisdiction

If a magistrate conducting an initial appearance for an offense involving impaired driving finds clear and convincing evidence that the impairment of the defendant's physical or mental faculties presents a danger, if the defendant is released, of physical injury to the defendant or others or damage to property, the magistrate must order that the defendant be held in custody. Such detentions commonly are referred to as “impaired driving holds.” A magistrate ordering such a detention must inform the defendant that he or she will be held in custody until (a) the magistrate determines that the defendant's physical and mental faculties are no longer impaired to the extent that the defendant presents a danger of physical injury to himself, herself, or others, or of damage to property if released or (b) a sober, responsible adult is willing and able to assume responsibility for the defendant until the defendant's physical and mental faculties are no longer impaired. A magistrate who orders a defendant detained pursuant to these provisions must also determine the appropriate conditions for pretrial release in accordance with G.S. 15A-534, which governs the setting of conditions of pretrial release generally.

A defendant subject to detention under G.S. 15A-534.2 may be denied pretrial release based upon the defendant's impairment for no longer than twenty-four hours. After twenty-four hours, a defendant held pursuant to G.S. 15A-534.2 must be released upon meeting the conditions of pretrial release imposed at the initial appearance. In determining whether a defendant subject to an impaired driver hold remains impaired, a magistrate may request the defendant to submit to periodic tests to determine his or her alcohol concentration. Approved alcohol screening devices as well as other approved chemical analysis instruments may be used for this purpose. A magistrate must determine that a defendant with an alcohol concentration of 0.05 or less is no longer impaired unless there is evidence that the defendant is still impaired from a combination of alcohol and some other impairing substance or condition.

It bears noting that G.S. 15A-534.2 itself was unchanged by the Motor Vehicle Driver Protection Act of 2006. Its statutory provisions have authorized impaired driving holds since the provisions were enacted in 1983. The significance of the 2006 legislation for impaired driving is its explicit requirement that magistrates consider whether such a hold be imposed. In addition, G.S. 20-38.4(b) requires that the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) adopt a form implementing its requirements. The implementing form is AOC-CR-270, which must be completed by a magistrate who detains an impaired driver pursuant to G.S. 15A-534.2. The magistrate must set forth in writing in the "Findings" section of AOC-CR-270 the reasons for the detention. When the defendant is released, the magistrate must complete the corresponding section of the form. If release is to a sober, responsible adult, that person's name must be entered on the form. The sober, responsible adult must sign the form certifying that he or she is a sober, responsible person, at least 18 years old, and is willing and able to assume responsibility for the defendant until the defendant's physical and mental faculties are no longer impaired.

In determining whether an adult who seeks to secure a defendant's release qualifies as a "sober, responsible adult," a magistrate may rely upon his or her own observations as well as reports from others.⁴⁵ There is no statutory or case law guidance for determining whether an adult is responsible. A magistrate making this determination might reasonably consider factors such as whether the person was a passenger in the car at the time the defendant was driving while impaired, whether the person has a driver's license, the person's criminal record, and the person's relationship to the defendant. The ultimate determination must be based upon the magistrate's exercise of reasonable discretion. In addition to being sober and responsible, an adult who assumes responsibility for an impaired defendant must be "willing and able" to do so. While a magistrate generally may base his or her determination that someone is willing to assume responsibility upon that person's request to assume custody, further inquiry may be necessary to determine the person's ability to secure the safety of the defendant and others. These determinations likewise are left to the magistrate's reasonable exercise of discretion.

The completion of AOC-CR-270, which requires a magistrate ordering an impaired driving hold to provide reasons for the detention, may reduce the risk that a defendant will be unlawfully held pursuant to G.S. 15A-534.2. The "Findings" section of the form disabuses the notion that persons who commit an offense involving impaired driving are, without additional findings, subject to detention based on impairment simply based on the finding of probable cause to believe the offense occurred. The form also makes clear that it is the magistrate, rather than the

App. 113, 505 S.E.2d 311 (1998) (finding that magistrate had no duty to release defendant to the custody of an adult who was a passenger in the car driven by the defendant when officer informed magistrate that that adult was extremely intoxicated eighty minutes earlier).

jailer, who determines whether a defendant is no longer impaired such that the defendant is subject to the impaired driving hold and whether an adult meets the criteria for assuming custody of the defendant during the time the defendant is impaired.

Procedures for Gaining Access to Witnesses

In addition to enacting procedures designed to ensure that defendants charged with implied consent offenses are detained in appropriate cases involving impaired driving, the Motor Vehicle Protection Act of 2006 enacted provisions designed to ensure that defendants confined to jail are informed of the manner in which they may gain access to witnesses while detained. G.S. 20-38.4(a)(4) requires the magistrate to inform a defendant “unable to make bond” of “the established procedure to have others appear at the jail to observe his condition or to administer an additional chemical analysis if the person is unable to make bond.”

The established procedures must be approved by the chief district court judge, the Department of Health and Human Services, the district attorney, and the sheriff.⁴⁶ County procedures vary. Guilford County’s procedures are included in the appendix as an example. A magistrate who conducts an initial appearance in an implied consent case for a defendant who will be detained in jail, however briefly, must certify on form AOC-CR-271 that the magistrate has informed the defendant of the procedures to access others while in jail and that he or she has required the defendant to list all persons the defendant wishes to contact and their telephone numbers.

Some argue that the requirement that a magistrate inform a defendant charged with an implied consent offense who is “unable to make bond” of the procedures for access to witnesses while in jail does not apply to defendants subject to an impaired driving hold, but instead applies to persons detained solely because of their inability to post bond sufficient to satisfy pretrial release conditions set in G.S. 15A-534. Under this interpretation, a defendant who has posted bond but is held based upon his or her impairment is not entitled to the notice. This reading of the statute is problematic for several reasons. First, a defendant subject to an impaired driving hold could be described as “unable to make bond” given that the posting of bond will not secure the defendant’s release. Moreover, interpreting G.S. 20-38.4(a)(4) as requiring notice to all defendants charged with implied consent offenses who are detained better aligns it with the task force goal of “prevent[ing] dismissals related to delays in processing and by the defendant’s lack of access to witnesses.”⁴⁷ Informing all defendants about how to access witnesses and health care professionals in jail serves to counter any argument that a defendant was prejudiced by his or her detention.

The magistrate must complete AOC-CR-271 and provide the defendant, along with that form, a copy of written local procedures explaining how the defendant may contact others and how others can observe the defendant at the jail and administer an additional chemical analysis. The magistrate also must require a defendant unable to make bond to list on form AOC-CR-271 names and telephone numbers for anyone the defendant wishes to contact. If the defendant returns the AOC-CR-271, the magistrate must note the return and place a copy of the form in the case file. If the defendant does not return the form, the magistrate must note in the space provided on a separate AOC-CR-271 that the defendant failed to return the form. The magistrate must place the form on which this notation is made in the file.

New Procedures and Knoll

North Carolina's appellate courts have not ruled on the merits of any appeals from Knoll motions in cases governed by the 2006 procedures, which became effective December 1, 2006. Indeed, compliance with the amended procedural requirements may render Knoll motions obsolete, since a defendant seeking dismissal under Knoll must demonstrate a substantial statutory violation, and the requirement that a magistrate consider whether an impaired driving hold should be imposed and make written findings supporting that determination reduces the likelihood a defendant will be detained when the detainment is not statutorily authorized. In addition, to warrant dismissal of the charges, a defendant must demonstrate prejudice resulting from the violation. It will be difficult for a defendant to meet this burden if he or she is informed of the procedures for gaining access to witnesses but fails to avail him- or herself of the available access.

Procedures Governing Consideration of Knoll Motions in District and Superior Court Motion to Dismiss

District court

A defendant seeking dismissal of implied consent charges in district court must move for dismissal before trial begins unless the defendant can establish that the motion is based upon facts not previously known that are discovered during the trial.⁴⁸ Given that Knoll motions are premised upon the denial of access to witnesses, it seems unlikely that such motions ever will be founded on facts unknown to the defendant before trial. There is no requirement that such motions be made in writing in district court.⁴⁹

Superior court

In superior court, a defendant may file a motion to dismiss based upon a denial of constitutional rights prior to trial⁵⁰ but is not required to do so.⁵¹ Motions made pretrial in superior court must be filed in writing, but motions made during trial may be oral.⁵² A defendant may file a motion to dismiss upon trial de novo in superior court regardless of whether the defendant filed such a motion in district court.⁵³ A defendant whose motion to dismiss is denied by the district court may again move to dismiss upon trial de novo in superior court.⁵⁴

Motion Hearings

A defendant who makes a timely motion for dismissal in district or superior court must be heard on the motion. The court is not required, however, to conduct a full evidentiary hearing unless the defendant has sufficiently alleged a denial of constitutional or statutory rights.⁵⁵ The court may summarily deny a motion to dismiss that contains only conjectural and conclusory allegations of possible constitutional or statutory violations or of prejudice resulting therefrom.⁵⁶

A defendant who files a motion to dismiss for denial of access to witnesses bears both the burden of producing evidence in support of the motion and establishing the violation and resulting prejudice.⁵⁷ The dismissal of charges on this basis is “drastic relief” that “should be granted sparingly.”⁵⁸ A district or superior court hearing such a motion may summarily rule on the motion if the defendant fails to produce sufficient evidence to warrant an evidentiary hearing. If an evidentiary hearing is required, the court must conduct a hearing at which testimony is provided under oath.⁵⁹ A superior court must issue a final written ruling on the motion, containing findings of fact and conclusions of law,⁶⁰ while a district court must issue a written preliminary determination containing findings of fact and conclusions of law and indicating how the court intends to rule on the motion.⁶¹ The State may appeal a district court’s preliminary determination granting a motion to dismiss to superior court⁶² and may appeal to the court of appeals a superior court order dismissing charges based upon denial of access to family and friends.⁶³

Conclusion

Knoll and its progeny permit the dismissal of impaired driving charges only in extraordinary cases. To succeed in establishing a basis for the dismissal of charges, a defendant charged with driving while impaired under the per se prong of G.S. 20-138.1 must show not only a constitutional or substantial statutory violation, but also must establish that the defendant was prejudiced by the violation. Appellate court opinions following Knoll reveal that establishing prejudice is a high hurdle for the defense. Magistrates’ compliance with implied consent procedures enacted in 2006 further reduces the likelihood that a defendant will successfully establish a basis for relief on these grounds. These procedures are designed to ensure that defendants are detained only as authorized by statute and, furthermore, that when defendants are detained, they are informed about how to gain access to witnesses while in custody and are afforded such access pursuant to established and agreed-upon methods.

6. Guilford County Sheriff's Office staff shall not hold or retain any personal property items for the witness.
7. No person under the age of 16 will be admitted to the jail as a witness to observe impaired defendants.
8. The jail supervisor shall determine the number of persons that may be admitted at one time to observe defendants in jail.
9. Observations of defendants will be limited to five (5) minutes and will include the ability for the witness to observe the person by sight, sound, and smell.
10. No physical contact will be allowed between the witness and the person charged.
11. All witnesses will be searched initially and supervised by jail detention officers during the entire observation period.

Magistrate Procedures for Ordering Civil License Revocations and the Seizure and Impoundment of Motor Vehicles

Shea Riggsbee Denning

I. Introduction

Several issues in this series focus on the procedures magistrates should follow in conducting initial appearances. The procedures involving criminal cases generally are described in detail in Jessie Smith, Criminal Procedure for Magistrates, ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE BULLETIN No. 2009/08 (UNC School of Government, Dec. 2009). Criminal cases involving implied consent laws, such as a charge of suspicion of impaired driving or an alcohol-related offense, may require magistrates to carry out several additional processes during the initial appearance. For example, magistrates may be required to revoke a defendant's driver's license, order that a vehicle driven by a defendant be seized and impounded, consider whether a defendant should be detained because his or her impairment poses a danger to others, and inform a defendant of the procedure for having witnesses appear at the jail to observe his or her condition or perform additional chemical analyses. The applicability of these procedures depends on the existence of factors specific to each. The procedures for detaining impaired drivers and for informing defendants of their right to secure witnesses and to obtain further chemical analyses are described in Shea Riggsbee Denning, What's Knoll Got to Do with It? Procedures in Implied Consent Cases to Prevent Dismissals under Knoll, ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE BULLETIN No. 2009/07 (UNC School of Government, Dec. 2009).

This bulletin focuses on the aforementioned procedures governing civil license revocation and the seizure and impoundment of motor vehicles. This discussion is flanked at the beginning by a review of police processing procedures in implied consent cases and at the end by two appendixes. Appendix A contains Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) forms referenced in the discussion, and Appendix B presents flowcharts illustrating the processes for ordering the revocation of a civil license and the seizure of motor vehicles.

II. Police Processing Duties in Implied Consent Cases

To understand the procedures applicable in connection with an initial appearance for an implied consent offense, one must first consider the activities undertaken by law enforcement officers and chemical analysts before that appearance.

When a person is arrested for an implied consent offense, or if criminal process has been issued, including a citation, a law enforcement officer who has reasonable grounds to believe that the person charged has committed the offense may require that person to undergo chemical analysis.¹ The officer is authorized to transport the accused to any location within North Carolina for the purposes of administering one or more chemical analyses.²

North Carolina law defines “chemical analysis” as a test or tests of the breath, blood, or other bodily fluid or substance of a person performed in compliance with statutory requirements to determine the person’s blood alcohol level or the presence of an impairing substance.³ The concentration of alcohol in a person is expressed either as grams of alcohol per 100 milliliters of blood or as grams of alcohol per 210 liters of breath.⁴ The results of a defendant’s alcohol concentration determined by a chemical analysis are reported to the hundredths, with any result between hundredths reported to the next-lower hundredth.⁵

Before any type of chemical analysis is administered, a person charged with an implied consent offense must be taken before a “chemical analyst,” defined as a person granted a permit by the Department of Health and Human Services under Section 20-139.1 of the North Carolina General Statutes (hereinafter G.S.) to perform such analyses.⁶ The analyst must first inform the person charged as to, and provide that person with notice in writing of, the following rights:

- (1) You have been charged with an implied-consent offense. Under the implied-consent law, you can refuse any test, but your drivers license will be revoked for one year and could be revoked for a longer period of time under certain circumstances, and an officer can compel you to be tested under other laws.
- (2) [repealed, 2006]
- (3) The test results, or the fact of your refusal, will be admissible in evidence at trial.
- (4) Your driving privilege will be revoked immediately for at least 30 days if you refuse any test or if the test result is 0.08 or more, 0.04 or more if you were driving a commercial vehicle, or 0.01 or more if you are under the age of 21.
- (5) After you are released, you may seek your own test in addition to this test.
- (6) You may call an attorney for advice and select a witness to view the testing procedures remaining after the witness arrives, but the testing may not be delayed for these purposes longer than 30 minutes from the time you are notified of these rights. You must take the test at the end of 30 minutes even if you have not contacted an attorney or your witness has not arrived.⁷

The alcohol concentration for breath tests is based on an assumption that a breath alcohol concentration of 0.10 grams per 210 liters of breath is equivalent to a blood alcohol concentration of .10 percent, or, in other words, a 2100 to 1 blood-breath ratio. See State v. Cothran, 120 N.C. App. 633, 635, 463 S.E.2d 423, 424 (1995).

If a law enforcement officer has reasonable grounds to believe that a person has committed an implied consent offense, and the person is unconscious or otherwise in a condition that makes the person incapable of refusing the test, the officer may direct the taking of a blood sample or the administration of any other type of chemical analysis that may be effectively performed.⁸ There is no requirement under state law that the chemical analyst inform such a person of the implied consent rights in G.S. 20-16.2(a) or that the person be asked to submit to the analysis pursuant to G.S. 20-16.2(c).⁹

The law enforcement officer or the chemical analyst designates the type of test or tests to be administered, that is, a test of blood, breath, or urine.¹⁰ The officer or chemical analyst then asks the person to submit to the designated type of chemical analysis.¹¹ A person's refusal prevents testing under the implied consent laws but does not preclude testing pursuant to other applicable procedures of law,¹² such as pursuant to a search warrant or the exigency exception to the search warrant requirement of the Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution.¹³

Chemical analyses are most frequently obtained through utilization of a breath-testing instrument.¹⁴ The North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services approves breath-testing instruments on the basis of results of evaluations by the department's Forensic Tests for

13. See G.S. 20-139.1(d1) (providing that if a person refuses to submit to a test, a law enforcement officer with probable cause may, without a court order, compel the person to provide blood or urine for analysis if the officer reasonably believes that the delay necessary to obtain a court order would result in the dissipation of the percentage of alcohol in the person's blood or urine) and State v. California, 384 U.S. 757 (1966) (concluding that an officer's warrantless taking of the defendant's blood incident to his arrest for driving while impaired was constitutional under the Fourth Amendment where the officer reasonably believed he was confronted with an emergency in which the delay necessary to obtain a warrant threatened the dissipation of alcohol in the defendant's blood and where the blood was taken in a hospital environment according to accepted medical practices); State v. Steimel, 921 A.2d 378 (N.H. 2007) (upholding as constitutional warrantless blood draw to detect drugs incident to defendant's arrest for aggravated driving while intoxicated and refusing to distinguish between metabolization of alcohol and controlled drugs for purposes of applying the Fourth Amendment's exigency exception); *People v. Alcohol Branch.¹⁵ The breath-testing instrument currently authorized and used is the Intoximeter, Model Intox EC/IR II.¹⁶ The operational procedures for the instrument are prescribed by statute and administrative regulation.¹⁷ The person being tested must be observed to ensure that he or she has not ingested alcohol or other fluids or regurgitated, vomited, eaten, or smoked in the fifteen minutes immediately prior to the collection of a breath specimen.¹⁸ At least two sequential breath samples must be tested.¹⁹ The results of the chemical analysis of all breath samples is admissible in evidence in any court or administrative hearing if the test results from any two consecutively collected breath samples do not differ from each other by an alcohol concentration of more than 0.02.²⁰ Only the lower of the two test results of the consecutively administered tests may be used to prove a particular alcohol concentration.²¹ A person's refusal to give the sequential breath samples necessary to constitute a valid chemical analysis amounts to a refusal to submit to testing under G.S. 20-16.2(c).²² A person's refusal to give the second or subsequent breath sample renders the result of the first breath sample, or the result of the sample providing the lowest alcohol concentration if more than one breath sample is provided, admissible in any judicial or administrative hearing for any relevant purpose.²³

A person's willful refusal to submit to a chemical analysis may, depending on other factors, result in the revocation of his or her driver's license for a period of twelve months—in addition to resulting in the immediate civil revocation of his or her driver's license for a period of at least thirty days.²⁴ A refusal is “the declination of a request or demand, or the omission to comply with some requirement of law, as the result of a positive intention to disobey.”²⁵ A willful refusal occurs when a person (1) is aware that he or she has a choice to take or refuse a test, (2) is aware of the time limit within which he or she must take the test, and (3) voluntarily elects not to take the test or knowingly permits the prescribed thirty-minute time limit to expire before electing to take the test.²⁶ In essence, a willful refusal is a refusal that occurs after the defendant is advised of his or her implied consent rights and is asked to submit to a chemical analysis.²⁷

At a law enforcement officer's discretion, a person may be asked to submit to a chemical analysis of his or her blood or urine in addition to or in lieu of a chemical analysis of his or her breath.²⁸ If a subsequent chemical analysis is requested, the person must again be advised of the implied consent rights under G.S. 20-16.2(a).²⁹ When a law enforcement officer specifies a blood or urine test as the type of chemical analysis to be conducted, a physician, registered nurse, emergency medical technician, or other qualified person must withdraw the blood sample or obtain the urine sample.³⁰ A person's willful refusal to submit to a blood or urine test constitutes a willful refusal to submit to testing under G.S. 20-16.2.³¹

In an implied consent case in which a defendant is asked to submit to a chemical analysis, the law enforcement officer and the chemical analyst (who may be the same person) complete a form called AOC-CVR-1A (Affidavit and Revocation Report; see Appendix A) averring that the implied consent testing procedures have been followed. The affidavit, which in certain cases (discussed below) serves also as a revocation report, typically is sworn and subscribed before a magistrate at the charged person's initial appearance.

After completing all investigatory and other specified procedures, crash reports, and chemical analyses, a law enforcement officer must take the person charged before a judicial official for an initial appearance.³²

The procedures set forth in Article 24 of Chapter 15A of the General Statutes govern initial appearances in implied consent cases just as they do in other criminal cases, except where those procedures are modified by the implied consent offense procedures set forth in Article 2D of G.S. Chapter 20. The implied consent offense procedures permit a magistrate to hold an initial appearance at any place within the county and require, "to the extent practicable," that a magistrate "be available at locations other than the courthouse when it will expedite the initial appearance."³³ To determine whether there is probable cause to believe a person charged with an implied consent offense is impaired, a magistrate may review all alcohol screening tests³⁴ and chemical analyses and may receive testimony from any law enforcement officer concerning impairment and the circumstances of the arrest.³⁵ The magistrate also may observe the person arrested.³⁶

A law enforcement officer may use "[t]he fact that a driver showed a positive or negative result on an alcohol screening test, but not the actual alcohol concentration result," in determining probable cause for an implied consent offense. G.S. 20-16.3(d). An officer also may use a driver's refusal to submit to an alcohol screening test in determining probable cause. Id.

A different rule governs the use of alcohol screening tests in cases in which a defendant is charged with driving by a person less than 21 years old after consuming alcohol. See G.S. 20-138.3(b2). In such cases, a law enforcement officer, court, or administrative agency may use the results of an alcohol screening test to determine whether alcohol was present in the driver's body. Id. Thus, not only may the results of the test be used in such cases, but reliance on the results also is not limited to determining probable cause.

III. Civil License Revocations

State law requires the immediate civil revocation of driver's licenses of certain persons charged with implied consent offenses.³⁷ When the results of a chemical analysis or reports indicating a refusal to submit to a chemical analysis are available at the time of the initial appearance, the law enforcement officer and chemical analyst involved in the case must execute a revocation report before the magistrate.³⁸ The magistrate must, after completing any other proceedings involving the person charged, determine whether there is probable cause to believe that the conditions requiring civil license revocation are met.³⁹

A. Conditions Requiring Civil License Revocation

A person's driver's license is subject to civil revocation under G.S. 20-16.5 if each of the following four conditions is satisfied:

1. A law enforcement officer has reasonable grounds to believe that the person has committed an implied consent offense (see sidebar).
2. The person is charged with an implied consent offense.
3. The law enforcement officer and the chemical analyst comply with the procedures of G.S. 20-16.2 and -139.1 in requiring the person to submit to or in procuring a chemical analysis.
4. The person:
 - a. willfully refuses to submit to the chemical analysis,
 - b. has an alcohol concentration of .08 or more within a relevant time after the driving,
 - c. has an alcohol concentration of .04 or more at any relevant time after the driving of a commercial motor vehicle, or
5. has any alcohol concentration at any relevant time after the driving and the person is under 21 years of age.

Notwithstanding the statutory use of the present tense "has," it appears that a magistrate must base the determination of the first condition, namely, whether a law enforcement officer has reasonable grounds to believe the person has committed an implied consent offense, on whether those grounds existed at the time the implied consent testing procedures were initiated and not upon

38. Id. § 20-16.5(c).

39. Id. § 20-16.5(e).

Implied Consent Offenses

1. Impaired driving (G.S. 20-138.1).
2. Impaired driving in a commercial vehicle (G.S. 20-138.2).
3. Habitual impaired driving (G.S. 20-138.5).
4. Death by vehicle or serious injury by vehicle (G.S. 20-141.4).
5. First- or second-degree murder (G.S. 14-17) or involuntary manslaughter (G.S. 14-18) when based on impaired driving.
6. Driving by a person less than 21 years old after consuming alcohol or drugs (G.S. 20-138.3).
7. Violating no-alcohol condition of limited driving privilege (G.S. 20-179.3).
8. Impaired instruction (G.S. 20-12.1).
9. Operating commercial motor vehicle after consuming alcohol (G.S. 20-138.2A).
10. Operating school bus, school activity bus, or child care vehicle after consuming alcohol (G.S. 20-138.2B).
11. Transporting an open container of alcohol (G.S. 20-138.7(a)).
12. Driving in violation of restriction requiring ignition interlock (G.S. 20-17.8(f)).

Note: See G.S. 20-16.2(a1); -4.01(24a).

whether reasonable grounds exist at the time of the initial appearance. If this interpretation is correct, the magistrate must not base the reasonable grounds determination on the results of the chemical analysis or on the defendant's willful refusal. This construction of G.S. 20-16.5 best comports with the statutory provisions that (1) permit implied consent testing only in circumstances in which a law enforcement officer has reasonable grounds to believe that a person has committed an implied consent offense⁴⁰ and (2) require the magistrate also to determine, before issuing a civil license revocation under G.S. 20-16.5, that "the law enforcement officer and the chemical analyst compl[ie]d with the procedure of G.S. 20-16.2 and G.S. 20-139.1 in requiring the person's submission to or [in] procuring a chemical analysis."⁴¹

The second condition for civil revocation of a person's driver's license requires that the person be charged with an implied consent offense. Again, this condition appears to refer to the grounds that existed before the implied consent testing procedures were initiated. A person is charged with an implied consent offense if the person is arrested for the offense or if criminal process for the offense has been issued.⁴²

The third condition requires that the magistrate determine whether the law enforcement officer and chemical analyst complied with the implied consent testing procedures set forth in G.S. 20-16.2 and -139.1, which were discussed earlier in this bulletin in the section on the police processing duties in implied consent cases.

Finally, before civil license revocation can occur, the magistrate must determine whether the person charged willfully refused to submit to a chemical analysis or had an alcohol concentration at or exceeding the threshold level. The concept of willful refusal and the requirements for reported alcohol concentrations likewise are discussed in the earlier section on police processing duties.

Although normally a person submits to chemical analysis only after he or she is arrested and charged with an implied consent offense, a person who is stopped or questioned by a law enforcement officer who is investigating whether that person may have committed an implied consent offense may request that a chemical analysis be administered before any arrest or other charge is made.⁴³ Upon such a request, the officer must afford the person the opportunity to have a chemical analysis of his or her breath, if available, in accordance with the procedures required by G.S. 20-139.1(b).⁴⁴ The notice of rights required prior to administration of a pre-charge test is prescribed by statute and differs slightly from the notice provided in a case in which the person already has been charged with an implied consent offense.⁴⁵ A pre-charge chemical analysis can give rise to a license revocation if the following conditions are satisfied:⁴⁶

1. The person requested a pre-charge chemical analysis pursuant to G.S. 20-16.2(i) and
2. The person has
 - a. an alcohol concentration of 0.08 or more at any relevant time after driving,
 - b. an alcohol concentration of 0.04 or more at any relevant time after driving a commercial motor vehicle, or

Driving in Violation of an Alcohol Restriction That Is Not an Implied Consent Offense

When a person's license is restored after having been revoked as a result of his or her conviction for being under the age of 21 and driving after consuming alcohol or drugs, for impaired driving, or for another offense involving impaired driving specified in G.S. 20-19, the license is restored with the restriction that the person not operate a motor vehicle while having an alcohol concentration greater than 0.04 or, in the case of a second or subsequent restoration or conviction of certain specified offenses involving impaired driving, a concentration exceeding 0.00.⁴⁷ A person seeking to have his or her license restored must agree to submit to a chemical analysis in accordance with G.S. 20-16.2 at the request of a law enforcement officer who has reasonable grounds to believe that the person is operating a motor vehicle on a highway or public vehicular area in violation of the restriction. The person must also agree to be transported by the officer to the place where the chemical analysis is to be administered.

Magistrates frequently question whether a person who drives in violation of such a restriction is subject to civil license revocation based merely on the violation of the alcohol restriction. The usual answer is no. Driving in violation of an alcohol restriction imposed as a condition of a license restoration pursuant to G.S. 20-19(c3) is not an implied consent offense, so the conditions for civil license revocation are not met based merely on violating such a restriction. That said, there may be instances in which there is probable cause to believe that a person with an alcohol restriction has, in addition to violating the conditions of a restricted license, also committed an implied consent offense. In such a case, if the other conditions for civil license revocation exist, the civil revocation must be issued.

One reason for the confusion may be that in addition to its use in the civil revocation context, the AOC-CVR-1A form is used also to report violations of alcohol concentration restrictions to the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV). G.S. 20-16.2(c1) requires that when a person's driver's license has an alcohol concentration restriction and the results of a chemical analysis establish a violation of that restriction, or when a law enforcement officer has reasonable grounds to believe that the person has violated another provision of the restriction, the law enforcement officer must execute an affidavit regarding the violation and "immediately mail" it to the DMV.

The officer must designate in item 2 of AOC-CVR-1A the type of driver's license restriction and specify in item 3 of the form the nature of the restriction violation. Upon receipt of a properly executed AOC-CVR-1A setting forth a restriction violation, the DMV must notify the person that his or her driver's license is revoked for the period of time specified under G.S. 20-19, effective on the tenth calendar day after the mailing of the revocation order, unless before the effective date of the order the person requests in writing a hearing before the DMV.⁴⁸

Driving in Violation of Ignition Interlock Restriction

Certain persons convicted of impaired driving may have their licenses restored only in conjunction with an ignition interlock restriction.⁴⁹ A person whose license is revoked as a result of a conviction of impaired driving pursuant to G.S. 20-138.1 who had either (1) an alcohol concentration level of 0.15 or higher or (2) a prior conviction for an offense involving impaired driving, that offense having occurred within seven years immediately preceding the date of the offense for which the person's license is revoked, may have his or her license restored only with an ignition interlock restriction.⁵⁰ This requires that a person operate only a vehicle that is equipped with a functioning ignition interlock system.⁵¹ The person must personally activate the ignition interlock system before driving the vehicle.⁵² An alcohol concentration restriction of 0.04 or 0.00 also applies, with the level dependent on the circumstances of the conviction giving rise to the ignition interlock requirement.⁵³

A person who violates an ignition interlock restriction commits the offense of driving while license revoked (DWLR) under G.S. 20-28(a) and is subject to punishment and license revocation as provided in that section.⁵⁴ If a law enforcement officer has reasonable grounds to believe that a person subject to an ignition interlock restriction has consumed alcohol while driving or has driven while any previously consumed alcohol remains in his or her body, the suspected offense of DWLR is an alcohol-related offense subject to the implied consent provisions of G.S. 20-16.2.⁵⁵

Thus, certain violations of ignition interlock restrictions constitute implied consent offenses. If a person is charged with such an offense and the other requirements of G.S. 20-16.5 are satisfied, the magistrate must order the person's driver's license civilly revoked under G.S. 20-16.5.

The person's license also will be suspended pursuant to G.S. 20-17.8, which provides that when a person subject to an ignition interlock restriction is charged with DWLR based on a violation of the ignition interlock restrictions set forth in G.S. 20-17.8(b)⁵⁶ and the judicial official finds probable cause for the charge, the person's license is suspended pending resolution of the case. G.S. 20-17.8 provides that the judicial official must require the person to surrender the license and inform the person that he or she is not entitled to drive until the case is resolved.

49. Id. § 20-17.8.

50. G.S. 20-17.8(l) sets forth a medical exception to the ignition interlock requirement for people who establish that they are not capable of personally activating the ignition interlock system.

51. Id. § 20-17.8(b)(1).

52. Id. § 20-17.8(b)(2).

53. Id. § 20-17.8(b)(3).

54. Id. § 20-17.8(f).

55. Id.

56. These restrictions are that the person (1) operate only a vehicle equipped with interlock, (2) personally activate the ignition interlock before driving, and (3) comply with the alcohol concentration restrictions. The requirement that a person subject to ignition interlock have all registered vehicles owned by him or her equipped with ignition interlock unless the DMV determines that one or more vehicles owned by that person are relied upon by a family member for transportation and that such a vehicle is not in the possession of the restricted person is contained in G.S. 20-17.8(c1). Thus, a violation of this requirement alone does not give rise to a G.S. 20-17.8(f) revocation. Nor would it constitute an implied consent offense, since it would not involve the consumption of alcohol while driving or driving while previously consumed alcohol remains in the body.

B. Affidavit and Revocation Report (AOC-CVR-1A)

In implied consent cases in which a law enforcement officer and a chemical analyst determine that the conditions requiring an immediate civil license revocation exist, the law enforcement officer and chemical analyst (who may be the same person) must execute an AOC-CVR-1A.⁵⁷ This report is a sworn statement (affidavit) by a law enforcement officer and chemical analyst containing facts indicating that the conditions requiring a civil license revocation are met and reporting whether the person has a pending offense for which his or her license had been or is revoked under the civil revocation statute.⁵⁸

A law enforcement officer must ensure that the AOC-CVR-1A is expeditiously filed with the appropriate judicial official. If no revocation report has previously been filed and the results of the chemical analysis or the reports indicating the defendant's willful refusal to submit to a chemical analysis are available, the law enforcement officer must file the report with the judicial official conducting the initial appearance on the underlying criminal charge—typically a magistrate.⁵⁹

After completing any other proceedings involving the person charged, the magistrate must determine whether there is probable cause to believe that the conditions requiring civil license revocation are satisfied.⁶⁰ If the magistrate determines that the requirements are met, the magistrate must enter an order revoking the defendant's license for the requisite period, unless the exception for revoked licenses, described below, applies.⁶¹ The revocation begins at the time the order is issued.⁶²

57. The charging officer may also perform the work of the chemical analyst—the person authorized to conduct chemical analyses of the breath—if the officer has a current permit issued by the Department of Health and Human Services authorizing him or her to perform a breath test using the type of instrument employed. G.S. 20-139.1(b1).

58. Id. § 20-16.5(a)(4). If the charging officer and the chemical analyst are different people, the officer will complete the pertinent part of one AOC-CVR-1A (paragraphs 1–5), and the chemical analyst will complete the remaining portions (paragraphs 6–14) of a separate AOC-CVR-1A. If one chemical analyst analyzes a person's blood and another chemical analyst informs a person of his or her rights and responsibilities under G.S. 20-16.2, the affidavit and report must include the statements of both analysts. The officer also must state in the last block of paragraph 4 of the AOC-CVR-1A whether the person charged has a pending offense for which the person's license has been or is revoked under G.S. 20-16.5, as this will affect the length of the revocation period.

59. Id. § 20-16.5(d)(1). If no report has previously been filed and the results or reports indicating a refusal were not available at the initial appearance, the report must be filed with a judicial official conducting any other proceeding relating to the underlying criminal charge at which the person is present. Id. § 20-16.5(d)(2). If neither G.S. 20-16.5(d)(1) nor (d)(2) is applicable at the time the law enforcement officer must file the report, the report must be filed with the clerk of superior court in the county in which the underlying criminal charge has been brought. Id. § 20-16.5(e).

60. Id. § 20-16.5(e).

61. A person's license is subject to immediate civil revocation if the aforementioned statutory requirements are met—even if the person was driving a vehicle for which no license was required, such as a moped, bicycle, or lawn mower.

62. G.S. 20-16.5(e).

Exception for Revoked Licenses

If the magistrate finds that the person whose license is subject to civil revocation has a currently revoked driver's license, no limited driving privilege, and will not become eligible for restoration of his or her license or a limited driving privilege during the period of civil revocation, the magistrate is not required to issue the civil revocation order.⁶³ If this exception applies and the revocation order is not issued, the magistrate must file in the records of the civil proceeding a copy of any documentary evidence and set out in writing all other evidence on which he or she relied in making that determination.⁶⁴

Multiple Offenses

A person may be charged with more than one implied consent offense arising from a single event. For example, as a result of one episode of driving while impaired, a person may be charged under G.S. 20-138.1 as well as under G.S. 20-138.3 if the driver is less than 21 years old. Both of these offenses are implied consent offenses that, when combined with other requisite factors, require a civil license revocation. However, when a defendant is charged with more than one offense requiring a civil license revocation based on conduct arising from a single occurrence, only one civil license revocation should be issued.

C. Revocation Order When the Person Is Present (AOC-CVR-2)

The form a magistrate must use to enter a revocation order is AOC-CVR-2 (Revocation Order When Person Present; see Appendix A). The magistrate must check the appropriate box under paragraph 4 of the findings for probable cause section of the form to indicate whether the defendant (a) willfully refused to submit to a chemical analysis, (b) had an alcohol concentration of 0.08 or more at any relevant time after driving, (c) had an alcohol concentration of 0.04 or more at any relevant time after the driving of a commercial motor vehicle, or (d) had any alcohol concentration at any relevant time after the driving and, at the time of the offense, was under 21 years of age. If the defendant has been charged with an offense for which his or her license had been or is revoked pursuant to G.S. 20-16.5 and that offense is pending, the magistrate must so indicate by checking paragraph 5 in the same section.

The magistrate must then complete the order portion of AOC-CVR-2. There, the magistrate must indicate that the revocation is in effect for at least thirty days from one of three dates: (1) the date the order is entered [box 1], (2) the date the defendant surrenders his or her driver's license to the court or demonstrates that he or she is not currently licensed to drive [box 2], or (3) the date the defendant, if found in the probable cause section of AOC-CVR-2 to have certain offenses pending against him or her, surrenders his or her driver's license to the court or demonstrates that he or she is not currently licensed to drive; in this circumstance, the magistrate must also indicate that the defendant will remain ineligible to drive indefinitely, until a final judgment, including all appeals, has been entered for the current offense and for all pending offenses for which his or her driver's license had been or is revoked under G.S. 20-16.5 [box 3]. If the person surrenders his or her license at the time of revocation and has no pending offenses for which the license was or is revoked under G.S. 20-16.5, the magistrate checks box 1. If the person does not surrender his or her license at the time of the revocation but has no pending offenses for which the license was revoked, the magistrate checks box 2. If the magistrate checked box 5 in the findings for probable cause section, indicating that the person has a pending offense for which his or her license is or was civilly revoked, the magistrate must check box 3 in the order portion of the form, indicating that the current civil revocation is indefinite in duration. Again, these provisions provide the starting date for measuring the minimum term of the revocation. The revocation begins at the time the revocation order is issued by the magistrate.⁶⁵

Notifying the Defendant

The magistrate must give the defendant a copy of the revocation order. Although G.S. 20-16.5 does not require that the magistrate orally notify the defendant of the revocation period, a magistrate should, in the interest of securing compliance with the revocation, inform the defendant that his or her license is revoked for at least thirty days. If box 3 of the order portion of AOC-CVR-2 is checked, indicating an indefinite revocation, the magistrate should inform the defendant that his or her license is revoked for at least thirty days and that it remains revoked indefinitely, until a final judgment is entered for the current offense and all pending offenses for which his or her license had been or is revoked under G.S. 20-16.5. The magistrate must state in the order and personally inform the defendant that he or she may request a hearing to contest the validity of the revocation order and that his or her license remains revoked pending that hearing.⁶⁶

Surrender of License

Upon entering the revocation order, the magistrate must order the person charged to surrender his or her license and, if necessary, may order a law enforcement officer to seize the license.⁶⁷ Licenses issued by jurisdictions other than North Carolina are covered by the surrender provisions and must, like North Carolina driver's licenses, be surrendered to the magistrate.⁶⁸

If within five working days of the effective date of the order the person does not surrender his or her license or demonstrate that he or she is not currently licensed, the clerk must immediately enter a Drivers License Pick-Up Order (AOC-CVR-4; see Appendix A).⁶⁹

A person may surrender a driver's license by turning over to a court or a law enforcement officer his or her most recent, valid driver's license or learner's permit or a limited driving privilege issued by a North Carolina court.⁷⁰ In July 2008, the North Carolina DMV launched a central system for issuing licenses.⁷¹ Under this system, a person who applies to renew his or her driver's license does not receive a newly minted license from the local DMV office.⁷² Instead, the person receives a temporary driving certificate valid for twenty days.⁷³ In the interim, the person's driver's license is produced at a central location and then mailed to the applicant.⁷⁴ When a magistrate orders a civil license revocation for a person who has a temporary driving certificate rather than a renewed license, the magistrate should require the driver to surrender the temporary certificate. The magistrate should further instruct the person that upon receiving his or her renewed license in the mail, he or she must surrender it to the office of the clerk for superior court for the remainder of the revocation period.

No License or Lost License (AOC-CVR-8)

A person who is validly licensed but is unable to locate his or her license may surrender the license by filing with the clerk of superior court form AOC-CVR-8 (Affidavit—No License; see Appendix A), indicating why, though validly licensed, he or she does not possess the license card.⁷⁵ Because an affidavit establishing that a person has lost his or her license may only be filed with the clerk, the magistrate should never check box 2 in the supplemental findings section of the AOC-CVR-2.⁷⁶ Instead, the clerk must check this box upon his or her receipt of the affidavit of lost license. In contrast, a person who is not licensed to drive by North Carolina or by any other jurisdiction and who, thus, has no license may complete form AOC-CVR-8 and submit the affidavit to either the magistrate or the clerk. A charged person also may demonstrate to the magistrate that he or she is not licensed by producing appropriate identification that the magistrate can check against North Carolina DMV records. If a person submits AOC-CVR-8 to establish that he or she does not have a license or otherwise demonstrates to the magistrate that he or she has no license, the magistrate must check box 3 in the supplemental findings and order section on side two of AOC-CVR-2, indicating that the person demonstrated that he or she was not currently authorized to drive in North Carolina, and must record the time and date in the first sentence of this section of the form. The magistrate must then sign and date the supplemental findings and order section.

Revocation Period

A civil license revocation ordered by a magistrate begins at the time the revocation order is issued and continues until the person's license has been surrendered for the minimum revocation period (discussed below) and the person has paid the applicable costs.⁷⁷ Revocations under G.S. 20-16.5 are never shorter than thirty days from the date the person surrenders the license. The revocation period may be longer, depending on whether, at the time of the present implied consent offense, the person has a pending offense for which his or her license was or has been revoked under G.S. 20-16.5.

The sidebar sets forth the revocation period for persons who do not have an implied consent charge pending at the time of the current offense. For a person who, at the time of the new offense has a pending implied consent charge for which his or her license was or is civilly revoked under

For Persons Who Do Not Have a Pending Implied Consent Charge at the Time of the Current Offense, the Civil Revocation Concludes When:

1. The person has surrendered his or her license or has demonstrated to the court that he or she has no license or has lost his or her license;
2. Thirty days (forty-five days if the person fails to surrender his or her license within five working days after the effective date of a revocation order issued by a clerk and served by mail) have passed since the license was surrendered; and
3. The person has paid the $100 in costs.

⁷⁶ In checking this box, the magistrate is indicating that he or she—not, as is appropriate, the clerk—received the person's lost license affidavit.

⁷⁷ G.S. 20-16.5(e).

G.S. 20-16.5, the new civil revocation is indefinite and lasts until a final judgment (including all appeals) has been entered for the current offense and all pending implied consent offenses. In no event may the revocation period be shorter than thirty days. This indefinite revocation period applies regardless of whether the civil revocation in the earlier case was in place at the time of the instant offense; the key is whether the prior implied consent charge itself is still pending.

D. Contesting a License Revocation (AOC-CVR-5)

As previously mentioned, a person whose license is revoked under G.S. 20-16.5 may request a hearing to contest the validity of the revocation. The request must be in writing and may be made at the time of the person's initial appearance or within ten days of the effective date of the revocation.⁷⁸ The appropriate form for the hearing request is AOC-CVR-5 (Request for Hearing to Contest License Revocation; see Appendix A). The hearing request must be made to the magistrate at the initial appearance or, if made after the initial appearance, to the clerk or a magistrate designated by the clerk.⁷⁹ The written request must specify the grounds upon which the revocation is challenged.⁸⁰ The ensuing hearing must be limited to the grounds specified in that request.⁸¹

The person may specifically request that the hearing be conducted by a district court judge.⁸² If the person does not make that request, the hearing must be conducted by a magistrate assigned by the chief district court judge to conduct such hearings.⁸³ The General Statutes are silent on the matter, but in order to ensure an impartial review, the hearing where the validity of the license revocation is being challenged should be held by a magistrate other than the magistrate who entered the initial revocation order. If the person does request that a district court judge hold the hearing, it must be conducted within the district court district by a district court judge assigned to conduct such hearings.⁸⁴ The revocation remains in effect pending the hearing.⁸⁵ The hearing must be held within three working days following the request if the hearing is before a magistrate or within five working days if before a district court judge.⁸⁶ If the hearing is not held and completed by a magistrate within three working days or by a district court judge within five working days of the written request, the judicial official must enter an order rescinding the revocation, unless the person contesting the revocation contributed to the delay.⁸⁷ If the person requesting the hearing fails to appear at the hearing or at any rescheduled hearing after having been properly notified, he or she forfeits the right to a hearing.⁸⁸

A witness may submit evidence via affidavit at the hearing unless the witness is subpoenaed.⁸⁹ Any person who appears and testifies is subject to questioning by the judicial official conducting the hearing, and the judicial official may adjourn the hearing to seek additional evidence if he or she deems it necessary.⁹⁰ If the hearing is adjourned, it must be reconvened and the matter resolved within the applicable time limit (three working days if held by the magistrate, five working days if held by a district court judge).⁹¹ The person contesting the validity of the revocation may, but is not required to, testify on his or her own behalf.⁹² Unless contested by the person requesting the hearing, statements in the revocation report may be accepted as true by the judicial official.⁹³ If any relevant condition under G.S. 20-16.5(b) is contested, the judicial official must find by the greater weight of the evidence that the condition was met in order to sustain the revocation.⁹⁴ At the end of the hearing, the judicial official must enter an order on side two of AOC-CVR-5 sustaining or rescinding the revocation. The decision of the judicial official is final and may not be appealed.⁹⁵

E. Return of License

After the applicable period of revocation has passed, or if a magistrate or judge orders the revocation rescinded, the person whose license was revoked may apply to the clerk for return of the surrendered license. The clerk generally keeps surrendered licenses rather than mailing them to the DMV. An exception applies if the person's license is revoked pursuant to G.S. 20-16.5 and revoked under another section of G.S. Chapter 20. In such cases, the clerk must surrender the license to the DMV if the G.S. 20-16.5 revocation can end before the other revocation.⁹⁶ The $100 in costs⁹⁷ still must be paid before the G.S. 20-16.5 civil revocation may be terminated, even after the other revocation ends.⁹⁸

96. An exception applies for out-of-state licenses revoked because the driver refused to submit to a chemical analysis. When a person refuses to submit to a chemical analysis, the person's license is revoked by the DMV for twelve months, unless the person requests a hearing on the matter and the DMV concludes that certain statutory requirements are not met. G.S. 20-16.2(d). Upon refusal to submit to testing by a nonresident and out-of-state license holder, the DMV may revoke only the person's privilege to drive in North Carolina—not the person's privilege to drive in his or her home state. See id. § 20-16.2(f) (providing for notice to other states of revocation of nonresident's privilege to drive a motor vehicle in North Carolina based on a refusal to submit to a chemical analysis); see also State v. Streckfuss, 171 N.C. App. 81, 85–87, 614 S.E.2d 323, 326–327 (2005) (implicitly recognizing that North Carolina lacks authority to prohibit a nonresident from driving in his or her home state). For this reason, the DMV will not accept out-of-state licenses, and the clerk must return such licenses to the license holder upon satisfaction of the conditional revocation period and payment of costs. The DMV will, however, pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 20-16.2(f), notify both the state of the person's residence and any state in which the person is licensed of the revocation of the North Carolina driving privilege.

97. Of the total fee, 50 percent is credited to the state's general fund; 25 percent must be used for the statewide chemical alcohol testing program administered by the Forensic Tests for Alcohol Branch of the Department of Health and Human Services; and the remaining 25 percent must be remitted to the county as reimbursement for jail expenses incurred due to enforcement of the impaired driving laws. G.S. 20-16.5(j).

98. Id. § 20-16.5(h).

Upon application, a clerk must return a person's license if (1) the applicable period of revocation has passed and the person has paid the $100 in costs or (2) the magistrate or judge has rescinded the revocation.⁹⁹ If the license has expired, the clerk may return it to the person with a caution that it is no longer valid.¹⁰⁰ If the person has surrendered his or her copy of a limited driving privilege and is no longer eligible to use it, the clerk must make a record that the limited driving privilege was withheld.¹⁰¹ The clerk must then forward that record to the clerk in the county in which the limited driving privilege was issued for inclusion in the case file.¹⁰²

F. Nature of Revocation

Civil license revocations imposed pursuant to G.S. 20-16.5 are intended to “prevent unsafe and unfit drivers from operating vehicles and endangering the citizens of North Carolina”¹⁰³ rather than to punish drivers for conduct for which they have not yet been convicted. A civil revocation pursuant to G.S. 20-16.5 revokes a person's privilege to drive in North Carolina regardless of the source of his or her authorization to drive.¹⁰⁴ Revocations under G.S. 20-16.5 are independent of and run concurrently with other revocations.¹⁰⁵ A court that imposes a period of revocation upon conviction of an offense involving impaired driving may not give credit for any period of revocation imposed under G.S. 20-16.5.¹⁰⁶

G. Limited Driving Privileges

A person whose license is civilly revoked under G.S. 20-16.5 for thirty or forty-five days may apply to the court for a limited driving privilege¹⁰⁷ if the following conditions are met: (1) at the time of the alleged offense, the person held a valid driver's license or one that had been expired for less than one year; (2) except for the charge for which the license is currently revoked, the person does not have (a) an unresolved pending charge involving impaired driving or (b) additional convictions for an offense involving impaired driving since being charged for the violation for which the license is currently revoked under G.S. 20-16.5; (3) the person's license has been revoked for at least ten days if the revocation period is thirty days or for at least thirty days if the revocation period is forty-five days; and (4) the person has obtained a substance abuse assessment from a mental health facility and registers for and agrees to participate in any recommended training or treatment program.¹⁰⁸ Any district court judge authorized to hold court in the judicial district where the case is pending is authorized to issue such a limited privilege.¹⁰⁹ Other judicial officials, such as clerks and magistrates, are not authorized to do so.

the time of the instant alleged offense) may, after completing thirty days of revocation or forty-five days if the license was surrendered more than five working days after the effective date of the revocation order entered by the clerk, apply for a limited driving privilege.¹¹⁰ A judge of the division in which the instant charge is pending may issue the limited driving privilege only if the privilege is necessary to overcome undue hardship and the person meets the following eligibility requirements: (1) at the time of the offense, the person held either a valid driver's license or a license that had been expired for less than one year; (2) at the time of the offense, the person had not within seven years been convicted of an offense involving impaired driving; (3) after the current offense, the person has not been convicted of, or charged with, an offense involving impaired driving; and (4) the person has obtained and filed with the court a substance abuse assessment of the type required by G.S. 20-17.6 for restoration of a driver's license.¹¹¹

H. Driving While License Civilly Revoked

A person who drives while his or her license is civilly revoked commits the offense of driving while license revoked (DWLR) under G.S. 20-28. This is true even when the minimum revocation period has expired at the time of the driving and the person is eligible to have his or her license returned upon payment of costs. G.S. 20-28(a1) provides that a person convicted of DWLR for driving after the minimum revocation period had expired but before reclaiming his or her license is punished as if the person has been convicted of the less serious offense of driving without a license. This reduced punishment does not alter the charge or conviction of DWLR.

IV. Vehicle Seizure and Impoundment

The final procedure discussed in this bulletin is vehicle seizure and impoundment. This procedure applies only to offenses involving impaired driving, which constitute a subset of the broader category of implied consent offenses. G.S. 20-28.3 provides that a motor vehicle driven by a person charged with an offense involving impaired driving is subject to seizure if at the time of the violation (1) the driver's license of the person driving the motor vehicle was revoked as the result of a prior impaired driving license revocation as defined in G.S. 20-28.2(a) or (2) the person was not validly licensed and was not covered by an automobile liability policy.¹¹²

A judge later determines at the defendant's sentencing or other hearing whether a motor vehicle driven by an impaired driver and seized and impounded pursuant to G.S. 20-28.3 is subject to an order of forfeiture.¹¹³ The proceeds of any forfeiture sale are disbursed to the county board of education.¹¹⁴

A. Key Terms Defined

An understanding of several terms is required to determine whether a motor vehicle is subject to seizure pursuant to G.S. 20-28.3. The terms "motor vehicle," "offenses involving impaired driving," "prior impaired driving license revocations," "driving without a valid drivers license," and driving while “not covered by an automobile liability policy” are defined in the following paragraphs. The second and third terms also are defined on side two of form AOC-CR-323 (Officer’s Affidavit for Seizure and Impoundment and Magistrate’s Order; see Appendix A).

110. Id.

111. Id.

Motor Vehicle

The term “motor vehicle” is defined as “[e]very vehicle which is self-propelled and every vehicle designed to run upon the highways which is pulled by a self-propelled vehicle.”¹¹⁵ The term does not include mopeds,¹¹⁶ which are vehicles with “two or three wheels, no external shifting device, and a motor that does not exceed 50 cubic centimeters piston displacement and cannot propel the vehicle at a speed greater than 30 miles per hour on a level surface.”¹¹⁷ Only motor vehicles are subject to seizure pursuant to G.S. 20-28.3.

Offenses Involving Impaired Driving

The term “offenses involving impaired driving” is defined in G.S.20-4.01(24a) to consist of the following offenses:

- impaired driving under G.S. 20-138.1;
- habitual impaired driving under G.S. 20-138.5;
- impaired driving in commercial vehicle under G.S. 20-138.2;
- any offense under G.S. 20-141.4 based on impaired driving (felony death by vehicle and felony serious injury by vehicle);
- first- or second-degree murder under G.S. 14-17 based on impaired driving;
- involuntary manslaughter under G.S. 14-18 based on impaired driving;
- substantially similar offenses committed in another state or jurisdiction.

As previously noted, a motor vehicle driven by a person during the commission of an impaired driving offense (defined above) is subject to seizure in two circumstances: (1) if, at the time of the violation, the person’s driver’s license was revoked as a result of a prior impaired driving license revocation or (2) if, at the time of the violation, the person was not validly licensed and was not covered by an automobile liability policy.

Prior Impaired Driving License Revocations

This term is defined by G.S. 20-28.2(a) to include revocations made under any of the following statutes:

- G.S. 20-13.2: consuming alcohol or drugs or willful refusal by driver under age 21 to submit to chemical analysis;
- G.S. 20-16(a)(8b): driving while impaired on a military installation;
- G.S. 20-16.2: refusal to take a chemical test;
- G.S. 20-16.5: pretrial civil license revocation;
- G.S. 20-17(a)(2): impaired driving or impaired driving in a commercial vehicle;
- G.S. 20-138.5: habitual impaired driving;
- G.S. 20-17(a)(12): transporting an open container of alcohol;
- G.S. 20-17.2: court order not to operate motor vehicle (repealed effective December 1, 2006);

115. Id. § 20-4.01(23).

116. Id.

117. See id. § 20-4.01(27)(d1) (incorporating definition of moped in G.S. 105-164.3(22)).

- G.S. 20-16(a)(7): impaired driving while out of state resulting in revocation of North Carolina driver's license;
- G.S. 20-17(a)(1): manslaughter or second-degree murder involving impaired driving;
- G.S. 20-17(a)(3): felony involving use of motor vehicle involving impaired driving;
- G.S. 20-17(a)(9): felony or misdemeanor death or felony serious injury by vehicle involving impaired driving;
- G.S. 20-17(a)(11): assault with motor vehicle involving impaired driving;
- G.S. 20-28.2(a)(3): the laws of another state and the offense for which the person's license is revoked prohibit substantially similar conduct that, if committed in North Carolina, would result in a revocation under any of the statutes listed above.

Driving without a Valid Driver's License

With respect to the provision for seizure of a vehicle driven by a person charged with an impaired driving offense who was driving without a license and without liability insurance, it is important to note that a person who has a complete defense pursuant to G.S. 20-35 to a charge of driving without a driver's license is considered to have had a valid driver's license at the time of the violation. Thus, a motor vehicle driven by such a person is not subject to seizure.¹¹⁸ A person may not be convicted of the offense of driving a motor vehicle without a driver's license if the person demonstrates the following: (1) that at the time of the offense, the person had an expired license, (2) that the person renewed the license within thirty days after it expired, and (3) that the person could not have been charged with driving without a license if the person had the renewed license when charged with the offense.¹¹⁹ In essence, this provision establishes a thirty-day grace period for renewing one's driver's license. Moreover, a person's simple failure to carry a license on his or her person does not satisfy the "driving without a license" prong so as to subject his or her vehicle to seizure.

Driving While Not Covered by Automobile Liability Policy

In addition to having probable cause to believe that the driver was charged with an impaired driving offense and did not have a valid license, in order to seize a motor vehicle under G.S. 20-28.3(a)(2), a law enforcement officer must have probable cause to believe that the driver was not at the time of the violation covered by an automobile liability policy. G.S. 20-309 requires financial responsibility in the form of a liability insurance policy, financial security bond, or financial security deposit or by qualification as a self-insurer, as a prerequisite to registration. G.S. 20-313 makes it a Class 1 misdemeanor for the owner of a motor vehicle registered or required to be registered in North Carolina to operate the motor vehicle or permit the motor vehicle to be operated in the state without having the required financial responsibility. It is important to note that G.S. 20-28.3(a)(2)b. refers to whether the driver—not the motor vehicle—is covered by an automobile liability policy. A person who drives a motor vehicle owned by someone else with the owner's permission is covered by the automobile liability policy for the motor vehicle being driven, if such a policy exists.¹²⁰ In addition, the authorized driver may be covered by an automobile liability insurance policy under which he or she is an insured driver, even if the motor vehicle itself is not listed on a policy.

119. Id. § 20-35(c).

120. Id. § 20-279.21(b)(2).

B. Procedure for Ordering Seizure and Impoundment

Law enforcement officers who seize or plan to seize a motor vehicle pursuant to G.S. 20-28.3 must present to a magistrate within the county where the driver was charged an affidavit of impoundment setting forth the basis upon which the motor vehicle has been or will be seized for forfeiture.¹²¹ AOC-CR-323 is the form on which the officer may complete an affidavit in support of the seizure and/or impoundment. Upon determining that the statutory requirements for seizure are met, the magistrate must order the vehicle held. The magistrate may do so on the bottom portion of the same form (designated magistrate's order). In addition to reviewing the officer's affidavit, the magistrate may request additional information and may hear from the defendant if the defendant is present.¹²² If the motor vehicle has not yet been seized and the magistrate determines that seizure is warranted, the magistrate must issue an order of seizure.¹²³ If the vehicle already has been seized and the statutory conditions for seizure are satisfied, the magistrate will order that the seized vehicle be impounded and held.¹²⁴ The magistrate must provide a copy of the order to the clerk of court, who, in turn, must provide copies to the district attorney and the attorney for the county board of education.¹²⁵ If the magistrate determines that the statutory requirements for seizure and impoundment are not satisfied, he or she must order the vehicle released to its owner upon payment of towing and storage fees.¹²⁶ Towing and storage fees may not be waived—even when the magistrate orders the vehicle released based on a finding that the statutory requirements for seizure have not been met.¹²⁷

C. Exceptions to Seizure

There are two important exceptions to the above-described requirements for seizure of a motor vehicle. A motor vehicle may not be seized if it has been reported stolen or if it is a rental vehicle and the driver is not listed as an authorized driver under the rental contract.¹²⁸ Other types of what the statute refers to as “innocent owners” may secure the release of their motor vehicles from impoundment, but those circumstances are not relevant to the magistrate's consideration of whether to order the vehicle seized and impounded.¹²⁹

D. Executing an Order of Seizure

Orders of seizure under G.S. 20-28.3 are valid anywhere in North Carolina and may be carried out by any officer with territorial jurisdiction who has subject matter jurisdiction for violations of G.S. Chapter 20.¹³⁰ Such an officer may use reasonable force to seize the motor vehicle and may enter upon the property of the defendant in order to accomplish the seizure.¹³¹ If an officer has probable cause to believe that the motor vehicle is located on the property of someone other than the defendant, the officer may obtain a search warrant to enter that property for the purpose of seizing the vehicle.¹³²

V. Conclusion

In conducting initial appearances in implied consent cases, magistrates may be required to carry out procedures in addition to those generally required for all criminal offenses. This bulletin has described the steps for two of those additional processes: civil license revocation, required in certain implied consent cases, and vehicle seizure and impoundment, required in connection with offenses involving impaired driving, a subset of implied consent cases. The following AOC forms and procedural flowcharts are presented (in the appendixes) to assist magistrates in completing the procedures associated with initial appearances in implied consent cases.
